We are extremely proud to feature Ol' Blue Eyes on the cover of this issue. This commemorative edition celebrates the 25th Anniversary of the Frank Sinatra Celebrity Invitational, an event that has raised millions of dollars for the Barbara Sinatra Children's Center at Eisenhower in Rancho Mirage, Calif. Among the legendary entertainers who have been part of this tournament over the past quarter century are Tony Bennett, Michael Bubl , Barry Manilow and Andy Williams. Mr. Sinatra used to personally host an after-party, fixing his famous chili and entertaining into the wee hours of the morning at his home. Today, Mrs. Sinatra continues this tradition with the "platinum circle" party providing additional entertainment for VIPs and celebrities. Ol' Blue Eyes would be extremely proud of the many volunteers and benefactors who continue to raise funds to help abused children and their families. Please see our feature on pg. 12

This issue features our most extensive tournament coverage of the season. Among others, we highlight the 2013 Kraft Nabisco Championship. Mission Hills Country Club will once again be ground zero for the best female golfers in the world, including Stacy Lewis who will defend her title against an array of amazing talent from all over the world. This tournament continues Dinah Shore's great legacy to women's golf, even as it prepares for some important changes. Read about the tournament starting on pg. 18, and see our coverage of the LPGA stars who will compete in it starting on pg. 22.

This first celebrity-am of the season is the ChildHelp Celebrity Golf Invitational, Feb. 8-10, hosted by Cheryl Ladd and John O'Hurley. ChildHelp has an exceptional event lined up this season with 36 celebrities and two-time Grammy Award-winner LeAnn Rimes as the gala entertainer. The tournament will be held at the Westin Mission Hills Resort & Spa in Rancho Mirage, Calif., and tickets can be purchased separately for dinner and the gala. Our coverage begins on pg. 26.

All of these events raise critical funds for charities, and we hope you'll join Desert Golf Magazine in supporting them. In the past few years of a challenging economy, many charitable organizations have seen funding decrease, seriously impacting their ability to help the men, women and children in our communities who depend on them.

The desert season is in full swing. The weather is incredible, the golf courses are in amazing condition and there are numerous parties and events that are both fun and worthy. We're glad to be part of the desert community and we hope you are, too.

Renovated. Reinvented. Ready for Play.

Golf at JW Marriott Desert Springs Resort & Spa has just upped its game. The resort's championship Palm and Valley courses have received a complete overhaul including new tees, bunkers and USGA-specification greens on the 18 holes of each course. Score spectacular scenery on the revamped Ted Robinson-designed links, filled with exotic birds, breathtaking mountain views, meandering waterways and pristine greens. To top it off, enjoy the royal treatment on your round with a state-of-the-art navigational system right from your cart, using your onboard computer to view graphic layouts of each hole and compute exact yardage to the pin.

Then for the fun when your game is done! This premier 5-star playground becomes your watering hole, your spa retreat and your ultimate dining destination. The luxury property's recent $25 million makeover showcases upgraded guest rooms and new waterfront restaurants like the chic Rockwood Grill and the seafood spectacular Fisherman's Landing.

There's truly no better 'stay' for a great golf getaway!

Frank Sinatra

Starkey Hearing Technologies Celebrity Invitational

The annual mega-event turns 25 this year – and it's still going strong

There are plenty of parties in the Coachella Valley, but few match the one started 25 years ago by Frank Sinatra. The little gathering for Sinatra's friends, family and Hollywood buddies has grown into one of the most famous charity golf events of the season. And while there's no denying that it is a must see-and-be-seen party, it has also raised millions for children in need through the Barbara Sinatra Children's Center at Eisenhower Medical Center in Rancho Mirage, Calif.

The 25th Frank Sinatra Starkey Hearing Technologies Celebrity Invitational will take place Feb. 21-23 at Fantasy Springs Resort Casino in Indio, Calif. It will include two fabulous days of golf and three nights of unforgettable parties, plus auctions and world-class entertainment. This year's event will be cohosted by Barbara Sinatra and golf great Ken Venturi, and the headliner at the black-tie gala is the incomparable Frankie Valli.

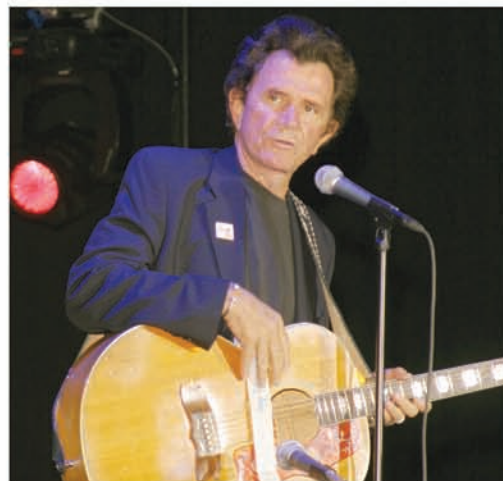

The History

"The Frank Sinatra Celebrity Invitational has a rich and glamorous history that began in Palm Springs as a small event for the Sinatras' entertainment industry friends and has grown into a legendary weekend of golf and parties supported by famous athletes and entertainers," says Tournament Director Mary Martin. "It started with pals like Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., Gene and Jackie Autry, Robert Wagner, Jill St. John, Kenny Rogers and Jack Lemon. Over the years its supporters have included Shirley MacLaine, Dick Van Dyke, Gary Mule Deer, Tom Flores, Fernando Valenzuela, Steve Garvey, Elke Sommer, Pat Boone and William Devane.

Most important, Martin adds, "the Barbara Sinatra Children's Center has saved a lot of young lives thanks to their support."

Barbara Sinatra is quick to acknowledge supporters and tournament participants who make it possible for the center to keep doing the work it does, work she considers critical. "The children who come to us for help continue to receive the therapy they need and deserve," she says, "and no child is ever turned away due to a family's inability to pay."

The Luncheon & Fashion Show

Among the popular elements of the event are the annual luncheon and fashion show, which this year features Fe Zandi. "We are thrilled to once again welcome Fe Zandi to the luncheon and fashion show," says Martin. "Fe spent her early 20s in Paris apprenticing with masters such as Jean Patou and Pierre Balmain. Today, Zandi's limited-edition collections, available at her salon on El Paseo, offer some of the world's most elegant, high-fashion feminine ensembles."

The fashion extravaganza starts at 11:00 a.m. with a reception and preview of the silent auction featuring furs and jewelry, and at noon the doors open to the luncheon and fashion show. Reserved tables of 12 are available when paid for by one table host, and tickets for the luncheon and fashion show are $125 per person, which is $25 less than last year.

The Golf

The tournament takes place Friday and Saturday on the superb Eagle Falls Golf Course at Fantasy Springs Resort. Designed by desert resident and golf legend Clive Clark, Eagle Falls has elevation changes and water features not usually seen on a golf course that is open for public play. But this is no ordinary public course, and tournament participants will find plenty to keep their rounds interesting and exciting. The 6,715-yard, par-72 course will test the low handicapper, but it will also provide an enjoyable and fair round of golf for other players as well. And, of course, there are the celebrities to ramp up the fun quotient.

The Sinatra is a five-player team gross and net scramble tournament. Teams consist of one celebrity and four amateur players. Each team of four amateur players remains together for two consecutive days, but the celebrity contestants change teams on day two.

The Benefits

There are many ways to be part of this incredible annual event, starting with free admission to see the action up close as part of the gallery (bring your camera for celebrity meet-and-greets).

But the way to make a difference is to buy one of the packages offered by tournament organizers. New this year is the Club 25 package in honor of the tournament's 25 remarkable years. For $25,000 you get two spots in the golf tournament on Friday and Saturday; two Platinum Circle Tee gift packages; a coveted Club 25 gift of desert photography by Frank Sinatra, signed and dated; and admission for 10 to the Thursday night dinner and pairings party, the Friday luncheon and fashion show, the Friday night dinner and live-auction party, and all three spectacular Saturday night events: the pre-gala cocktail party, the black-tie gala and the exclusive post-gala nightcap festivities. Those at the Club 25 level also receive recognition in the tournament program.

Other options are $2,300 for the Party Only package, $3,500 for the Gold package and $10,000 at the Platinum Circle level. Both Gold and Platinum packages include golf for one plus parties.

The Children

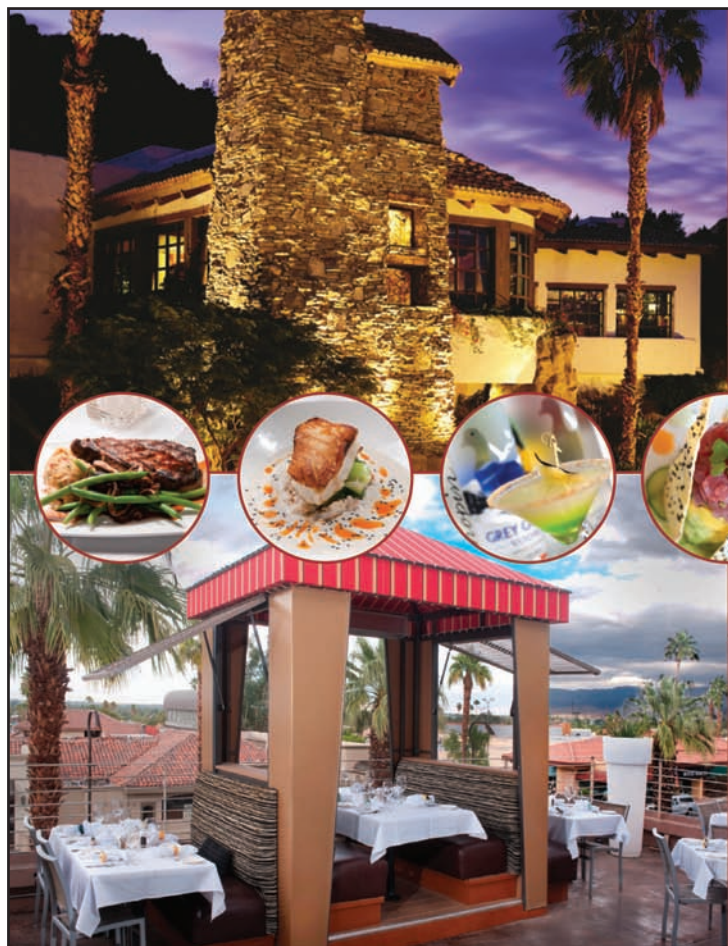

There's a reason so many have given so much for so long to this grand event, and it goes far beyond golf and parties. The desert is not immune to violence against children, something

Barbara Sinatra understood when she opened her center in 1986. She has remained a passionate advocate for its work ever since. The mission of the center is simple: to provide counseling for victims of physical, sexual and emotional abuse and to focus on prevention, community education and breaking the generational cycle of abuse.

This event helps to make that possible. The golf is exceptional, the parties are extraordinary and the fashions are definitely something to see. But at the core of all of that for 25 years has been a commitment by Frank and Barbara Sinatra and all the other tournament supporters to fight for children affected by abuse because they cannot fight for themselves.

Kraft Nabisco

Championship 2013

Big changes are coming to the venerable tournament— but few fans are likely to notice

The esteemed Kraft Nabisco Championship's organizational history is nearly as unique as the tournament structure itself. Another chapter in that history, and the history of the tournament, will begin with the 2013 event.

This year's event, traditionally the first major championship of the year, is scheduled for its traditional date during the first week of April (April 4-7 in 2013), and will be played at its traditional home, the Mission Hills Country Club's Dinah Shore Championship Course. However, while many of the tournament's time-tested elements remain in place, a major organizational transition will be taking place in front of, but largely unnoticed by, everyone's eyes.

In late 2012, Kraft Foods, the sponsor and owner of the tournament, made the decision to bring in International Management Group, better known as IMG, to organize the event. This was a big move for the company for several reasons, the most important being IMG's profile in the international and domestic golf communities, and its years of experience in the golf and golf tournament industries.

The hire officially signaled the end of Kraft's foray into golf tournament organization. Since the tournament's inception in 1972, it was operated in-house by the company that owned the tournament contract—Colgate-Palmolive, Nabisco, and Kraft—rather than the LPGA or another specialized outfit.

It's likely the catalyst for the move was Kraft Foods' recent split into two different corporations. Approximately two-thirds of the products in the "old" Kraft Foods brands portfolio, primarily the snack and biscuit products, were spun off into a new entity entitled Mondelez International.

The remaining products, including cheeses, Oscar Meyer meats, etc., were retained under the Kraft umbrella.

During that restructuring, the opportunity for change was at hand and Kraft seized on it by outsourcing its tournament to IMG. It's noteworthy that

2008 Champion Lorena Ochoa celebrates her victory with the traditional lake jump

2010 Champion Yani Tseng celebrating her victory

Kraft's contract with the tournament expires after the 2014 championship, and the evaluative and marketing skills IMG brings to the table could help Kraft reinvigorate its enthusiasm for a contract extension, or at very least, position the tournament to make it attractive to a co-sponsor, presenting sponsor or entirely new sponsor/owner.

IMG didn't get where it is today by making poor decisions. So when Kraft Nabisco came calling, IMG went right to the Nabisco employees who had been organizing the tournament prior to 2002 when Kraft took control of Nabisco. For example, former Kraft employee and Kraft Nabisco Championship business manager Gabe Coddling is now the Kraft Nabisco tournament director on behalf of IMG.

Coddling, who began working with the tournament staff as a volunteer in 1996 and was hired as a paid employee in 2001, says he never really considered how different the tournament ownership and its in-house organization was until he became involved full-time. "I remember going to LPGA meetings and meeting with organizational representatives of other tournaments who worked for the LPGA," he says. "There was no one who worked full-time for the tournament sponsor."

Codding says it was easy to see evolution and potential growth as two key reasons Kraft has implemented a new strategy for its tournament involvement.

"Kraft is a food company. They're trying to navigate this global economy, not run a golf tournament. Seeing them go to experts to handle it makes sense. They do this 40 times a year instead of me just doing it once," he said. "I'm sure their thinking was, 'With all that we have going on within the company, let's get the leading sports agency in the world to help us, not only with this event, but with other (sports marketing) opportunities around the globe.'"

While Kraft gains the decades of experience IMG brings to the partnership, Codding believes IMG also comes out of the deal a big winner. "The greatest thing about it for IMG is, they operate off so many different platforms around the world with so many different corporations. Just the golf divisions in particular, they work with all sorts of corporations around the world to activate programs in different sporting spaces. So to have access to a corporation like this (Kraft) is a benefit to them," he said.

"Secondly, they operate around 30 women's golf events around the world. They operate almost all of the Asian women's events, and they also own and operate the Ricoh Women's British Open. But they don't currently have a lot of domestic LPGA events, and that's a space they want to operate in. So having access to one of the top events on the LPGA Tour is a benefit for sure."

Another thing for sure is that fans will find the Kraft Nabisco Championship 2013 to be as exciting and memorable as it has always been, regardless of major changes behind the scenes.

America's Rising Stars

By Susanne Kemper

Two of the LPGA's stars to watch

Alexis Thompson

Was 2012 really Alexis Thompson's rookie season? She was 12 in 2007 when she qualified for her first U.S. Women's Open, the youngest player ever to do so. She played 21 Tour events over the next five years, winning the LPGA's Navistar Classic in 2011 to become the youngest winner in LPGA Tour history. After stunning the golfing world with those feats, the talented 16 year-old finally got LPGA Commissioner Mike Whan's approval to join in 2012.

Known as Lexi, the 5' 11" brunette from Florida is currently the youngest LPGA Tour cardholder. She also became the youngest winner on the Ladies European Tour in December 2011 when she topped the leaderboard at the Omega Dubai Masters. She is the epitome of golf's new face—tall, athletic and confident. She's already incredibly accomplished, but she's also still very much a teen.

Her recent tweet from Dubai: "Got my first camel ride today on Nadia! So amazing."

She says her best achievements so far are her first win at the Navistar and playing in the Curtis Cup. Open, direct and full of laughter, Thompson has been home schooled all her life. She started playing golf at age five, following in the footsteps of her older brothers Curtis (an LSU team golfer) and Nicolas (a Tour player). Their parents play as well.

Does that make for a pleasant family outing? "No," assures Thompson, "that's never the case. Ever. Always competitive and really intense."

Prodigy pro golfer she may be, but off the course she was a 17-year old looking forward to her prom night last May 18 in Ft. Lauderdale. Through Facebook she invited America's servicemen ages 18 to 20 to send a photo and note about being her prom date. She selected Mark Scott, a Marine.

She loves movies, particularly those with dancing. "I used to dance a lot, a shadow dancer with the mirror or in the shower," she laughs. "I love singing in the shower."

Thompson is very superstitious. She wears ladybug earrings and charms, and don't ask about Friday the 13th or spilling salt. Before her first win at the Navistar, waffles were her go-to meal, prepared by Valerie Perry at the Waffle House. In 2012,

Thompson again had the same meal daily, and Perry didn't take vacation so she could be on the job for the defending champ!

Thompson is clear and philosophical beyond her years. "I'm looking forward to the places I get to see and play," she says. "Getting to experience all this is amazing; hopefully I can win along the way."

Alexis Thompson

Ryann O'Toole

Ryann O'Toole took the college route before turning pro in May 2009, just after graduating from UCLA with a degree in sociology. In 2010, she grabbed two wins on the Symetra Tour. She was also a hit in Golf Channel's "Big Break Sandals Resort Show," which she calls "two weeks of my life that were really life changing."

The 5' 7" California beauty debuted on the LPGA Tour in 2011. "I love all Southern California sports—surfing, wakeboarding, skateboarding and snowboarding are my favorites.

Ryann O'Toole

When I got a scholarship to UCLA, I took their program over USC. I felt a better fit with the coach and the team."

It was during her LPGA rookie year that everything seemed to click. She was honored with a captain's pick for the Solheim Cup, and loved every moment. "It was a huge thrill," she says, "and my best golfing memory. I love the travel, seeing the world and the U.S. Ireland was very special during the Cup."

Being greeted by an elephant at her hotel during this year's Honda LPGA in Thailand was another hit, as was her trip to Australia, where she won. "I'll take my surfboard when I go back next year."

O'Toole loves discovering new places, but the 25-year-old San Clemente resident isn't a party girl. When she's not chilling at home she likes to go out for a drink or to have dinner at a local joint. When it comes to wine she favors Cabs and Malbecs, in beer she likes wheat beer, white ales and IPAs.

In addition to winning golf tournaments, her bucket list includes surfing in Costa Rica, an exciting balloon ride, eating her way through Italy, hiking Machu Picchu and Kilimanjaro, and bathing in an active volcano hot springs.

The Rankings

As of Dec. 10, 2012, this is how the American women stacked up in the Rolex Women's World Golf Rankings

It has been a long drought for U.S. women's golf—18 years since an American, Beth Daniels, won the Player of the Year award. But Stacy Lewis triumphed in 2012 with four wins and 16 top-10 finishes. No, she didn't win a Major; but she did tie for second at the Wegman's LPGA Championship and the Evian Masters (a Major in 2013) and took fourth at the Kraft Nabisco. She's ranked 24th.

Stacy Lewis

"I wanted to end that 18-year trend," emphasized Lewis, now in her fourth year on Tour and ranked No. 3, adding, "I know I haven't played my best golf yet."

At the end of 2012, 31 Americans were in the top 100, but some of the longtime favorites had moved down rather than up. Cristie Kerr, the first American to reach World No. 1 in 2010, was ranked 11th with her win at the Lorena Ochoa Invitational, while Paula Creamer lost seven places to finish at No. 12.

Cristie Kerr

Big-hitting Brittany Lincicome couldn't win this year and slid down to 18th. Angela Stanford finished at 20th and Brittany Lang was ranked 27th, up from 32nd. Teen queen and 2007 Kraft winner at 15, Morgan Pressl plummeted from 16th to 38th with only one top-10 finish.

When Michelle Wie graduated from Stanford, speculation was rampant that she would finally play the golf she seemed capable of since bursting onto the global golf scene. But in 2012 she fell from 17th to 56th.

Ranked 74th ending her fourth season, Vicky Hurst is still after her first W. Tall and bubbly 19-year-old Jessica Korda made the biggest move in the 2012 rankings, jumping up a whopping 233 places to 77th. She won the ISPS Australian Women's Open at Royal Melbourne in a grueling six-way play-off that included Lincicome and Lewis.

Watch out for USC star and four-year All American Lizette Salas, who had a superb rookie year in 2012. She's ranked 91st and mentored by her idol, legend Nancy Lopez. Ever-popular Natalie Gulbis slid to 94th, and Pepperdine graduate Danielle Kang had a good rookie season, finishing 105th. Another grad to look for is UCLA's Sydnee Michaels; she ended her rookie season ranked 124th.

Natalie Gulbis

America had a surge in 2012. U.S. girls grabbed eight wins, the most by any country. Lewis with her best golf still to play will be difficult to catch, but finally it is "Game On" for America's girls!

Childhelp Celebrity Golf Invitational

The annual charity tournament is a blast for players and a benefit to children in need

Cheryl Ladd and John O'Hurley

The 3rd Annual Childhelp Celebrity Golf Invitational, hosted by the angelic Cheryl Ladd and hilarious John O'Hurley, will take place February 8-10 at The Westin Mission Hills Resort & Spa in Rancho Mirage, Calif. The tournament donated dollar to support creative rehabilitation strategies that directly aid children in need. One such strategy is to pair recovering youth with abused animals, creating a therapeutic atmosphere of comfort, companionship and healing for both. The Childhelp Merv Griffin Village the Childhelp programs have seen the worst that life has to offer. They deserve the best that can be provided while they are in the care of Childhelp, and this annual tournament is one way to make that happen.

Billed as a "vacation with a vision," this year's Childhelp Celebrity Golf Invitational will bring together some of your favorite celebrities from television, film and sports. It all starts on Feb. 8 when each team will be paired with a celebrity offers players two days of unbeatable golf, a stellar celebrity list and three nights of fun-focused parties. The 2013 festivities include Mariachi's Fiesta Olé pairings party, Grammy Award-winner and country-music star LeAnn Rimes performing at the Golf Ball Gala and, to wrap it all up, the 19th Hole Awards Party.

Cheryl Ladd & Bruce McGill on stage 50's night

The tournament is definitely fun. But at its core is a very serious need: raising money to prevent a terrible problem. The fact is that every 10 seconds a child is abused, and each day in this country five children lose their life at the hands of an abuser.

Childhelp is a broad network of facilities and programs for abused and at-risk children. It includes residential treatment villages, foster care, group homes, mentorship facilities for inner-city youth, children's advocacy centers, a 24/7 national abuse hotline, and a prevention curriculum for students called Speak Up Be Safe, which is used in schools throughout the country. Most recently, the organization launched Childhelp Blow the Whistle on Child Abuse, a national prevention education program addressing abuse in youth athletics.

As one of our nation's most ethical charities, Childhelp uses 91 cents of each

has been in Beaumont, Calif., for over 30 years; it's just one of the organization's residential treatment facilities.

While facilities and programs vary, one thing remains true: The children that are in golfer. The tournament swings into action the following day. Golfers are encouraged to put together their own teams, and the tournament's five-player scramble and handicap system level out the playing field.

VP Dan Quayle and the founders of Childhelp Sara O'Meara & Yvonne Fedderson and #1 Popular radio host Dan McGrath

Steve Garvey

Tim Pade and Goldie Hawn

There are many charity tournaments throughout the season, but this is one you will not want to miss. It offers three incredible days of golf and parties based at one of the Coachella Valley's most spectacular resorts. It offers humor, the timeless talent of LeAnn Rimes, the camaraderie of new friends and old, and access to some of America's favorite celebrities.

Most of all, it offers the satisfaction of knowing that by participating, you are giving a child something he or she would never have received otherwise.

Robert Costanzo, David Naughton, Michael Dante, Alan Thicke

In the game of golf, gratitude might not improve your swing. But in the game of life, it is guaranteed to send your soul soaring like a perfect birdie!

Indian Wells Golf Resort

Renowned Big Break public venue adopts new
"unlimited golf" attitude with stay-and-play packages

No doubt about it, golfers planning their ideal stay-and-play vacation always envision plenty of time on the course. But at Indian Wells Golf Resort, even diehards on a mission to play their way through the day will find nirvana. With its new “unlimited golf” attitude, guests might begin with a complimentary twilight round upon check-in, followed by all-day play starting the next morning. “As much as you can handle, as long as there’s daylight,” says Director of Sales and Marketing Michael Tebbetts.

“It’s a beautiful oasis,” he continues, “a fantastic destination surrounded by the Santa Rosa Mountains and real close in. We have great weather year-round. We have 36 holes of wonderful golf, the Callaway Performance Center next door and four hotels—the Hyatt Regency Indian Wells Resort & Spa, the Renaissance Esmeralda Resort & Spa, Miramonte Resort & Spa, and the Indian Wells Resort Hotel—for a total of 1,600 rooms, all within walking distance.”

Among those adjacent properties, guests can indulge in three spas, seven restaurants and 19 swimming pools. Tebbetts calls it “everything you want for a vacation in the sun: golf, pools, great food and drink, and relaxation.”

Many people believe golf here isn’t available to the public, but that’s a misconception. “People think they have to stay here to play here, or that we’re private,” Tebbetts says. “But we are a public municipal venue owned by the City of Indian Wells (Calif.)” Guests of onsite hotels do receive tee-time preference—up to 90 days in advance.

Indian Wells is the only 36-hole public golf facility in the state named on a national Top 20 Best Places You Can Play list for California. It hosted Golf Channel’s “Big Break” series in 2011, and twice was the site of the PGA Tour’s Skins Game. “The golf courses have been top-ranked as the best municipal courses since they’ve been opened,” says Tebbetts. “Both are fantastic but very dissimilar. There is no housing, so it’s a real park-like setting with mature trees, really pretty with the best views in the Coachella Valley.”

The Clive Clark-designed Celebrity Course opened in 2006, followed by the Players Course the next year. “We call them beauty and the beast,” says Tebbetts. “The Celebrity Course is visually pretty, with lots of flowers and streams and waterfalls. If you’re here as a couple, you need to take your wife on the course or you’ll be in trouble. It has narrower greens that are more undulating than Players, and its forward tees are harder.

Indian Wells Clubhouse

"The Players Course runs 7,375 yards from the tips. That's the beast: 4,000 yards of three par 5s. It's a John Fought Course, more traditional desert style. It has big, yawning bunkers and fairway corridors, and the greens complexes are easier to putt—but first you've got to get to the green. You'll use every club in your bag."

The resort offers golfers a unique chance to spend time with Clark. "For our executive package, Clive takes three people to one of the private local clubs he belongs to, plays golf and has lunch and tells stories," Tebbetts says. "He's been around the block and is a Ryder Cup player. He's a fun guy."

The facility is managed by Troon Golf, which means guests can rely on certain standards including fantastic playing conditions and great quality products in the golf shop and in food-and-beverage offerings. "We have tournament-quality golf with reasonable prices, and we have warm, authentic member-of-the-family service," says Tebbetts. "That's what sets us apart."

IW Club at the Golf Resort at Indian Wells is a 53,000-square-foot clubhouse with a full-service golf shop, breakfast café and the IW Club Restaurant and Bar for lunch and dinner. Diners also enjoy a daily happy hour from 3-6 p.m., plus a weekly Sunday brunch—and an accompanying stunning vista that encompasses the Coachella Valley. "It's a destination for weddings at sunset with a really nice ballroom that seats 180 with its own terrace; it's a pretty spot," says Tebbetts. "Chef Chris Olson is well-traveled, a seasoned pro who turns out great food with quality and value. He's conscious of making sure there are options for vegetarians and those with special needs."

The club also features a rewards program that earns points redeemable for gift certificates with every credit-card transaction.

The Callaway Performance Center is one of 10 in the United States offering group and private lessons, as well as club fittings. There's a dedicated putting course, too. "It's a John Fought nine-hole, lighted putting course with real grass; corporate groups tie it into their golf tournament, and it's a lot of fun," says Tebbetts.

Desert Willow

By Pamela Cress

Offers a Journey Into Paradise

Discover this place where the score is secondary to the experience

There are many reasons Desert Willow Golf Resort in the Coachella Valley has been rated the No. 1 public-access course by Desert Golf Magazine for three years running, not the least of which is the setting. Like a grand majestic stage, the curtains that are the Santa Rosa Mountains open up to reveal a valley and a resort chiseled out of an evocative landscape.

The scenery alone is enough to rival paradise, but the resort's two very different golf courses provide their own version of Eden as well. Firecliff offers intriguing challenges while Mountain View appeals with an easygoing style.

Playing Firecliff is the stuff of golfers' dreams. "This is a traditional desert course, where you have to carry the ball 180 yards at times," says Bruce Nation, director of sales and marketing at Desert Willow. "But there's all kinds of plants and wildlife—roadrunners, red-tailed hawks, rabbits, coyotes—it can be kind of like Jurassic Park." And it's not all desert life. It's not uncommon to see a group of pelicans resting for a few days on their way to or from the sea. They know a good place when they see one.

So do golfers, and many of them favor the thrilling challenge of No. 17. "It's a good, tough, but beautiful challenge of a hole," says Nation. "It's got water on one side, a gorgeous view of the mountains on the other. It is so consuming and picturesque that you really don't mind if you don't do all that well on it."

Firecliff is a par-72 force of nature designed by Dr. Michael Hurdzan and Dana Fry, industry gurus of environmental course design, with assistance from PGA veteran John Cook. With the course full of natural hazards and water features, golfers will want to bring plenty of extra balls and a good supply of patience.

For a more leisurely day or to complete a rewarding 36-hole tour, patrons can also try the rolling hills of the par-72 Mountain View course, which has been rated among the top 50 best courses for women by Golf Digest for the past six years. This layout, a draw for all skill levels, incorporates the traditional Tiff-Dwarf hybrid Bermuda turf, Augusta white and desert tan sands, and strategically placed creeks. It boasts a collection of holes that flow together smoothly, yet each exudes its own personality. Because of the breathtaking surroundings, engaging layout and world-class amenities, it's easy to forget that this is a public course proudly owned by the municipality of Palm Desert, Calif.

Desert Willow has a superb selection of amenities both on and off the golf course. The clubhouse is an expansive 33,000 square feet; the terrace is climate-controlled; golf carts are fully stocked with ice, tees, towels, Uplink GPS and electronic scorecards. The electronic system allows customers to summon the food cart, or help is just a click away in case of emergency.

Desert Willow is also known for its sumptuous restaurant fare and entertainment opportunities. Drop by for the bi-weekly "Music and Dining Under the Stars" package, one of the best deals aficionados will get anywhere for $36; it includes an incredible buffet and music talents ranging from New Orleans jazz to pop music and rock. The music styles are expanding this year, so there will always be something new and different to excite the senses.

For those who are new to golf or want to improve their game, there's the Palm Desert Golf Academy, which includes personal video analysis, equipment overview, lunch and a round of golf over a two-day span. The academy also is available to members all year, because everyone knows that one's golf game is a continual work-in-progress.

Call the pro shop to get more information about sunrise, prime, midday and twilight rounds, as well as inventive packages such as the Double Eagle, which allows two rounds within a 14-day period.

Pete Carlson's Golf and Tennis Expo

Demo clubs by every major manufacturer and find the ones that are right for you

In early February, there is a mass demonstration scheduled for the campus of the College of the Desert. No, not that kind of demonstration. Instead of singing songs and carrying signs, these demonstrators will be clutching golf clubs of every variety and brand, supplied by "The Man" from all of the game's top manufacturers.

The 9th Annual Pete Carlson Golf And Tennis Expo is set for the College Golf Center in Palm Desert, Calif., Feb. 8-9. It will operate from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

This year's Expo will once again feature all—that is, all—of the major manufacturers onsite with their latest clubs, many of which will have just made their public debut at the annual PGA Merchandise Show the previous week in Orlando, Fla.

Trick shots by Joey O

A great majority of those manufacturers will have their tour fitting trailer in tow, along with all their launch monitors, video cameras and fitting wrenches, ready to custom fit any interested golfer.

Along with the major manufacturers, this year's version of Pete Carlson's "Golf-In" will have many of the same elements as the previous eight Expos, including sales on shoes, GPS units and other accessories. This year's event also features one of Palm Desert's resident golf legends, Al "Mr. 59" Geiberger, who will offer assistance with a short-game clinic each day, and trick shot artist Joey O will also be on hand to entertain and enthrall.

"It's the first time the general public gets to participate in a mass demonstration of all the newest equipment," says Carlson, who owns and operates his 10,000-square foot retail superstore in Palm Desert. "It's the perfect time to have it because there's a lot of buzz in the air and people want to come over and see what it's all about."

It's estimated that between 4,000 and 5,000 people attended last year's event, and Carlson believes there's no reason not to anticipate the same number or even more this year. Patrons can move from manufacturer to manufacturer and sample all the equipment by hitting full shots on the center's driving range.

Along with the clubs and fitting equipment, instructors will be on hand to offer quick lessons. There will also be clinics, demonstrations, live music, a snack bar, putting greens and kiosks with golf accessories.

If you intend to make the scene, parking is limited at the center, so the Expo will operate shuttles from parking areas at nearby Palm Desert Civic Center and the McCallum Theatre. Admission and parking are free.

To learn more call Pete Carlson's Golf and Tennis at 760.568.3263

Gotta Have It!

The latest on golf gear and products you simply must have

With this issue, Desert Golf Magazine is pleased to welcome Mike Conrad to give you the low-down on the equipment and gear you might want, whether you're a scratch player or a novice. Conrad is a golfer as well as an experienced equipment reviewer. If there's a must-have product in the golf realm, chances are you will find a review in these pages in issues to come.

In his own words Conrad says, "Welcome to Gotta Have Gadget! Over the past four years, I have reviewed golf products and other gadgets I believe golfers like myself would like to own. I test all the products I recommend, and I try to find some items you may not have heard of as well as those you have."

For me, there is clearly an off-season when it comes to golf. I am not one of the lucky ones who can golf year-round. But that doesn't mean I don't pick up a club in winter; rather, I utilize those months to fine-tune my game, practicing a series of drills at an indoor golf range. Trainers and training tools are always on my radar.

◀ "Butch Harmon About Golf, presented by Titleist."

When it comes to trainers, the name Butch Harmon is at the top of many golfers' lists, including mine. I start my off-season training by watching a two-DVD set titled, "Butch Harmon About Golf, presented by Titleist." What makes this DVD different than others is that it is not just Harmon teaching. It also features some of the top golfers in the game talking about what Harmon has done that has made them better golfers. The result is that it is more entertaining than most training DVDs, and it not only helps teach valuable skills, it keeps you interested. Harmon talks about all aspects of the game, shows some of the biggest mistakes that golfers make—and how to fix them. For a sneak peak of the DVD, take a look at butchharmondvd.com

Orange Whip Trainer ▶

The Orange Whip Trainer is more than its name suggests. It's also a great warm-up component to your golf game. One thing many golfers struggle with is lack of balance. If your swing is out of sync, you may lose your balance or the swing may feel awkward. The Orange Whip will help you train your core muscles for a proper swing—especially helpful for new golfers who often have no idea how bad their swing is because the only feedback they get is a poor shot. But swinging with the Orange Whip Trainer allows a player to see where his or her swing is off. In addition to helping players achieve balance, the weighted orange ball at the end of the club also helps them build a smooth tempo, which is key to a good golf swing. See the Orange Whip Trainer in action at orangewhiptrainer.com

Oakley Fast Jacket XL Sunlasse & Polo Shirts ►

Oakley Fast Jacket XL Sunglasses are simply cool. What's cool about them? They come with two pairs of lenses, one for extreme sunlight and the other for lower light. The lenses are easy to change so you will be ready for early morning, midday and late evening—all while looking fabulous! Designed to keep you literally cool are Oakley polo shirts. Beyond that—and the fact that they're stylish—there are three things I really like about Oakley polo shirts. First, they are designed with golf in mind so they don't hamper your swing. Second they have UV protection built into the fabric to help protect you from the sun. Third, there's the patented O Hydrolux moisture-management technology. Let's face it, you don't want to be the guy on the course who looks like he just took a shower fully dressed. Keeping cool is one thing, but looking cool is essential. For all that Oakley has to offer, head to oakley.com

◀ Izzo Golf SWAMI GPS

I have several different golf GPS apps on my iPhone, and I can't tell you how many times I leave my phone in the cart. I get out to my ball, reach for my phone and see it sitting in the distance in the cart. The Izzo Golf SWAMI GPS has solved my dilemma. This GPS device is a stylish wristwatch with 25,000+ pre-loaded worldwide courses. It gives you accurate data to the front, center and back of the green, and it holds a six- to eight-hour charge in golf mode to last through even the longest round. This GPS goes where you go, so you will always know the distance to the pin. Check it out at izzo.com

Towelmate Golf Towel with Germ Shield ►

In the realm of clever products, here's one golfers should definitely know about. The Towelmate Golf Towel with Germ Shield is more than just a towel; it's two towels in one—plus storage. In fact, it stores your keys, smartphone and wallet inside a functioning golf towel! Designed with two distinct sides, it features a top waterproof pocket with a storage area so your valuables stay handy and dry. The two sides of the towel consist of a "golf" side and a "skin" side. The golf side keeps your equipment clean and dry, while the skin side does the same for you. There are plenty of new towels out there, but these features make the Towelmate Golf Towel a Gotta Have Gadget for golfers everywhere. To see all the features and specs, log onto towelmate.com

Bridge the Gap

How to take what you learn on the practice range to the golf course

Anyone who has had a golf lesson has asked this question: “Why can’t I carry over what I learned in my lesson to the golf course?” Or, “How is it that I hit it so well on the practice range before the round, but then look and feel like a completely different player by the time I get to the first tee?”

Both of these scenarios are very common—and very frustrating—to all those who choose to play this game. But if you want to improve your performance on the course, you have to practice like you play.

Use Your Brain

It is common for golfers to “rapid fire” or “scrape and hit” on the range. This is when a golfer stands on a practice range and mindlessly hits one ball after another without any specific intention, target, routine or discipline. This has nothing to do with improving a motor skill or transferring practice into play.

Likewise, during a lesson the golfer generally grooves a rhythm under the tutelage of the instructor and can experience some success with this practice style, but it is rarely retained and carried over into play. Motor skills do not live in the muscles, they live in the brain. The neuromuscular system controls our movement patterns. If it does not have an opportunity to try and solve a problem on every shot—which club should I use? Should I hit over the water or lay up? How do I compensate for a downhill lie?—it is never really going to learn anything new. If you do nothing more than continuously hit one ball after the other without going through the process that you go through on the golf course, you will not transfer the skill from the range to the course.

Practice Times Two

Block and random practice are essential components of how a successful practice session is structured. Block practice is used when a new motor skill is being learned or improved. This might include various drills that can be intrinsic or extrinsic depending on the need and skill level of the athlete. Quality is much more important than quantity, and each swing should be done with purpose and focus.

Random practice needs to move beyond motor skill training and to simulate the environment of the sport as much as possible. In golf, every shot is different. It might be a different club, different lie on the ground, different distance or many other possibilities. When a golfer is on the practice range, he needs to simulate this experience as much as possible. Instead of hitting one ball after another with the same club to the same target off the same lie, he should alter every shot to make the situation unique just as if he were playing.

Here is how you can start to integrate random practice into your golf routine the next time you are on the practice range:

- Plan to hit 20 balls. However, you must pick a new target or new club each time, and you must go through your pre-shot routine as you do on the golf course.
- Score yourself from 1-5 on your commitment to the process—not the result of the shot. If you were fully committed, you get a 5.
- Keep your score for all 20 balls (no mulligans). Your goal is a perfect score of 100.

Your results of each shot might not feel as good as “rapid fire,” but the carryover to your golf game will be noticeable. If you truly wish to get better at playing golf, you have to sacrifice the reward of hitting one ball after the other on the range.

This is how a golfer bridges the gap from warming up to playing. But keep in mind that no skill can be mastered without practice and time. Please be patient with yourself, your coach and your game, and commit to the process.

Sun City Shadow Hills

By Jenell Fontes

Golf, Golf and Golf

Several inviting desert communities offer a focus on golf—with plenty of additional amenities and activities on the side

Sun City Shadow Hills

Whether you are looking for a second home or a primary residence, there are many lifestyle options to choose from, and one of the most desired is a home on or near a golf course. Each of the communities highlighted below has an excellent golf facility, as well as an alluring desert location that makes it possible to work on perfecting your game nearly 365 days a year.

If you are shopping for a property, it's important to remember the rules of the game:

1. Location, location, location
2. The property must also be a sound investment for your portfolio; don't overspend and do evaluate the resale value of the property.
3. Do your homework. Have a home inspection, talk to the neighbors, look at the appropriate reports and visit the property at different times of the day and week.

If you have any questions, call your favorite realtor for insights and advice. Smart real estate decisions lead to a happy home.

stances and lies that are beyond the normal golf experience for many players. Tiff Sport Bermuda roughs and fairways, along with Tiff Eagle Greens, provide a stunning contrast to the natural desert colors. The rolling fairways are just the right width, and medium-sized undulating greens demand accuracy if you're a birdie hunter. The practice facility includes a short-game area for groups or for one-on-one lessons, and there are two tee levels and a true-to-speed green. Of course, there's a fully stocked pro shop with the best of equipment and clothing, too.

"Residents here have the opportunity to enjoy golf, tennis, health and fitness, social activities, dining and many special interest activities at a price point that appeals to many," says Diane Williams, an agent with Windermere Real Estate. "It's an over 55 community, so at least one person living in the home must be over 55 years of age, and a large number of baby boomers now qualify to enjoy this lifestyle."

Sun City Shadow Hills was one of the last new-home construction areas to open before the real estate market fell, and there are now new homes to choose from as well. Williams says, "For those wanting a newer home with a more open floor plan, this community is a definite must-see."

The real estate trend in this area is up. Sales in Sun City Shadow Hills were up 3.5 percent in price and up 25.3 percent in total

This is definitely a community for golf lovers, and the championship course at Shadow Hills Golf Club, a layout by Schmidt-Curley Designs, Inc., is both beautiful and challenging. The "whale tail" configuration of some of the bunkers creates

At the time of this writing, there were 95 homes on the market with an average asking price of $354,543, about $175 per square foot, up from $155 in 2012. Recent options include a three-bedroom, four-bath home with a private pool and spa built in 2006; it listed for $659,000. "So it is a perfect time to buy in the desert," says Williams, "while interest rates are low and prices just starting to increase."

Though golf is at the heart of the community, many additional amenities also provide a wide variety of activities. The 35,000-square-foot Montecito Clubhouse offers full-service dining and a top-notch menu; indoor and outdoor pools; tennis and bocce courts; rooms for billiards, cards and other games; and an amphitheater. There's also a ballroom and meeting facilities for functions of all kinds. The community has miles of walking and biking trails and a dog park. The fitness facility features state-of-the-art equipment and a variety of classes, from power yoga to aqua fitness. There are also clubs and group activities focused around such creative pursuits as tap dancing and writing.

NEVADA Southshore At Lake Las Vegas

Southshore Club is part of the Lake Las Vegas Resort, which is set around a privately owned 320-acre lake 17 miles from the Las Vegas Strip and near to all the recreation that Lake Mead offers. It has a Jack Nicklaus Signature Course, seven-acre practice facility, clubhouse and full-service dining among its amenities.

The golf course, which debuted in 1996, is a 6,917-yard, par-71 layout with 88 bunkers, generous fairways and gently rolling greens. It is a visually stunning course with numerous forced carries over canyons and water. It's also challenging, but five sets of tees on every hole allow players to choose the level of challenge they want. Those wishing to build their skills can utilize the 4,000-square-foot practice facility with areas devoted to chipping, bunker play and putting; state-of-the-art video swing analysis and custom club-fitting are also available. The golf club features leagues, tournaments and player-development programs for both adults and juniors, and there's a fully stocked pro shop that can meet all your clothing, equipment and accessory needs.

The 28,000-square-foot Mediterranean-style clubhouse is elegantly appointed throughout, with panoramic views of the surrounding mountains and Lake Las Vegas. Member-only features include a library and locker rooms, and there are also areas ideal for nearly any type of gathering, including meeting rooms, a main bar and a large outdoor veranda. Banquet facilities can utilize the latest audio/visual equipment.

Anthem Lake Las Vegas

The club offers a variety of dining options, from cart service on the course and snack venues to the Montana Vista dining room with both indoor and patio seating. The menu features Continental and traditional American dishes, and the dining room is open year round for all three meals, including a luxurious Sunday brunch that shouldn't be missed. Members can create private events for any occasion as well.

Among the homes recently on the market in this gated community is a four-bedroom, four-bath residence listed at $1,095,000. "Popular aspects of this home include a gourmet kitchen, separate living and dining rooms, and a downstairs master," says Sharla Scharpnick with Windermere Prestige Properties. "The view looks out to the seventh hole of one of the outstanding private golf courses. In the distance, there's the lake surrounded by the mountains—a spectacular view, especially of the magnificent sunrises."

Anthem Las Vegas

The term "membership has its privileges" is decidedly applicable at Anthem Las Vegas. Christine McNaught, a certified short-sale professional, gives just a few of the reasons one might want to consider this prestigious community and all it offers. "Residents here can enjoy a club membership in addition to an equity golf membership that includes privileges on the spectacular Keith Foster-Hale Irwin-designed championship golf course. Members also have use of the clubhouse and the athletic club."

This gate-guarded community of 1,700 homes across approximately 2,000 acres is just 15 minutes from the Strip. Set at a 3,000-foot elevation, Anthem, which includes Anthem Coventry and Sun City Anthem, is blessed with sweeping panoramas of the city, Strip and mountains. The country club is the focal point of the planned community, and the golf course is its star. The par-72, 7,267-yard layout features bent-grass greens, waterfalls and dramatic terrain, and it offers five tee boxes on each hole to accommodate players of all levels.

An extravagant 45,000-square-foot clubhouse is where the action is, with a wide variety of amenities for community members and their guests. There is a 33,000-square-foot fitness center that includes nearly every machine or piece of equipment you could want, all in an expansive space with spectacular views. Outside, 13,700 square feet encompass pools, spas and sand volleyball, and there are tennis courts, walking trails and parks to support an active lifestyle. As for dining, there are both gourmet and grill venues, as well as spaces for special events and meetings. All of these amenities come with very reasonable association fees of under $300 per month, though golf is separate.

The desert and its vibrant communities are about location. But they are also about opportunity. If a new home is in your future, now is the perfect time to look into what's on the market. You could soon be enjoying the incredible desert lifestyle that so many have already discovered.

Rethinking Artificial Grass Landscapes

By Matt McKay

Forget what you think you know and keep an open mind

Admit it, you've thought it or thought about it. Whether it's at neighbor's home or a high school football field, you've looked at artificial grass and considered its cosmetic value. But you haven't quite been able to rationalize bringing it into your life for a number of reasons.

"It sure looks good," you tell yourself, "but it's gotta be super-expensive." Plus, you think, your backyard would have to be torn up for weeks, maybe months. And at the end, you'd have plastic grass instead of living grass, which can't possibly be "green," right? And what if little Sparky decides it's his new favorite place to go once you've spent all that money?

Even if you don't know the answer to all your questions or whether the problems you imagine would in reality be problems at all, it just seems easier to keep things as they are, with the patchy lawn and its flaws, watering, re-seeding and maintenance.

Or is it? Back Nine Greens, based in Palm Desert, Calif., would like to help you revise your thinking about artificial surfaces. In fact, the company has taken steps to address all of the doubts that potential customers might have about their products, and representatives will tell you how using those products can actually improve your desert lifestyle.

As for the looking good part, that goes without saying. Back Nine has installed custom surfaces throughout the southwest, and the company is capable of tackling jobs as large as sports complexes and golf practice facilities. But what will most likely catch your eye is what it can do for residential landscapes and backyards just like yours. As an added bonus, the improvement might actually help you become a better putter or even chipper, depending on how large your backyard is.

Costs vary depending on the thickness or lushness of the surface—think thread counts in linens. The more lush, the more expensive. Rodger Lantz, director of sales development for Back Nine Greens, says putting surfaces also require a certain amount of additional conditioning during the installation process, including a curing powder and a good "rolling" (just like on a real course). Size and accessories, such as boulders or other landscaping features, also figure into the final cost. But taken on average, customers can figure approximately $15 per square foot for their job.

As for the process, Lantz says there is a minimum of disruption to your life and your backyard, and that most jobs take anywhere from two to five days, depending on the size of the job and accessibility of the site. Back Nine also streamlines the pre-installation process during visits from company representatives who come with paperwork, samples and sketchpads to get the job moving.

"We talk with customers about the surfaces, and let them see and feel what they'll be getting," says Lantz. "We get a little background on the customer and their tastes, and then we look at each area. We determine what needs to be done in terms of irrigation systems, and we provide the customer with a sheet explaining what they can expect."

"After that, we measure, provide the customer with a sketch, double-check their landscaping requests, sign a contract and set a date for the installation."

As for being "green," well, no, you can't exchange gases with it, nor can pets or cows eat it. But it will help maintain water table levels, critical in the desert. That's right, no watering. For that reason, there are incentives offered by the state as well as some county and local municipalities that allow for installation rebates. Desert residents also get the extra benefit of not having to transition from Bermuda grass to rye grass every fall and spring to ensure the lawn is maximized year-round. Back Nine Green's surfaces are the same in October and in May.

And, of course, nothing is literally as green as the products offered by Back Nine. The earliest these surfaces begin to lose their spanking-new luster is 15 years, and they can last as long as 20. Over the lifetime of the surface, the savings in water and maintenance alone will likely have paid for the original surface and its replacement—with some significant coin to spare.

As for Sparky, try as he might, neither he nor his cat friend that also lives with you can reduce the value, optic pleasure or, in the case of putting greens, the reaction of the surface. They will remain colorfast and are designed with a special sand ingredient that repels such indiscretions, allowing both liquid and solid waste forms to be hosed into the nearest disposal point or container.

Unlike most other artificial surface companies, Back Nine Greens exclusively uses its own installers. The benefits of having an in-house installation unit are many, including pride of employment. Lantz believes that pride is manifested in every job the company does.

"Our installers work for us," he said. "We've trained them, they know what to do and they're proud of what they do. They look at their work like it's a work of art."

The Best of the Coachella Valley

Pacifica Seafood Restaurant

As the Coachella Valley's peak season transforms into a spectacular spring, the road to dining pleasures extends with variety and vigor across the desert region. And as readers already know, that well-paved path offers a particular wealth of activity—and taste—along Highway 111 and El Paseo.

Those familiar with the prime perch that was the former Augusta space on El Paseo will soon be able to enjoy the new Mitch's on El Paseo Prime Seafood (73951 El Paseo), scheduled for a mid-January opening. "It's one of the most magical settings that this area has to offer," says owner and desert-area dining vet Mitch Epstein of his eponymous endeavor. "It's got inside dining, outside dining, second-level dining and the mountain backdrops are 360 degrees."

"We've been remodeling and refreshing the inside bar area. It's going to have two 55-inch flat screens in the bar and two 40-inch flat screens on the side. It's going to be fresh and lively—that's the theme of the restaurant."

Along with a stellar wine list and Scotch selection, as well as a newly added cigar lounge on the upstairs patio facing El

Paseo, Mitch's will offer one of the region's most incomparable menus. "The most unique element that we're bringing to the table is our sushi master, James Holder," says Epstein. "He was born and raised in Japan and he lived there the first 21 years of his life. I don't think a restaurant has done that out here, where you can come in and

Also in Palm Desert but presenting a very different style is the redressed Tilted Kilt (72191 Highway 111), which has flourished since its late October reopening. Long on excellent lunch, dinner and drink deals, the Kilt is famously short on garb for its sexy servers. Dozens of taps pour regional and specialty beers to complement a menu replete with pub favorites.

Continue along the 111 to Alberto's Ristorante (71416 Highway 111), which offers one of the most intimate and personalized experiences in the area. Aptly lauded service, ample portions and a selection of delicious Italian dishes and flavors have long made this venue hugely popular. Pasta lovers shouldn't miss the homemade gnocchi or ravioli plates, while no fewer than 10 veal options greet the carnivorous.

The authentic Neapolitan pizzas at Piero's Pizza Vino (73722 El Paseo) in Palm Desert require but two minutes in a 900-degree, wood-burning oven, yet the unique flavors will stay with diners for many hours. Open daily for lunch and dinner and presenting an impressive list of beer and wine, Piero's is an ideal spot for a fun family gathering or casual date night.

When it's done, it will be perfect for the weather in February and March and to watch the sun setting."

Downing has also undertaken a remodel of the venerable Cliffhouse Grill & Bar (78250 Highway 111) in neighboring La Quinta, which he took over late last summer. The result is a reenergized desert glory for the restaurant.

"I'd had my eye on the restaurant for probably 20 years, since I first dined there in the early 90s," Downing says. "When we bought the restaurant, the exterior was great but the interior was dated. So we redid the bar and the kitchen and moved the restrooms from the front of the restaurant to the back, and that freed up space for our lounge where you can sit for our happy hour or a meeting."

In addition to the new bar space and refreshed furnishings, the Cliffhouse also offers an updated and expanded dinner menu, which includes the renowned Sugar-Spiced Atlantic Salmon so popular at Pacifica. "There aren't too many restaurants like this on this end of the valley," Downing says.

Agua Caliente

Casino Resort Spa

Vegas-style amenities and golf complement
Coachella Valley style in Rancho Mirage

Swimming Pool

When a resort's name translates to "hot water," it begs the question as to its origin. History shows that the ancestral lands of the Cahuilla Indians included Coachella Valley hot mineral springs, which the tribe considered sacred and magical. Spanish Conquistadors dubbed the Cahuilla the "Agua Caliente Band." The Cahuillas went on to operate Palm Springs' first bathhouse, attracting visitors from around the country to its healing waters.

Considering their history and deep connection to the hot springs, it's only natural that the Cahuillas named their modern-day great entertainment experience for our guests. In the summertime, we run the hottest club in the area and our pool party shuts down the town with dancing and contests."

The hotel features a stay-and-play package with golf at Indian Canyons Golf Resort, a 30-minute shuttle ride away. The golf venue began as a private country club attracting high-profile movie stars and U.S. presidents. "The North Course is a traditional flat desert layout that winds between houses (some originally owned by Walt Disney)," says Mervyn Posey, first-assistant pro. "What you see in front of you is what you get. It's great for those looking for a gaming complex Agua Caliente Casino Resort Spa, and a signature spa was a must. "The Cahuilla Indians take great pride in their heritage and they really went all out designing a top-notch spa," says Agua Caliente's marketing manager, Burton Gray.

The rest of the AAA Four Diamond resort is equally well thought out—virtually all phases of the entertainment complex have earned top awards, from overall design to casino amenities to the stellar onsite concert venue.

"The resort was newly built in 2008, with all the guilty pleasures of a four-diamond destination located in the heart of Rancho Mirage," says Gray. "A 16-story hotel is adjacent to our wildly popular casino. We have a gorgeous spa and pool complex with cabanas, and we're just seven miles from the Palm Springs airport, 130 miles from Los Angeles."

What makes Agua Caliente a must-visit? "The hotel rooms are spectacular and spacious," says Gray. "They are like a Vegas experience, just phenomenal with gorgeous walk-in showers featuring rain showerheads, and the views are spectacular looking over the San Jacintos. Employees take a lot of pride providing a challenging round on a throwback course." He calls the complementary South Course "more golfer-friendly with rolling hills. There are views of the canyon to die for, and the course's playability makes it a lot of fun. People get in line to play the course."

Presidential Suite

Golfers can choose their preferred pace of play. Posey says the North Course features a comfortable round for players with its 10-minute tee times, while South is characterized by a more brisk tempo with eight minutes between groups. Regardless of which course is played, visitors rave about the way they are treated by staff. "Our customer service is second to none," says Posey.

The Agua Caliente Casino features 71,000 square feet of gaming with Vegas slots and table games, including no-ball roulette. The resort's Players Club card earns points for gambling, spinning a wheel for prizes or discounts on hotel rooms, the onsite buffet or at the gift shop. Rewards are also good at sister property Spa Resort Casino in downtown Palm Springs.

"We get a lot of positive feedback and we do our best to provide a great experience for our guests," says Gray. "With this economy, entertainment dollars are important, so we want to give them the best time possible." That includes a lineup of concerts and entertainers at The Show. "It's a beautiful venue that seats 2,000—state-of-the-art. We're gearing up for the 2013 season with a number of special events. We're super excited Alabama is performing as they don't tour an enormous amount and getting that quality of an act for a venue our size is really a treat. Every seat is phenomenal and seeing Alabama in that intimate setting will be fun in February."

Acts have ranged from country to '80s rock to comedians, with performances by Heart, Sugarland, Reba McEntire, Margaret Cho and Lisa Lampanelli. "We run the gamut to try and provide a well-rounded entertainment calendar," Gray says.

Everything vacationers could ask for is all in one place. "There's no reason to leave, plus we're only a few miles from shopping at El Paseo, the desert's Rodeo Drive. There's always something to do," adds Gray. Midweek specials are plentiful, including on hotel room rates and spa treatments.

Luxury and power in one beautiful package

In this day and age you can have it all. That must have been what designers were thinking when they went to the drawing board for the BMW 650i. Take a look at the styling and power and you'll find that the best of BMW's brawn has been combined with the supple elegance.

The higher-ups in Germany are calling the 650i a coupe in the sense that it isn't a sedan, though it has four doors. They are suggesting that there's more to this machine than meets the eye, and they're right. The exterior lines are both aggressive and reserved. There's a Mohammad Ali meets Grace Kelly factor going on here. You know there's power and you can't wait to take her out on the town.

It may sound odd to say, but the first features you'll notice in the 650i are the seats. Yes, the place where you first interact with the option) you'll be staring at 60 from a standstill in 4.3 seconds. The twin turbo V-8 engine has enough power to hold its own among the big names in the class, and the 455 horsepower will have you looking for opportunities to punch it. You could stand the 650i up against the Jag XK or Porsche Panamera and it will easily win several rounds—perhaps the whole bout, depending on the judges.

In the luxury division, the 650i is every bit the equal to the Mercedes CLS or Jaguar. The Bang and Olufson sound system has a tweeter that rises out of the dash and sounds exquisite, while the interior leather and wood trim is coach quality in every way.

On the outside, the 6er is a head turner. A somewhat controversial matte finish takes the traditional clear coat off the market and simplifies the paint a bit. It's unusual but that's the point. The stylish lines and aggressive posture make onlookers take car hasn't been overlooked. The luxury-seating package is well worth the upgrade and makes it impossible to not dream about a quick drive to anywhere. You'll find that the controls are as intuitive as any on the market; in this car, you will not be confused about where to find the air conditioning or the radio. This may sound simple but plenty of so-called luxury coupes leave drivers stumped for weeks while they hire exploratory committees to find out how to sync their phone to the car's Bluetooth.

You'll have enough technology in the 650i to keep you well-cared for while not breaking you into a sweat when it comes to the simple things. Driver-assisted steering and breaking are nice features that give you a sense of control but are subtle enough to let you have the say so in how the car handles. You'll definitely notice a nice responsiveness when the 650i is in "sport" mode versus "comfort." You'll be glued to those luxury seats with your foot to the floor in sport mode. In comfort mode, enjoy a more relaxed ride that is still responsive without being punchy.

There's enough power under the hood to quicken the heart. Though the 650i weighs in at a hefty 4,300 pounds, the performance won't disappoint. With the xDrive (all-wheel drive notice. Few of your neighbors will have seen a 650 and that sparks conversation. Expect a slew of questions and a few whistles. Double your mystique by opting for the convertible. The sportiness factor rises even more with the M Sport package that upgrades to 20-inch wheels and apron covers that are distinctive and add to the feeling of exclusivity.

One caution: don't take your boss on a road trip and stick him in the back seat. While adults can manage a quick joy ride in the back, you'd be better off sticking your kids back there. BMW touts that this is a 4

+1 seater but the +1 straddles the middle consol in the back seat and is less desirable than riding on the roof of a Mini Cooper.

The 650i will set you back a bit. The retail price, loaded, is around $118,000 with the V-8 twin turbo. You can opt for a less expensive model by choosing the 350 horsepower six-cylinder engine and forgoing some of the accessories. But if you're in the market for a sports car that drives like a luxury vehicle, you'll want to give this shape-shifting beauty a look.

The 650i is the total package.

Out: navy, black and gray

Antigua Collection

On the golf course this spring, it isn't so much about what you are wearing as about the colors you are wearing. Spring fashion colors are blooming says Pantone, the global authority on color. Setting the standard for the design industry, Pantone bases its final decision of what's hot and what's not on the prominent colors, inspirations and philosophies showcased each year at New York Fashion Week. The "Pantone Fashion Color Report" serves as a reference tool throughout each year for the design community, fashion enthusiast, reporters and retailers. Whatever the hues du jour may be, it's then the designer's job to create a theme.

Tender Shoots, Grayed Jade and Lemon Zest are only a few of the colors on the Spring 2013 palette. A unanimous trend in this season's golf and resort-style clothing is a focus on colors inspired by white sandy beaches, abundant sunshine and tropical flora. Golfers take note: leave the blacks, navies and grays in the closet.

Industry icon Rick Martin of Martin Golf Apparel has created a collection that presents an incredible depth of natural hues across two distinct color palettes: Riviera and Costa del Sol. The colors may be inspired by two iconic coastal destinations, but there is more to them than a nod to vacation paradise.

"One of the fundamental philosophies that I have developed over a lifetime of experience in the apparel business is choosing colors that complement and flatter a variety of skin tones," say Martin.

The Classic Merino V-neck sweater and woven popover sports shirt are offered in both distinct colors groups. The beautiful and bright Riviera color grouping, named after the legendary French Riviera, stands out with aquatic lapis blue, brilliant carmine red, soothing aqua, gleaming lime and bold tangerine. The soft and elegant Costa del Sol palette captures the essence of southern Spain with maize yellow, lime grass, melon, pink and orchid.

Other notable styles in the Martin collection include the Solid Royal Oxford long sleeve button-down and the Palm Cove Stripe lisle polo. martingolfapparel.com

For those who like clothes that offer pops of color as subtle details, the Antigua collection is a must-have. "For Spring 2013, the focus of pop accent colors on less conspicuous fabrications throughout the collections shows off the styling and design features of the individuals garments," says Sean Gregg, director of product development for Antigua.

The pop color palette introduced last season for the Antigua men's collection includes six new invigorating colors: lapis, margarita, apple, melon, phlox and zest. Phlox is a color group of pinks while zest is a lemon-drop yellow.

As for the ladies, Antigua's palette for its women's collection is based on the most current trends in an overall market screaming color. Six hues define the line that includes the Kiss/Strawberry collection inspired by dreamy Caribbean sunsets; the Fountain/Sapphire collection inspired by the expanse of blue sky, water glistening in the sunlight and the crash of waves in the ocean; and the Pansy/Orchid collection inspired by a peaceful botanical garden.

Antigua continues to build on its innovation in fabrics, setting it apart from competitors. Desert Dry technology, for example, is an advanced moisture-wicking technology created exclusively for Antigua that absorbs and wicks moisture quickly and evenly. It achieves the most efficient evaporation possible, which keeps the wearer absolutely comfortable on or off the golf course. antigua.com

Need more color? Puma's tech golf shorts for men come in blue, cherry tomato and white. shop.puma.com

Tracy Lynn's warm orange golf short for women has an added splash with its flirty floral short underneath. traceylynnngolf.com

Style note: The length of men's shorts continues to be slightly above the knee, and ladies, skorts are still trendy but keep them short, not granny length.

Color, color, color is all the rage this spring, so dress with flare and dare to be noticed.

Animalier Collections
By Françoise Rhodes

Animals as Art Form

Roberto Coin Jewelry

These gorgeous, bejeweled creatures make a brilliant statement

The jewelry we wear tells a story of who we are, how we live, where we've been and perhaps even where we are going. Animalier collections, jewelry crafted in the shape of animals, help tell these stories with timeless pieces inspired by our beloved furry friends or exotic creatures we admire from afar.

The animalier art form is not unique to jewelry. It appears in many style and fashion collections. Roberta Pieri offers an animal print BiBag (hand bag), Dolce Gabbana has an Animalier Makeup Collection and Versace offers a Leopard Animalier Silk Foulard (scarf). If you Google Animalier collections, pages of information will appear with options to appease every price range, desired material, shape and size.

Few animalier collections, however, are as stunning as that of Venetian jeweler Roberto Coin, who has devoted his life to his boutiques is Peter Webster. Under his watchful eye, the shop on El Paseo in Palm Desert is a comfortable, friendly environment for all who visit.

Filled with light from the many windows and furnished with ample chairs and love seats, the boutique is designed to encourage customers to sit down and relax while perusing collections and deciding on the perfect piece to purchase. The staff is knowledgeable and, just as important, friendly. And while recognizing that every taste and budget is different, they also know that the perfect piece is waiting for each customer to discover and enjoy.

In 1966, Coin started "signing" his jewelry by hiding a small ruby on the inside of each piece. This tradition has become Coin's exclusive signature, a secret gift of good wishes dedicated to every woman lucky enough to wear one of his exclusive creations.

passion—innovative design. Each of Coin's pieces is a work of art that brilliantly combines elegance and creativity, the result of an ever-evolving experimentation with light, texture, color and pattern.

The animals depicted on these rings, bracelets, pendants and earrings are so stunning they seem to come to life as light reflects off precision-cut diamonds and other precious stones in the pieces. Set in gold, silver or enamel, the animals are part of an extensive menagerie that makes collecting the pieces addictive. Why have a scorpion bracelet and not a giraffe necklace? Why have to choose between the pink cobra ring and the leopard earrings when both might be your definitive style? It's hard not to want them all!

It is, however, easy to find them. There are Roberto Coin jewelry stores across the globe and from coast-to-coast in North America, including in Palm Desert, Calif. Success of this magnitude does not happen without an educated and loyal team. Partnering with Roberto Coin and overseeing all the North American

In Coin's Compilation of Letters he eloquently states, "Fashion should represent freedom; freedom for the person who wears jewelry and freedom for the person who creates it. Fashion should enhance the personality of everybody; it is an art, but the art of being different should increase the ability of today's women to feel more comfortable in their own role."
