Publisher's Notes

By Timothy J. Pade • pade@desertgolfer.com

This summer issue of Desert Golf Magazine features a revealing profile of Robbie Krieger, guitarist for one of the legendary rock bands of all time, The Doors. Krieger was the only guitarist The Doors ever had, and he wrote some of the group's greatest hits. What many fans don't know is that he was also raised in a golfing family and has played the game for much of his life. A longtime member of Riviera Country Club in Los Angeles, Krieger has been a fixture in many of the pro-am and charity tournaments throughout the desert. With only two original members of the iconic band still alive, we feel privileged to have had the chance to sit down and talk with him, and we're pleased to introduce this multitalented man to you. Please see our feature starting on pg. 12.

Also in this issue we remember popular professional golfer and broadcaster Ken Venturi. Venturi lived in Rancho Mirage with his wife Kathleen and was inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame shortly before his passing in May. Yes, he was a celebrity, but he was always gracious and friendly to those who saw him on our local courses and in our restaurants. His favorite dining spot in the desert was Castelli's, a popular Italian eatery beloved by many residents. A personal friend to Desert Golf Magazine, Venturi graced our cover in 1999. He was always a class act, a gentleman who loved to share stories of his friendships with everyone from President Bush to the caddies he worked with. More than anything, he loved to share the passion and joy he felt about the game of golf. The amazing life and career of Ken Venturi would fill a book. We have only a few pages, yet we hope we adequately captured the wonderful spirit and heart that made him so very special. All of us in this community will miss him dearly. Please turn to pg. 20 to learn more about one of golf's greats.

This summer started out hot, and in this issue we hope you enjoy our many suggestions for ways to stay cool—from a visit to Pechanga Resort & Casino (pg. 30) to our equipment column, Gotta Have Gadgets, which offers some intriguing ideas for cool products to use on and off the golf course (pg. 34). If staying cool at the pool is part of your summer ritual, check out our style guide showcasing the hottest swimwear (pg. 58).

If you hadn't yet noticed, we have recently featured golf course architect, former Ryder Cupper, local resident and now staff writer, Clive Clark, in our pages. Clark's features on area club and course design is an opportunity for us to share with you the intriguing and often complex elements of design that go into a layout—all from the perspective of a professional Tour player.

And we welcome Breitling Watches to our pages as a new advertiser. You can see these fine timepieces at Roberto Coin in Palm Desert, Calif. Breitling is also sponsor of the Ernie Els for Autism Foundation annual tournament, and we are proud to include this company and support the important work of the foundation at the same time. Please see our coverage of the Els for Autism Golf 2013 Challenge, starting on pg. 38. For more on Breitling and its superb watches check out our coverage of what's hot in jewelry starting on pg. 60.

We cover every aspect of the desert lifestyle we all enjoy, from jewelry, fashion and luxury automobiles to the personalities and places that make golf the wonderful game that it is. Our goal at Desert Golf Magazine is always to provide you with everything you need to embrace this lifestyle, and we continuously update our golf directories and club information to that end. We hope you will enjoy the wealth of information we've provided in this issue, and we thank you for your continued support—without it this publication would not be possible.

Jammin' On and Off the Course with

Robby Krieger

The legendary rock guitarist has a way with golf clubs, too

By Françoise Rhodes

In the 19 years that Desert Golf Magazine has been profiling celebrities, a trend has emerged: Musicians tend to be the golfers of the group. From rock to jazz, musicians overall carry the lowest handicaps when compared to the professional athletes and entertainment superstars we have profiled.

In this issue, DGM is inducting another instrumentalist into the elite group of musicians that rock the golf course—Robby Krieger.

Born in Los Angeles in 1946, Robert Alan Krieger had an ear for music. Early on he was taken with a recording of Peter and the

As family golf outings became a ritual in Krieger's life, his passion for music continued to evolve. Implementing an unusual finger-style approach to the electric guitar and an eclectic taste in music, Krieger caught the attention of keyboard player Ray Manzarek, vocalist Jim Morrison and drummer John Densmore. The four formed one of the iconic early rock bands, and The Doors' popularity spanned the globe for decades.

Fast forward to 2013. "I'm addicted to the game," admits Krieger, referring to golf. "But it's funny, when the Doors started up,

Dave Brock, The Doors; Robbie Krieger, The Doors; Don Felder, the Eagles

Wolf, and by the age of 10 he was listening to Fats Domino, Elvis Presley and the Platters on the family radio. That same year, Krieger made his first attempt at playing an instrument, but the trumpet was not his style. He moved on to playing the blues on his parents' piano with great success, only to transition to the guitar at age 17. He had found his instrument.

Guitar in hand, Krieger went on to become an American rock star and made his mark as guitarist for The Doors. He also wrote some of the band's best-known songs, including "Light My Fire," "Love me Two Times," "Touch Me" and "Love Her Madly."

Krieger also has the distinction of holding down No. 91, his ranking on Rolling Stone's prestigious list of the 100 greatest guitarists of all time.

But it's his golfing prowess that is at the heart of this story, and it turns out that the two passions thrived simultaneously.

"My Grandfather lived in Long Beach (Calif.) and my Dad and I would go there every weekend and play golf with him at Rec Park. I was about six or seven years old. We started on the par 3 and gradually moved over to the big course."

I put the clubs away. Golf was just something I did with family. During the years with the Doors, I guess I didn't have the time or the inclination to play except for once in a while with my dad. Then, after about 25 years, I was playing really bad with my Dad and told him I needed to go to the range and fix [the problem]. I did, and I was hooked."

Today, Krieger plays as much as possible and is a longtime member of Riveria Country Club in Pacific Palisades, Calif. "My Dad joined Riveria in 1956 and I joined in 1995. I've played a lot of golf at Riveria. I've never had a hole-in-one there, but I did have an eagle today at Annandale Golf Club in Pasadena." Currently his handicap is an eight; at one time he was a five.

Whether Krieger is traveling across the U.S. for work or play, the golf clubs go with him. A frequent visitor to the Coachella Valley, Krieger has played in the Humana Challenge, the Kraft Nabisco Championship and the Patrick Warburton Celebrity Golf Tournament for St. Jude Kids. He also has his own golf tournament, the Scott Medlock-Robby Krieger St. Jude Golf and Concert Classic, which is played in Moorpark, Calif. This annual event is held in August and combines a day on the golf course, 19th Hole Festivities and the Robby Krieger All-Star Jam Concert featuring Krieger and other musical guests and friends. This event has a waiting list of players, so sign up early (medlockkriegerinvitational.com).

As for his most exciting moment on the golf course, Krieger once again brings up the day's eagle. "Today when I got an eagle, hitting out of the sand trap at 175 yards using my Dad's old Diawa golf club, that was pretty exciting. I was playing with my teacher, too, and actually tied him on the back nine, which is something I don't normally do!"

Once the day's golf tale is told, it's time to find out who would be in the Rock and Roll Hall of Famer's ultimate foursome. Taking a moment to ponder, Krieger replies, "Arnold Palmer; Ben Crenshaw, whom I don't think got enough credit for winning the Masters; and Lee Trevino."

The Doors may be history in Krieger's life, but life is good. Enjoying his time on the golf course and regularly performing at events of his choice with different artists and his own band, Krieger is quick to sum up his life in one sentence: "Lucky!"

A 15-handicapper
vs.
a scratch player
can you predict who wins?

By Clive Clark

Would you rather be a 15-handicap golfer playing well or a scratch golfer giving all the shots? In this article we discuss the tactics and strategy of this scenario.

It goes like this. I take on my close friend Eddie Gall at the fabulous Tradition Golf Club in La Quinta. The course, which was designed by Arnold Palmer, is one of the best desert courses you will ever play. It's always in perfect condition, with its colorful shrubs, wild flowers and babbling brooks all contained within a magnificent mountainside setting.

Meanwhile, back to Eddie. He's an absolute demon off his 15 handicap. In spite of approaching the age of 83—he must be one of the few octogenarians who can still make a 90-degree turn—he strides at a brisk pace down the fairways. You talk about a man who is in good shape for his age and you're talking about Eddie. His secret? He walks everywhere and looks after himself. His game revolves around hitting the ball 200 yards straight down the center, and he has as good a short game as anyone in the club. In fact, his putting is exceptional.

As for me, I am in my 60s and playing off scratch. I drive the ball well at around 270-280 yards, although my short game is not as good as it used to be. So, as they say, the game is on.

The Clubhouse at Tradition Golf Club

Eddie is one of the most entertaining people you could ever hope to play with. There's always banter going on and everyone has a great time. However, playing against him is rather like crossing a cow field—you need to keep your wits about you!

Let's take the stroke-index 1 and stroke-index 2 holes; these are going to be my best chance on the 15 holes where I give him a shot.

The attractive third hole at Tradition Golf Club is stroke-index 1, playing 400 yards off the member's tee. Off the tee, I have the advantage because I can carry the large right-hand bunker, which has a 230-yard carry. This makes the fairway almost twice as wide.

Eddie knows that the greatest danger for him on No. 12 is going down the right and dicing with the right-hand bunker. He therefore chooses a more conservative line and hits towards the left-hand bunkers, which will make the hole play longer but is nevertheless a good decision. For his second shot, Eddie hits a 3-wood. There's added pressure as he knows he must make good contact with this straight-faced club to carry the well-placed baranca, which crosses the fairway and is one of the features of this hole.

We move one tee forward to Eddie's tee, and he sees the hole from a very different perspective. The hole now plays 375 yards; however, Eddie can't carry the right-hand bunker so he needs to hit straight to a much narrower fairway, which of course he does. But he is now confronted with another problem: There is a very deep hollow masking much of the front of the green. Even with a well-struck 3-wood, Eddie would have difficulty carrying it. Instead, he plays short and to the right of the green.

Meanwhile, much farther down the fairway, I have 135 yards to the pin—a 9-iron for me. The deep hollow is not going to affect me and I hit a really solid iron to 2 feet. Looking good!

Aaah but remember we talked about Eddie's short game? He pitches it to 6 feet, no problem at all, and holes his putt. It's a stroke hole for him, resulting in a net 3. And there I thought I was on to a winner, but just scraped in with a half! Mmmm, Eddie is grinning, perhaps even cackling.

The 12th hole, a 440-yard strategic dogleg right, is stroke-index 2. Again, Eddie and I see the tee shots from very different perspectives. There is a massive white-sand bunker down the right that seems to go on forever. But with a solid hit off the tee, I know I can just carry the third bay of the bunker, thus cutting the corner and substantially shortening the hole. I hit an exceptionally good drive, somewhere close to 300 yards.

Eddie Gall showing his putting skills again!

My next shot is a very solid 9-iron from 140 yards out that stops within 10 feet of the pin. Eddie is left with a 50-yard pitch for his third shot, which is right in his ballpark. He plays to 9 feet.

And then I just miss the birdie putt.

Do you think Eddie gives me a break? Not a bit of it. He's an uncannily good putter and knocks it straight into the back of the cup for a net 3. This is typical of Eddie and his extraordinary short game. I have had many games against him through the years, and he is one of the most difficult players to beat. I remember once playing against him when he had four gross 2s on his card! In another match at The Hideaway, I hit the ball flawlessly and shot 65. Believe it or not, my partner, Kelly Sims, shot 72 gross off his 10-handicap that day. Unbelievably, we lost to Eddie and his partner by one hole.

The final result of our match at Tradition was that I was round in 68 and lost to Eddie 1 down. My partner, Tom Gloy, a 4 handicap, and I also lost 1 down to Eddie and his partner, David DellaPenta, president of the club who plays off a 2 handicap.

David DellaPenta, Tom Gloy, Eddie Gall and Clive Clark

The lesson? One day I will go on the prowl to find less skilled opposition!

Good-bye,
Ken Venturi
A golf great is remembered

By Christine Loomis

He will be remembered as a PGA Tour champion who won the U.S. Open at Congressional Country Club in 1964.

He will be remembered as a passionate, knowledgeable, consummate professional who was the voice of golf for CBS Sports for 35 years—longer than any broadcaster of any sport.

He will be remembered for his induction into the World of Golf Hall of Fame just days before he passed away in May at the age of 82.

Yet the things that people did not know about Ken Venturi are arguably his greatest legacy, and his commitment to philanthropy tops that list. He helped many organizations and individuals over the years, and he never sought to gain publicity from that. John Cook, longtime Tour pro whom Venturi mentored starting when he was a teenager, called his friend “the biggest philanthropist in golf history.”

Jim Nantz, Venturi's CBS broadcast partner for 17 years, noted that Venturi helped build a home for abused women and children in Florida, worked with blind people and traveled to Ireland to aid mentally challenged children. “Kenny was emphatic about not getting publicity for it,” Nantz said, “but his life was dedicated to philanthropy. He moved mountains and people didn't know that about him.”

It wasn't just friends and colleagues who saw him that way. When asked what he loved about his father that wasn't seen by most, Tim Venturi said, “The way he treated people who were not as fortunate as he, for instance, seeing a person who was visually impaired and finding a way to pair him up with a guide dog. He would be the first to help someone; but more than just offering a monetary donation, he would find a long-term way of helping—this could be anyone that he ran into, even while out at dinner.”

One blind man who survived the attack on the World Trade Center with the aid of his dog, who led him down 71 floors in the North Tower to safety, knows exactly what it means to have been helped by Venturi. He was a beneficiary of the Guiding Eyes Classic, and at a gala for the organization he told his story, ending by saying, “This dog came from Ken Venturi.”

The path Venturi took from golf champion to revered broadcaster was, in almost every way, surprising. He had been proclaimed an “incurable stammerer” at the age of 13. Experts believed he would never speak and told his mother so. But Venturi was not afraid of challenges and he had a knack for turning them into successes.

He took up golf because he could do it alone and didn't have to talk, working on his game until he was good enough to compete. He took on the challenge of learning to talk, and worked at it until he was good enough to go on national TV as an announcer. Undoubtedly his most memorable moment as a Tour professional came in 1964 when, in spite of incredible physical difficulties, he won the U.S. Open.

The day was brutally hot and it wasn't one round of 18 he had to play but two. With temperatures close to 100 and oppressive humidity, he struggled through the first round. The doctor told him not to play the second round, but Venturi pressed on. To keep an eye on his patient, the doctor followed him around the course, providing ice cubes, tea and salt pills to keep him going. Eventually, an exhausted Venturi sank a 10-foot putt to finish at 70, beating his nearest opponent by four shots. He was so weak at that point that he couldn't even reach into the hole to get his ball, so Raymond Floyd, his playing partner, did it for him. It was a moment that brought many who saw it to tears, and a moment that showed the true measure of the man that was Ken Venturi.

Many of the greats from the world of golf paid tribute as soon as they heard of Venturi's passing, including Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Sean McManus, chairman of CBS Sports. All lauded Venturi for his abilities as a golfer and a broadcaster, but it was his character that impressed them more, and his true friendship they will miss most of all. As Nantz put it, "He was one of the finest gentlemen the world will ever know and one of the greatest friends you could ever have. He was a deeply principled man with a dynamic presence. He exuded class."

Of the many tributes that appeared in magazines or newspapers or were posted online, one stood out, and it had nothing to do with golf. "Ken Venturi was a hero to people who stutter," the man wrote. "Venturi inspired countless young people who stutter to not let their speech hold them back. He was a spokesperson for The Stuttering Foundation, and the first person on their list of Famous People Who Stutter." In being courageous enough to put his name on the list, he led the way for others.

The man definitely had a fun side, too, and one of Tim Venturi's great memories involved a drive that may have pushed a few limits. "I remember as a child that my dad loved cars and driving. One memory I have is driving across the San Mateo Bridge in the Shelby Cobra 427 that he loved. We were going the speed limit—times 2! After passing the other cars, Dad said, 'We're just blowing the pipes out,' adding, 'Never look back Son, and whatever you do, don't tell your mom!'"

Venturi is survived by his wife Kathleen and two sons, Tim and Matthew. He also leaves behind a legion of colleagues and friends in the California desert. When he was elected to the Hall of Fame he said, "The greatest reward in life is to be remembered."

If so, he is a highly rewarded man, and not just remembered but also deeply missed.

Job of a Lifetime

After helping College of the Desert fund and create its golf academy, Tony Manzoni discovered his true life's calling.

It seems as if it was just yesterday. Following his usual morning routine, Tony Manzoni picked up his local newspaper and read through the headlines. As he drank his coffee, one item stood out from the rest: Palm Desert's College of the Desert (COD), a two-year community college, was interested in developing a state-of-the-art golf academy.

Manzoni was intrigued. He quickly began thinking of individuals he could contact who would be willing to donate and help fulfill COD's vision.

His list was quite long. After all, he was one of the original founders of Callaway Hickory Stick, now globally recognized as Callaway Golf Club Company, and throughout his career in the industry he had met hundreds of executives and golfing professionals. Sure enough, he found donors and, with assistance from friends and former colleagues, COD's golf academy was finalized in 1987, with more than $4 million raised.

Known officially as the College Golf Center, the academy presently offers two-year associate degree programs in golf management and turfgrass management. Additionally, students can focus solely on core vocational courses and receive a one-year certificate of achievement. With a full driving range, two putting greens, a chipping and pitching area, and a club-repair shop, the academy was designed with up-and-coming golf instructors in mind.

As the academy was developed, Manzoni was initially asked to serve as a full-time golf-management instructor.

"When I decided to help COD create and fund its academy, I thought I would work for the college for two or three years," Manzoni says. But then he was offered an opportunity he could not resist: to coach the men's golf team. "Once I started teaching and became the men's golf coach, I knew I had found my calling. There is nothing I have enjoyed more than educating and mentoring young people."

Manzoni has worked for the college ever since, serving as head coach of the men's golf program for 20 years. Under his leadership, the COD Roadrunners have captured the Foothill Athletic Conference championship every season, extending their streak to 26 consecutive years this spring.

"Since it is impossible to create a dynasty in a two-year school, our record is really special," Manzoni notes.

With an incredible six state championships, as well as five southern California regional championships and 39 conference championships since 1965, COD is arguably the most successful men's golf program in the entire Foothill Athletic

Coach Manzoni and his awards from the last 26 years

College of The Desert 2012 State Champions Team

Conference. The team's longstanding tradition of achievement continued this spring as the Roadrunners tallied 14 top-ten finishes in 14 tournament appearances. In fact, 10 of those top-tens were victories.

Although COD fell short of its preseason goal of capturing the state championship, the team showed its true potential through consistency and low scores. And, as luck would have it, most of the team's top performers, including 2013 MVP and seasonal scoring average leader Casey Sullivan, will be returning next year.

"Looking ahead to next spring, a majority of my players will come from this year's freshman team, including each of my top four scorers," Manzoni says. "And I'll also be recruiting some local and out-of-state high-school graduates."

Last year's squad included 17 members, 12 of whom played on a regular basis. Each of the top 12 scorers has maintained a 4 handicap or lower. But individual skills are only part of the picture. "To play on my team, each member must be a team player. We win as a team and we lose as a team," Manzoni says. "Camaraderie and chemistry are the foundations of a winning team. Without them, teams will not be successful, regardless of how much talent the members have."

With these foundations firmly in place, the coach believes his team has the ability to capture a seventh state championship next spring. "If the players work hard this off-season, play intellectually rather than emotionally and focuses on team chemistry, they will contend for the state title," he says.

While reflecting on his career with COD, Manzoni recalls the morning paper that forever changed his life, the reading of one article that resulted in a quarter-century of leadership, education and the job of his lifetime: preparing students for life after college.

"Golf is a great teacher of life lessons. My time with students, teaching life lessons, is my greatest reward," Manzoni says. "To have an opportunity to guide students in the classroom and on the course, while also mentoring them in other aspects of life in general, has been very rewarding to me."

An Altitude of Excellence at the Pine Canyon Club

serenity, dramatic scenery and superb golf

During the ascent to Flagstaff, you start to forget the world. The arrival at Pine Canyon Club is where you begin to remember yourself. "Upon arrival, you feel a sense of tranquility," says Taber Anderson, CIO of The True Life Companies, owner of Pine Canyon. "You feel like you're way out in the country amid the wild pines and rolling hills of Northern Arizona. It's captivating, and it draws you in as you draw near."

Less than two hours from Phoenix, opulent home sites, condos and luxury lodgings at private Pine Canyon (some available for short-term and seasonal getaways) complement a host of property amenities that please both mature sensibilities and family-oriented residents. Not only is the location superb for its defining geographical features, including the soaring peak of Mount Humphreys and the high-desert environs of Coconino National Forest, the weather is divine—an average of 27 degrees cooler than the desert floor. Such cool confines are highlighted by the Jay Morrish-designed championship golf course recognized by Golf Digest as the 7th-ranked course in golf-rich Arizona.

"There's no question it's a challenging course, but I'd also say it's very fair," Anderson says. "It's not 'tweaked-up,' so to speak, just for the sake of making it tough. It's interesting because it's a unique blend of length and altitude, and each hole presents its own set of challenges."

While ball flight is increased thanks to the 7,000 feet of elevation, putting surfaces require ample grounding for a player to score. "It's a shot-makers golf course," Anderson continues. "I think it's fairly forgiving off the tee, yet I'd rate the greens from fairly difficult to very difficult at times. The green sizes feel generous and the surfaces are incredibly manicured, but there's a lot of undulation so you really need to study the breaks."

After experiencing the mesh of forced carries, rolling elevation and winding water features, players arrive at the course's bet-setting, diminutive 19th hole. Situated on an island green, the extended finisher is short on distance and long on closure.

"More money trades hands there than the rest of the golf course combined," Anderson notes with a laugh. The 35,000-square-foot clubhouse is a multifaceted, handsome venue for players and non-golfers alike. Dining, cocktails and a 1,700-bottle wine room serve on par with an abundance of outdoor views, while the lower-leveled fitness facility and intimate spa offer revitalization and relaxation.

Adjacent to the clubhouse and nearby tennis courts is the ever-active Camp Pine Canyon, where children enjoy a host of activities from arts-and-crafts to organized games and sports. In addition to a full-size lap pool (with water slide), there's also a kid's pool and waterside café, giving families the ability to sun, swim, dine and recline in a controlled, carefree environment.

Trout Creek Park is a nexus of recreation and sporting activities for those who want to revel in the outdoors. It features a children's playground, barbecue grills, catch-and-release fishing and a dog park.

A host of trails winds across the property and cuts through greater Flagstaff, providing opportunities for further exploration. "The hiking and biking are outstanding," Anderson says. "There are trails throughout the community that are consistently being utilized by the property owners and members. There's also a circular path running throughout the entire community that intersects with various streets while you walk through the trees."

After a day full of adventure, play and a multitude of leisure pursuits, residents and members can enjoy the exquisite solitude of Pine Canyon. The stars above and the company of friends and family are an added bonus.

"There's a real calming effect here," concludes Anderson. "It doesn't feel crowded; it just feels like you can kick-back and relax, find yourself a comfortable chair and take it all in."

Indeed, you can.

Pechanga Resort & Casino

There are so many ways to experience all that Pechanga offers

Journey Hole No. 6

Hotel bar

Pool cabanas

Standing on the back tee on the 440-yard, par-4 No. 6 at the Journey, it hits you. This is California. It's just what you wanted when you booked your stay-and-play at Pechanga Resort & Casino in Temecula. From this elevated tee, one can see beyond the terraced housing dotting the hillsides, out to the surrounding mountain ranges. It's the quintessential Golden State view, and just one of the highlights of the round and your vacation.

Pechanga opened in 2002, and the "newness" of its presentation is still obvious. From its stacked-stone-and-glass California contemporary architecture to the fresh smells only newer buildings possess, it's an experience for the senses.

It's hard to say which of Pechanga's attractions are most popular. It could be the slick, expansive guest rooms. It could be the massive casino, featuring every game and special room gaming aficionados desire, including a high-limit salon. The RV park is perfect for those guests going mobile, and Spa Pechanga provides quintessential pampering. Or maybe it's the four entertainment venues that have the most attractive draw.

But standing on the No. 6 tee and taking it all in, it's hard to deny that the Arthur Hills-designed course is the resort's recreational crown jewel.

At 7,219 yards from the back tees, Journey at Pechanga could offer cart rentals just to give resort guests the pleasure of driving 18 holes via the cart path. Fortunately for golfers, that privilege is theirs alone. And the ride, or journey, is definitely part of the experience on this course that has been honored three times by Golfweek and once by Golf Magazine. The pro shop, too, has its own awards. It has twice earned Southern California PGA Merchandiser of the Year honors.

Journey is laid out across boulder-strewn foothills and architect Arthur Hills had to make compensations for the mountainous terrain and sacred tribal land. The two constraints created a complicated situation for the architect and construction team, and also forced their hand when it came to connecting greens to tees. While the ride is part of the experience, some purists might be unhappy with the prospect of cart-only golf and the need for extended cart rides from one hole to the next. But the design team was betting that many of the tee (and green) locations are so spectacular that critics would literally see beyond their reservations. And they do.

Players can get into the flow of their round at the course's practice facility, where warm-ups include hitting onto greens surrounded by bunkers and cut to course height in order to realistically simulate on-course conditions and play. It's also advisable to spend time at the three large practice bunkers, as it's a big ask to go through an 18-hole round here without having to extricate oneself from the ample on-course bunkering.

Hills' design takes golfers from the valley floor to the mountainside above, rising early in the round before flattening out somewhat across the middle holes. A dramatic final ascent completes the experience. Among the highlights along the way are the dramatic green contours on the par-3 No. 3; the ascent and eventual tee shot from No. 6, which features a 175-foot drop to the fairway; the well-positioned oak in the fairway on the 330-yard No. 7; and the elevated tee experiences on No. 8 and No. 9, a 220-yard par-3 and 574-yard par-5, respectively.

The course rises to another heightened crescendo on the back nine, flirting with Pechanga Creek and utilizing the course's only manmade water hazard on holes 15 and 16 before shooting into the skies for the dramatic finish on the 200-yard par-3 No. 17 and 442-yard par-4 No. 18.

When the round ends, there's no need for golfers to feel as though their day is done. Rather, it's time to visit Journey's End restaurant and bar, where the sunken-bar service area opens up the mountain vistas for patrons. It's a comfortable spot to enjoy a post-round libation, and it also serves as a venue for weddings and receptions.

The guest rooms, with their Temecula Valley views, are perfect for relaxing and showering up, but Pechanga is not the place to indulge in room inertia. The 200,000-square-foot casino awaits downstairs with all the games you know and love, and if relaxation and recuperation is your goal, the spa has everything required. There's also the potential for big-name entertainment at Pechanga

Theater, and the top-floor Eagle's Nest and sultry Cabaret Lounge offer stylish options for capping the day. Tomorrow, another journey begins.

The latest on golf gear and other products you simply must have

By Mike Conrad

Let's face it; golfing in the Desert can be HOT! So why head out to play in Las Vegas or Scottsdale come July? First, the heat doesn't bother me. Second, I go prepared to stay cool! As a "Gadget Guy" I am often asked what I pack to keep cool, and this summer edition of Desert Golf Magazine is the perfect time to share my secrets. Some of these items I keep in my golf bag, some are waiting when I get home.

Chill Skinz

The Chill Skinz is a towel designed to keep you cool. Not only is it great for golfers, runners, tennis players and any other summer athlete, it is also great for any hot day. Simply wet the Chill Skinz with cold water, squeeze out the excess water before you leave and slip it in your bag. When needed, take the Chill Skinz out, shake to activate the towel and apply it to the back of your neck (or other heated areas). When activated, the towel drops to about 20 degrees cooler than the outside temperature. Check it out online at chillskinz.com

Cool Off

Another cool product is Cool Off. You can easily store this handy little wipe in your golf bag, backpack or purse. Its 17 natural herbs help keep the cool feeling going after the initial application. Whenever you need a quick chill, simply open the Cool Off pack wipe and feel the relief. You'll be amazed at the coolness this tiny package provides, and the handy size means you can easily fit several of these in your pocket to last the entire day. For more information on Cool Off, log on to thequickchill.com

Unburn Sunburn

If you do happen to get burned, you should check out Unburn Sunburn relief. Heck, that's just fun to say. Take it from a true Irishman, I know what works on a sunburn. Unburn is formulated with 2.5 percent lidocaine to provide fast pain relief (remember the TV show Emergency? Those guys prescribed lidocaine for almost everything!). Unburn Sunburn relief is made by Water-Jel. waterjel.com

Brush on Block

Being Irish, I can get a sunburn under a 100-watt light bulb. I could probably use SPF 1,000,000 and still get a burn. We all know we should use sunblock, and we typically spray on gobs and gobs before heading outside in the morning. The key, however, is what you do later in the day. I found a product called Brush on Block. This isn't your normal sunscreen. As a matter of fact, it looks more like a make-up brush than sunblock and its design is one key to its success. Think about the times you've had sunscreen in your eye, and how much it stings and burns. With Brush on Block, you brush it on as if you are applying make-up (guys, just accept this as fact). With the easy-apply brush, you avoid getting sunblock in your eyes, and the sunblock doesn't run when you sweat. Since it is made with minerals, you hardly know you're wearing sunscreen. Not only is this perfect for around your face and neck, it's also a bonus for guys like me with thinning hair—it easily covers that bald spot! Women can keep Brush on Block in their handbag, men can slide it in their satchel (Indiana Jones has one) and keep one in their golf bag as well. That makes it easy to continue applying it throughout the day as necessary. For all of the SPF facts and mineral information, go to brushonblock.com

Margaritaville Cordless Frozen Concoction Maker

When it comes to frozen drinks, I'm a loser. The blender never seems to chop the ice right or the beverage-to-ice ratio is off. Fortunately, the brainiacs at Margaritaville have made me a better bartender with the ultimate Margaritaville Cordless Frozen Concoction Maker. While I initially hesitated to call it a frozen concoction maker (a moniker relating to Jimmy Buffet's famed song around which his chain of restaurants and associated products have been built), there is no way I can call it a mere blender. First, it runs off a heavy-duty 18-volt NiCd battery, so it shaves ice and perfectly blends ingredients to create up to 60 restaurant-quality frozen drinks on a single charge. Its rugged, portable design makes it easy to take poolside, out on a boat, tailgating or anywhere else you can think of. Here's how easy it is to make your favorite frozen beverage: First, place the ice in the top ice holder; next, mix your favorite beverage in the shatterproof pitcher; finally, select for one, two or three glasses and hit the button. The Margaritaville Cordless Frozen Concoction Maker does all the work for you. It's powerful, easy to use and so far I have yet to outdrink the battery! This is a gadget that I have been personally testing every weekend this summer—and it's paradise unplugged! To get your own for your next 19th-hole celebration, visit margaritavillecargo.com

Finally, I want to point out that, although cool, none of these products are a replacement for good hydration. It's especially important during the summer that you drink plenty of water throughout the day. Then, keep the above products on hand to protect you from the sun, cool you in soaring temperatures or relax you at day's end. Ahhhh, summer.

Els for Autism

2013 Golf Challenge

By Susanne Kemper

Be part of this remarkable effort to raise money and awareness

Els and son Ben

At the Sony Open several years ago, Ernie Els launched the Els for Autism Golf Challenge. Those in attendance were impressed with Els' dedication, commitment and courage in the face of learning that his son, Ben, had been diagnosed with the disorder. Ernie and Liesl Els have gathered support from across the golfing globe for this cause, not only raising substantial funds—over $4 million—but also increasing awareness and understanding of autism among the more than 13,000 donors and millions of people across the world.

It is estimated that autism spectrum disorders now affect one in every 88 children to varying degrees, making support for these children and their families crucial.

The 2013 Els for Autism Golf Challenge series kicked off April 2, World Autism Awareness Day, at The Floridian National Golf Club in Palm City, Fla., and concludes at a two-day grand finale, Oct. 13-14, in Las Vegas with Els and his PGA Tour friends. In between, the Challenge will be played on some of the greatest courses in North America, including Trump Doral, Shaughnessy Golf &

Ben tees up for Els

Country Club, Royal Montreal Golf Club, Troon North Golf Club, The Broadmoor, Baltustrol Golf Club, Hazeltine National Golf Club, several Trump National Golf Clubs, and Harbour Town Golf Links.

Sponsors include Breitling USA, Callaway Golf, RBC, SAP, The Trump Organization and Wine Spectator.

Teams are assigned their own web page, enabling individuals to pledge funds and support to a specific team. Non-golfers and those unable to participate in a super regional event can join The Gallery Club. Prizes galore are on offer from the many generous sponsors pushing for increased fundraising success.

All Challenge proceeds benefit the Els for Autism Foundation's funding of a state-of-the-art Center of Excellence, which will combine the vital components of education, medical and other professional services for patients with autism and their families. The goal is for the center to become a hub for a global digital-learning program that will make therapeutic best practices available to children and families touched by autism. The groundbreaking, scheduled for 2013, will focus on creating an academic village offering a combination of traditional educational resources, state-of-the-art technology and specially designed spaces to inspire creativity and individuality in children on the autism spectrum.

The Center's global mission includes facilities for international visiting scholars and researchers, adding to offerings of best practice in education and therapy.

There are many ways to support the efforts of Ernie Els and the millions of families affected by autism. To learn more about the Challenge series, go to elsforautism.com.

This year, Breitling has created a spectacular limited-edition timepiece for Els for Autism. Produced in partnership with Ernie Els, it is up for grabs as a hole-in-one prize during the Golf Challenge series of events.

Making a hole-in-one not your forte? Watch-lovers can guarantee wearing this stylish timepiece by purchasing it directly from Breitling boutiques or by contacting the Els for Autism team. Don't delay; just 88 numbered watches have been produced, underscoring the statistic that one in every 88 children is affected by autism.

Real Estate Recovery or New Bubble?

Geography, in part, determines the answer to that question

Home prices continue to rise, money is cheap and accessible, inventory is beyond low and in many communities we are still selling under building costs. Which begs the question: Is this a bubble or true strides to a housing-market recovery?

Trulia economist Jed Kolko says that when we compare what traditionally drives home prices, such as rents and incomes, the overall housing market is still undervalued by about 7 percent. This, of course, is a big improvement from the bottom of the downturn in late 2011 when prices were undervalued by 15 percent. However, Kolko notes, prices are far from the peak of the housing bubble in 2006 when homes were overvalued by 39 percent.

Right now, sellers are in the driver's seat; many properties that are priced well are actually selling with multiple offers and above list price. As a realtor, it is very hard to ask buyers to put in offers above list price, yet that is what it might take to make the deal. Because the overall real estate market has jumped so quickly, some properties are still based on the comps of three months ago and those are the ones that are now the "deals." The bank-owned "shadow inventory" still has not showed up to the party, and I believe we will see more of this trickle effect. Many short sales are no longer as short due to the rise in overall pricing, and banks are continuing to improve the loan-modification process and approve more loans to keep homeowners in their homes.

CoreLogic recently reported that, "U.S. home prices jumped almost 11 percent in March from a year earlier, the biggest gain since the height of the real estate boom in 2006." But values are rising faster than incomes, an indication that prices may fall in some cities once higher mortgage rates erode affordability.

The hardest hit markets are now the fastest in escalation mode. Much of this is because homes were so undervalued. And even with 22-percent increase over last year, we are still under building costs in many areas. It is a very important to distinguish the numbers of an 11-percent overall increase, keeping in mind that this is a general number only and the recovery is geography- and price-sensitive. For example, areas that were hardest hit may see a 20-27 percent increase over last year in the lower end of the inventory, yet the high end may continue to see little movement or recovery in pricing.

That said, for some buyers, this is a good time to be looking, and these desert communities have had some nice homes to consider.

CALIFORNIA STONE EAGLE

A prestigious guard-gated community in Palm Desert, Calif., Stone Eagle is a hidden paradise. One key feature is that the homes and golf course are separate, which adds to the peaceful feeling for both residents and golfers. The Tom Doak-designed course at private Stone Eagle Golf Club, located high above the Coachella Valley floor, is known as one of the most aesthetically pleasing courses in the area. It has an unusual layout in a shallow bowl surrounded by low, rugged mountains and thousands of acres of protected land. There is some water but no trees, the greens are well bunkered and the fairways are wide. This course even has a par-3 19th hole next to the Aerie grill. Membership to Stone Eagle and its

that accommodates players of all levels, and its spectacular features and backdrops make play enjoyable regardless of the numbers posted on the scorecard.

At the time of this writing, one option for buyers in this area was a single-story executive-style home located on the 14th fairway and priced at $2.2 million. Set on .53 acres, the 6,705-square-foot residence featured four bedrooms, all with walk-in closets and private baths, as well as an office, computer area, game room, wet bar and theater. One of the most appealing features: indoor/outdoor living accentuated by pocket doors opening from the family room to the patio.

“The luxury market is booming in the Las Vegas and Henderson area,” says Christine McNaught of Windermere Prestige Properties. “Don’t wait too long or you may miss the bottom.”

ARIZONA Antelope Hills

Did you ever want the pleasure and convenience of living on a golf course without the HOA fees? Welcome to Antelope Hills, in Prescott, Ariz. Prescott is located about 100 miles north of Phoenix.

It’s a mile-high city with national forest, golf courses and fine dining. Local real estate experts believe the market here has turned the corner, though inventory in Prescott is currently very low.

The city of Prescott operates the two Antelope Hills golf courses, which means homebuyers can enjoy a luxury lifestyle at an affordable price. The 6,778-yard North Course opened in 1958. It’s an accuracy course with small greens and traditional tree-lined fairways. The 7,014-yard South Course was added in 1992 and is markedly different than the North, featuring large undulating greens and a wide-open track. Both layouts share stunning vistas of Granite Dells, Granite Mountain, Thumb Butte and even the San Francisco Peaks near Flagstaff. The facility includes a pro shop, driving ranges and putting greens. A wonderful custom home with two master suites and a den or third bedroom is just one example of what buyers can find here. Located on an Antelope Hills fairway and a cul de sac, the home features interiors by a local designer and there are no HOA fees.

There’s no question that there are excellent homes on the market, but there are still challenges. I believe that the sustainability of this recovery rests on the overall economic health of a local, national and world economy. With a decrease in the distressed-sale inventory, prices are pushing up and many buyers are finding themselves in multiple-offer situations. This is a self-perpetuating recovery as more and more homeowners decide to keep their homes that are still slightly underwater due to the hope of market recovery. Also it seems the banks are finally on board for the loan modification program, as we are hearing about more and more success stories and less stonewalling by the major banks. This is a huge step in the recovery, but recovery is still fragile and with many moving parts. If you are thinking of selling, run the numbers; this could be the right time. If you are thinking of buying, meet with your loan officer and then call your favorite real estate agent.

Desert Golf Magazine Dining Guide

The Best of the Coachella Valley

Tommy Bahama

Wang's in the Desert

With the summer season comes some of the finest annual opportunities for desert diners and imbibers. The ascending temps bring with them the year's best values, specials and expedited experiences at many of the area's top restaurants. And of course, the one sure way to cool down in the Valley as day comes to a close is with a gloriously refreshing beverage. To that end, we've compiled a list of our favorite places in town to enjoy happy hour. Cheers!

In Palm Springs, Wang's in the Desert (424 S. Indian Canyon Drive) has long matched its popular Pan-Asian platings with one of the Coachella Valley's most well attended happy hours.

"We have happy hour everyday starting at 3 p.m. and going until 7 p.m. And on Sunday it's happy hour all night with live entertainment until we close at 10," says Pieter Van Winkel, general manager at Wang's.

The restaurant's Friday happy hour with a live D.J. welcomes a happy horde of patrons looking to start the weekend off with a charge. The Sunday crowd revels in a half-priced, small-bites menu that stars Asian chicken sliders along with vegetable spring rolls and Red Dragon wantons.

At the bar, hand-shaken cocktails and daily seasonal specials made with fresh, organic juices —check out the Watermelon Mojito or Palm Springs Iced Tea—highlight expert mixology and serious value. "We have $2 well cocktails and there's no other place in the desert with that deal," Van Winkel says of the happy hour pricing. "And then we offer a $4 well martini, which is also a very good price. Really, there's no other place in the Coachella Valley that can offer the prices we do."

Also in downtown, the former Italian flavors at Zini Café Med have been rebranded to the new Spanish Mediterranean offerings of Alicante (140

S. Palm Canyon Drive). For an evening bite and cocktail, explore the excellent tapas menu and enjoy a late-night happy hour that includes half-priced beers, $5 well drinks and a pitcher of sangria for just $12.

Drop in for happy hour at Ristorante Mamma Gina (73-705 El Paseo) in Palm Desert, and you'll likely find its Enoteca Bar crowded with revelers and regulars taking advantage of good company, a prime setting and exceptional value. Running daily (Monday to Saturday, 11:30 a.m.-2 p.m., and 4 p.m. to close seven days a week), the ever-active bar offers nine select house wines for just $5, well martinis for $6.50 and imported beers for $4.50 (domestic brews are $1 less). Diners can take advantage of happy hour as well, with a full bar menu of items under $10 (a 10 oz. cheeseburger for $6.25? Oh, yes!). While the veteran staff is well equipped to handle the masses, arrive early to obtain a prime perch.

Across the street, segue to the specials of Mamma's sister establishment, Piero's Pizza Vino (73-722 El Paseo), where the new happy hour menu runs daily from 11:30 a.m. – 6 p.m. before

In Indian Wells, the long-lauded nightly piano entertainment at The Nest (75-188 Highway 111) is on key with a bar menu that plays nightly from 4 p.m. – 7 p.m. and extends on Wednesday Ladies' Night (with drink specials) until 10 p.m. The bar dining specials include seared rare Ahi tuna, veal cannelloni, bacon-and-date skewers, the Nest burger and four salad options priced at just $6. In the dining room, Sundays and Mondays offer half-priced bottles of wine, while No Corkage Tuesdays allow patrons to bring their own bottle to pair with dinner.

On the east end of the desert, the ample spread of Jackalope Ranch (80400 Highway 111) does not exist on beauty alone.

Happy hour runs daily from 3 p.m.– 6 p.m. and includes house wines and well drinks for $5, along with house margaritas for just $6. Microbrews ($4.50 or less) will sate thirsty beer lovers, and Jackalope Honey Blonde pairs perfectly with a hot summer day.

Dining options for Jackalope's happy hour are consistently under $10 and highlighted by the Rockin' Taco plates ($8.50) and BBG pulled pork sandwich ($8).

And as an added resource for exploring the desert's happy hour options, readers will want to plug HotHappyHours.com into their smart-phone favorites. "The site addresses a phenomenon happening in the world today relative to smart phones and tablets," says Chuck Milden, CEO of Net Impressions Ltd., developer and publisher of HotHappyHours.com. "People are looking for instant information today."

Visitors to the site (yes, the local establishments will pop right up) enjoy a smartly arranged collection of one-stop icons that make it easy to locate destinations of choice. With easily surfed capsules that include maps, a locale's social media sites, dining reviews, photos and videos of a bar or restaurant's entertainment options, HotHappyHours.com is especially appealing for those on the go.

"We give visitors to our site the ability to get additional information on the establishment without swaying away from the reason they're on there on the first place—to get where they want to go next," Milden notes. "It's so easy to get lost in the Internet very quickly; our site is compacted so the information is available in a single place and the information itself is richer in content than stuff that's pieced together from a half-dozen sources."

Continental GTC Speed Convertible

Bentley engineers an extraordinary vehicle

You could pull three Gs in an F-16 fighter jet and leave the canopy down and still not have the full experience of freedom and power you get from Bentley's new 2014 Continental GTC Speed Convertible.

Long name, muscle to match.

Bentley isn't known as a sports-car maker, so it comes as no surprise that the Speed Convertible isn't a nimble king of cornering. But you'll be surprised when you experience the new suspension Bentley engineered to make the GTC Speed at least handle like a member of the industry royal family. With the suspension lowered nearly half an inch and the frame stiffened, plenty of feel transfers to a relatively light steering column.

As for the soft top, it's as good as any—ever. Quiet, dry and easy to retract, it delivers. With the top up, you'll have virtually the same experience as a hardtop. With the top down, you'll have no problem at speeds in excess of 150 mph. The design of the GTC Speed makes driving with the top down as comfortable as it can be, meaning low wind noise and all the comfort without the confinement of a roof.

It would be easy to overlook the GTC Speed in the category of muscle. Sure, Bentley's always been big, but the GTC Speed takes it to a new level. This is one of the fastest production cars ever made.

The 12-cylinder, W-12 is both massive and efficient. The twin-turbo takes a giant leap up from the base model V-8. The luxury wrapper is deceptive, but inside are 616 horses ready to gallop. That kind of power is rare. In less than 10 seconds you'll find yourself eclipsing 100 mph with enough room in the pedal for another hundred and then some. The 0-60 time? A blink over 4 seconds. Those are high-performance numbers on a 5,000-pound body.

Gas mileage isn't bad either. At cruising speed, you'll get around 20 miles per gallon. Of course in the mountains or pushing it hard, you'll see less as the turbos kick in and start to growl. But oh, the sound of the growl! Choosing the just the right driving mode for your mood may be the most difficult decision with the GTC Speed. In sport mode, you'll find the bass note in the soundtrack instills a sense of aggression. As the speed increases, the rumble turns to a war cry.

The warrior in the GTC Speed has a counterpart that is the interior. That foil is super luxury. Ditto the velvet-soft leather. What's your pleasure? You can truly have it your way by customizing nearly everything in the vehicle. From leather suppleness to seatbelt fabric, it's truly your car. This is where Bentley's coachworks manufacturing is the leading edge of the high-end market.

Summer won't be here forever. The GTC is also great for a winter trip to Tahoe with its all-wheel drive. The 8-speed transmission is at its best when it's unnoticed. You'll hardly realize you're changing gears. Of course, you can manually shift with paddles on the steering wheel, but you'll never do it better than the computer.

"Seamless" is so overused, but it perfectly describes the bodylines on the

GTC. Refined and elegant yet muscular, the GTC leans forward enough in the front end to give momentum, while the trunk and back end relax enough to tell onlookers that you aren't in a hurry unless you want to be.

In terms of technology, you'll find it doing just what it should be: helping. From navigation to the stereo system, the touchscreen reads your mind. It knows what you want and gives it to you front and center. Thoughtful add-ons like a neck heater make it possible to drive with the top down year-round.

And while you won't find this on the spec sheet, the Bentley Continental GTC Speed turns heads. The pronounced and familiar B embedded prominently on the grill has deep meaning; the GTC sports nearly a century of history as a model. Bentley represents the most extreme in luxury and performance. Driving one says, "You get it."

At a base price of $240,000, the GTC Speed isn't an impulse buy for most. But hey, it's much less expensive than an F-16.

Make a Splash in Summer

Swimwear

There is a style that's just right for you

Perhaps you've waited just a bit too long to hit the gym before the swimwear season begins. Not to worry. By finding the swimsuit that works with your body type and gives you confidence to drop the wrap and soak up the sun, you can save the post-traumatic stress for next year.

The 2013 summer swimwear trends run the gamut from itsy-bitsy bikinis to vintage suits. But before we talk colors, you should know that it's the style that's going to garner you admirable glances.

In the 1950s, Marilyn Monroe had every woman clamoring to purchase the same style of swimsuit she wore in that famous picture seen around the world. That style is now called vintage, and vintage swimwear is back. The key elements of these suits are shaping and support, perfect for the curvaceous gal who'll look feminine and sexy at the same time. Today's vintage styles offer exactly the right amount of support without looking like a girdle, and they're fun to wear.

Also trending are mismatched bikini tops and bottoms. Matchy-matchy is out in both color and style. Try a bandeau on the top with a high-waisted bottom that will flaunt any curvy shape while highlighting legs and giving them the illusion of length — always a plus.

Monokinis? These are fabulous bathing suits that take the one-piece to daring levels with sexy cutouts. This is one of the hottest trends on the beach and offered by designer labels including Ralph Lauren, Coco Rave and Bleu by Rod Beattie. With cutouts on the sides, the monokini looks like a string bikini from the back while modestly covering up the tummy in front. The great thing is that these suits give women a choice in coverage. Designers offer pieces with moderate to full bottom coverage, and cutouts are strategically placed to allow you to cover the areas you want covered while allowing you to flaunt those you can't wait to show off.

If being the ultimate girly-girl on the beach is for you, then it's all about bows, ruffles and fringe. Strategic placement comes into play in these suits, too. Design elements can hide a lot; however, before buying, take a good look in the mirror to make sure the adornments don't enhance the problem areas you're trying to minimize.

Let's not forget crochet suits, a trend that emerged in Brazil during Sao Paulo's fashion week. This suit works beautifully on its own and as part of the mismatch look — a crochet top with a non-crochet bottom, for example. Crochet monokinis are also all the rage this summer, available in a variety of solid colors.

When it comes to the hottest patterns and colors, it would be easier to say what isn't in. Whether it's a one- or two-piece swimsuit, stripes are hot. For a more slimming appearance, go with vertical. If you want to look larger (as in the bust area), opt for wide horizontal stripes. Black and white is always safe, but bright and colorful tend to get the beach party started.

Wild animal beading continues to be popular, along with shades of copper — an ideal color for less-than-tan bodies. And every designer this season is going floral, from the sweet and flirty look to eye-catching tropical prints that add exotic flare. Digital prints are also all the rage. This year's most popular variations include soft florals, cityscapes and abstract patterns — plenty of options to show off your individuality.

Summer is meant to be fun so forget the annual swimsuit stress. Choose the suit that enhances your best assets, minimizes what you don't want noticed and allows you to express the woman you are. Choose correctly and, regardless of your particular body type, you'll be the hottest girl on the beach or by the pool!

The Healing Power of Jewelry

Here's a sure way to look good and feel good at the same time

Breitling's Chronomat 44 watch

Pura Vida Bracelets

AugustHeart pendant by Roberto Coin

MTV x Caliber Bracelet

We hear the stories, buy the jewelry and don't pay much attention to the message behind the bauble, so on a whim I Googled 'jewelry for a cause.' Within .17 seconds 96,000,000 results popped up offering links to a variety of websites that sell jewelry to raise funds for nonprofits.

In addition to the vast number of results, the search brought up a site that is actually called Jewelry for a Cause. Founded in 2008 by former lawyer and mother of two Jessica Mindich, the concept is unique yet simple: design and create inexpensive yet fashionable pieces of jewelry that can be sold at profit to raise money for various schools and charities. To date, the organization is responsible for over $400,000 of philanthropic dollars to worthy causes, proving that jewelry sparkles in many ways.

One item in particular posted multiple times: the MTV x Caliber bracelet. This bracelet carries the individual serial number of an illegal firearm turned in to the Newark Police Department during a gun buyback program. The Caliber Collection is made, in part, from the steel of reclaimed illegal guns. Priced from $40 to $1,275, its sales have raised money to help the Newark Police Department fund these critical gun buyback programs. jewelryforacause.net

In California, two surf-loving friends from the West Coast and a pair of Costa Rican brothers founded Pura Vida Bracelets. These multicolored, beaded bracelets are sold around the world for as little as $5. Portions from all sales benefit the Surfrider Foundation, which works to protect oceans and beaches. Other Pura Vida designs help raise awareness about autism and breast cancer and support causes such as Surfaid International, Japanese tsunami relief, the Fresh Air Fund and more. puravidabracelets.com

The famous Roberto Coin brand is honored to help high school students combat heart disorders via its exclusive AugustHeart bracelet and pendants, priced from $200 to $980. All of the proceeds go to the AugustHeart program, which Dore and Bart

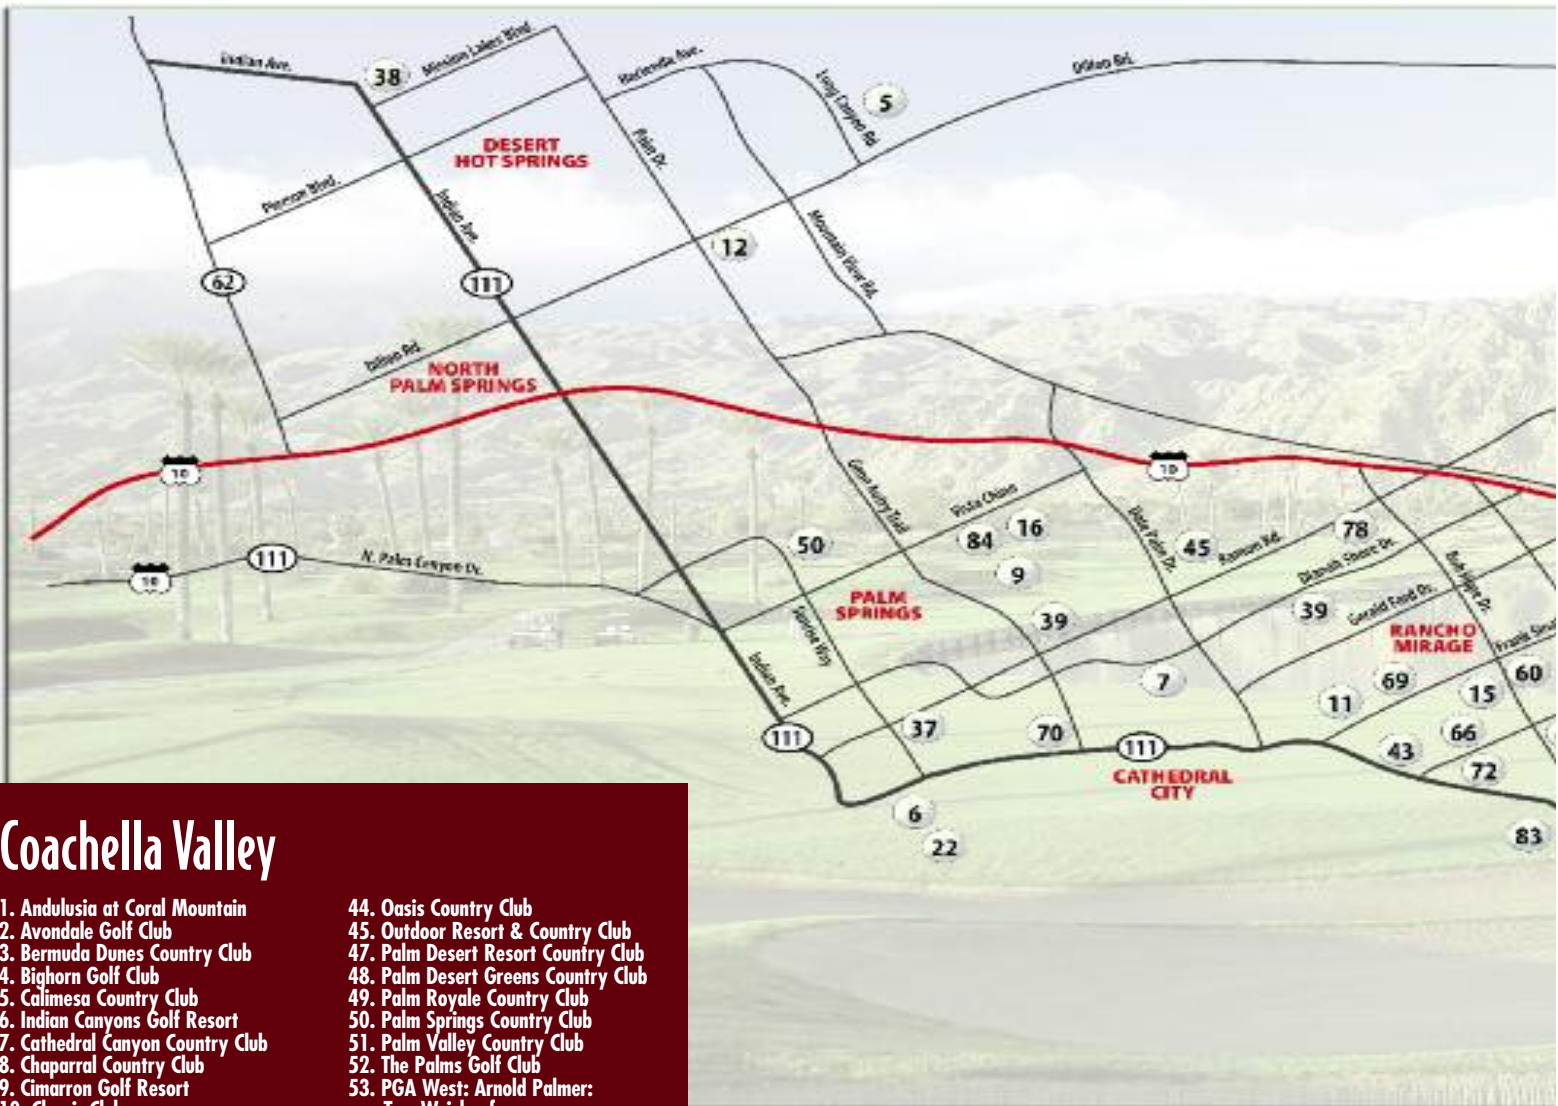

Koontz launched after the loss of their son to an undiagnosed heart condition called hypertrophic cardiomyopathy. The mission of the program is to make participation in sports safe for high school students by providing free heart screenings to detect potentially life-threatening conditions. augustHeart.org

Els For Autism is the organization Hall-of-Fame golfer Ernie Els founded in honor of his son, who was diagnosed with the disorder. Luxury watchmaker Breitling has created 88 numbered, limited-edition timepieces to benefit the foundation; they're based on Breitling's exceptional Chronomat 44 watch and feature a Caliber 01. The timepiece is available at Roberto Coin stores (robertocoin.com), and 20 percent of the proceeds will be donated to Els' foundation, which is dedicated to helping children affected by Breitautism. elsforautism.com

If you are still in the mood to help heal lives by buying and wearing jewelry, designer Joan Hornig might have just the right piece for you. "Philanthropy is beautiful" is the motto Hornig lives by. In the 1980s, she started designing jewelry for herself, but a partnership with Bergdorf Goodman allowed her to bring her designs to the masses. By 2003, Hornig's jewelry was helping to support more than 500 charitable organizations around the world by giving 100 percent of the profits from each purchase to the buyer's charity of choice. If your favorite charity is not on the list, simply add it. joanhornig.com

From bracelets for men and rings for women to necklaces and bangles for young ladies, purchasing jewelry has been elevated to a whole new level—the level of healing.

"WELCOME TO MY WORLD"

John Travolta is not only an exceptional pilot with over 7,000 flight hours behind him and qualifications on ten different aircraft types. He is also passionately interested in everything embodying the authentic aeronautical spirit – such as Breitling instruments for professionals. On his wrist is a Navitimer chronograph with its famous aviation slide rule, a cult-watch for all devotees of the conquest of the skies, and equipped like all Breitling models with a movement chronometer-certified by the COSC – the highest official benchmark in terms of reliability and precision. Welcome to the Breitling world.
