MISSION HILLS THE HOST COURSE OF THE KRAFT NABISCO CHAMPIONSHIP

In this edition you will read about a new charity tournament, the Phoenix Celebrity Classic (see page 24). This two-day tournament is the brainchild and vision of the former president of the Celebrity Players Tour, Nick Schmitz. Held at the venerable Pointe Hilton Tapatio Cliffs Resort, this new event is sure to be a welcome and popular tournament in the Phoenix area, and Desert Golf Magazine is proud to sponsor and support this great cause to benefit the Foundation for Blind Children. Please join us in supporting the Classic and, at the same time, give yourself the gift of playing with a host of popular celebrities from sports, screen and stage.

Also in this issue, we are proud once again to support Shelter From the Storm and its 7th annual tournament and Casablanca Nights gala, one of the most highly anticipated events in the Coachella Valley (see page 28). Tournament and gala will be held at esteemed Porcupine Creek, residence of philanthropist Edra Blixseth, who also serves as president of the board of directors for Shelter From The Storm. Blixseth generously opens her home each year to help raise funds for this important charity benefiting victims of domestic violence. The ultra-private compound boasts one of America's finest and most beautiful golf courses, which is just one of the reasons this annual event is one of the hottest tickets in Palm Springs.

As always, we invite you to contact us with information about your charity event, wherever in the desert community it may be held. Our Charity Registry (p. 40) is printed in every issue, and we hope it provides a service for those who wish to contribute their time, effort and assistance to a variety of important causes.

This is our final edition of the season here in the desert; however, golf continues to grow, even in the hottest months, and we know many of you will be out on the southwest's great courses during our hiatus.

We hope you have enjoyed Desert Golf Magazine this season, and all of here at the magazine now look forward to another great summer thinking of ways to grow as your best resource to golf in the southwest!

Sincerely,

Timothy J. Pade

Ironwood Country Club

LIVE THE EXPERIENCE

BY FRANÇOISE RHODES

“LOCATION, LOCATION, LOCATION,” IS A REAL ESTATE AGENT’S NUMBER-ONE SLOGAN. FOR THE MASSIVE CONTINGENT OF BABY BOOMERS, THE GOAL IS TO LIVE THAT SLOGAN. THOSE OPTING FOR NOTHING LESS THAN IDYLIC CAN END THEIR SEARCH AT A PARADISE STRATEGICALLY NESTLED ALONG THE BASE OF THE SANTA ROSA MOUNTAINS, A PRIVATE COMMUNITY THAT EASILY EXCEEDS THE LIFESTYLE DEMANDS SET FORTH BY THIS NEW GENERATION OF COUNTRY CLUB RESIDENTS. THIS COMMUNITY IS IRONWOOD COUNTRY CLUB IN THE CITY OF PALM DESERT

Named for the Ironwood trees in the surrounding hillsides, Ironwood’s scenic splendor earned it a spot in the Sports Illustrated Classic Golf Courses Calendar. Equity members celebrated this honor briefly, and then unanimously voted “yes” on a $24-million-dollar reconstruction project. The completed project includes an entirely new clubhouse, fitness center, turnaround cafe and spacious men and women’s locker rooms. Additionally, the club spent $5 million dollars in upgrades on its two golf courses.

Ignoring Father Time and embracing the future, Ironwood has maintained its financial stability while strengthening its forefront position in luxury country club living. Highlighting the new look is a magnificent clubhouse overlooking the South Course and offering members state-of-the-art “everything.”

Tuscan-inspired archways, warm colors and bold accents create a graceful architectural and design flow through the 50,000-square-foot clubhouse—the social hub of Ironwood. Members and guests enjoy the elegantly appointed dining room, lounge areas and terrace patio, a dining option for every occasion and perfect setting for that special gathering. The full-service lounge guarantees lively conversation in a comfortable and inviting atmosphere, providing the ideal venue in which to unwind after a round of golf, game of tennis or leisurely walk through this chic community.

Also new at Ironwood is the Sports Center with 14 tennis courts and complete fitness facilities where members can enjoy private and semi-private training. Ironwood's certified personal trainers are dedicated to health and wellness and provide expertise in exercise technique, motivation and practical tools to maximize results. Trainers keep members focused and energetic in a challenging and fun environment designed to facilitate and support winning performances on and off the golf course and tennis courts.

Limited spa services are also now available, including massage and age defying body treatments.

The club's new golf and tennis pro shops are 100-percent full service, offering players the best equipment and trendiest outfits, plus helpful advice from Ironwood's professionals who are ready to help members fine-tune their golf or tennis skills. Spikes turnaround café is set to quiet the hunger growls with breakfast, lunch and tasty snacks available before, after or midway through a round of golf or a tennis match.

What would a perfect private community be without incredible golf courses? Ironwood offers its members the ultimate golf experience with two superb courses winding through the scenic foothills of the Santa Rosa Mountains.

The South Course is a true championship test and was recently ranked as the 6th best course in the Coachella Valley. With four tees and yardage that ranges from 5,608 to 7,256 yards, it's no surprise that this course annually serves as host to a US Open qualifying round and is a favorite of avid golfers.

The North Course, playing from 5,245 to 6,065 yards, is set in one of the most magnificent desert and mountain venues in the country and rewards the accurate player. Recognizing that keeping with the technological advances of the game, the new practice facility and driving range also provide multiple benefits for all skill levels.

Ironwood offers two memberships to fit the needs of individuals who call the community home: equity golf memberships and non-equity social memberships.

Set in South Palm Desert and only minutes from the elite shopping district on El Paseo, Ironwood unquestionably offers "location, location, location." Yet that is only part of its allure. The quality and range of homes make a marked difference, too. From charming and intimate condominiums to spacious custom estates, there is a home to meet everyone's needs. With all that it offers, Ironwood continues to reign as one of the most desirable golf course communities in the desert, and to provide the ultimate in residential living.

MORGAN PRESSEL PLUNGED INTO POPPIE'S POND FOLLOWING HER WIN AT THE 2007 KRAFT NABISCO CHAMPIONSHIP

Water. It's an essence of life. It's often a thing of breathtaking beauty. You can celebrate in its wonder, but then again, it is also dangerous—especially on a golf course. On a golf course, water is a place to avoid, a place where good rounds and hopes for victory can be washed away in the smallest of splashes.

At the Kraft Nabisco Championship, water has taken on a whole new meaning.

The final hole on the Dinah Shore Tournament Course at Mission Hills Country Club in Rancho Mirage will beckon the best of the LPGA when the Kraft Nabisco Championship, the year's first major, is played April 3-6. The green on the closing par-5 is an island. Surrounded by water.

Those trying to reach the green in two must calm both fears and nerves. Those playing the hole as a "three-shooter" will still face a challenge to find dry land. But that one player who takes the win on championship Sunday will have another perspective on the final green; she will see it as a diving board—and that's a good thing!

Since Amy Alcott first plunged into Poppie's Pond following her win at the Kraft Nabisco (it was called the Kraft Nabisco Dinah Shore back then), each winner of the LPGA's first major championship of the season has gotten at least her feet wet. It's all part of a very special sorority on the LPGA Tour. The members are called the "Ladies of the Lake." They are also called the champions. It's a tradition in professional golf unlike any other.

Last year, Morgan Pressel had to wait awhile before taking the plunge. She had started the final round of the 2007 Kraft Nabisco Championship trailing—by a bunch. Pressel had improved each day, carding rounds of 74-72-70, but after signing her final round 69, the 18-year-old couldn't do anything but watch and wait.

The wait was worth it as Catriona Matthew, Brittany Lincicome and especially Suzann Pettersen failed to climb past her on the large leaderboard sitting behind the famously island green of the 18th hole on the Dinah Shore Course.

And when Pressel finally hit the water, she had company. She was joined in the swim-fest by her caddie Jon Yarborough and grandmother, Evelyn Krickstein. Pressel was raised by her grandparents after the death of her mother when the champion-to-be was just 14.

"I know that my mother is always with me," Pressel said after becoming the youngest player in LPGA history to win a major championship. "And I'm sure she is proud of me."

"I would like to thank my grandparents for everything they have done for me and for all of their support and their love. I'm sure they are just as happy for me as I am."

LORENA OCHOA

Pressel will return to defend her title when the 2008 edition of the tournament is held in April. She'll be ready for another chance to hit the water, but she'll also have plenty of company in the fight to wear the white bathrobe that goes to the winner.

While other seasons on the LPGA Tour have gotten off to spectacular starts, nothing can rank with the way the current season has started. Annika Sorenstam, the Swede who dominated on the LPGA Tour for more than a decade before suffering a back and neck injury last year, won the SBS Open at Turtle Bay Resort in Hawaii to send the signal that she is back.

Paula Creamer, the young American gun, then captured the Fields Open in Hawaii to also let the women's golf world know that she is ready for the challenge every time she sticks a tee in the ground.

KARRIE WEBB

But the first line in the sand for 2008 was drawn at the Tanah Merah Country Club in Singapore when Lorena Ochoa, in her first start of the season, blitzed the field at the HSBC Women's Champions, winning by a whopping 11 shots.

And there will be others at Mission Hills, too. Former champion Karrie Webb and defending U.S. Open champion Cristie Kerr will be hoping to go for a swim come championship Sunday. Pettersen, who finished just one shot behind Pressel last year but then went on a tear the rest of the 2007 season, is also expected to join the battle for the first-place check of $300,000.

And the right to become a "Lady of the Lake."

Dear Ketel One Drinker
We love Arnold Palmer.
And vice versa.

A professional golfer, Nicole Castrale, is captured in a dynamic mid-swing pose. She is wearing a black cap with a white and red logo, dark sunglasses, and a black short-sleeved polo shirt with white piping on the sleeves. Her hair is pulled back, and she has a focused expression. The background is a blurred green golf course under bright sunlight. The text 'NICOLE CASTRALE' is overlaid in large white letters, with 'AT HOME AT THE KRAFT NABISCO' below it in smaller white letters. At the bottom, it says 'BY FRANÇOISE RHODES' in small white letters.

NICOLE CASTRALE

AT HOME AT THE KRAFT NABISCO

BY FRANÇOISE RHODES

IS THE SECOND TIME THE CHARM FOR LPGA TOUR PLAYER NICOLE CASTRALE? SHE CERTAINLY HOPES SO. PLAYING IN HER SECOND KRAFT NABISCO CHAMPIONSHIP, CASTRALE ADMITS SHE HAS PLENTY OF ROOM TO BETTER HER TIE FOR 26TH PLACE IN 2007. YET THAT'S NOT ALL THAT'S ON HER MIND FOR THIS PARTICULAR TOURNAMENT, BECAUSE THIS ONE IS PLAYED ON HER HOME TURF

"It's special having an event so close to home," says Castrale, a desert resident for much of her life.

Location isn't a factor in terms of preparation. Castrale points out that all tournaments are important no matter where they're played. But location does matter in another way for the Californian, whose family has always been very close. "The only thing I'll do different for this tournament," she says, breaking into an infectious grin, "is figure out how many extra tickets we need for family and friends."

Looking every bit the California native, fashionably dressed in jeans, T-shirt, boots and trendy sunglasses, Castrale sat down with Desert Golf Magazine at Starbucks on El Paseo, the desert's version of Rodeo Drive. "I love to go shopping here when I'm home," the 29-year-old says, looking comfortable and confident.

Experiencing a breakthrough season in 2007 with her first LPGA victory at the Ginn Tribute, hosted by Annika Sorenstam,

With the help of her coach, Bill Harmon of Toscana Country Club in Indian Wells, she made only minimal changes to her game. "We haven't changed her overall swing. What was there was very, very good," Harmon says. "We've worked on a lot of different shots—high draws, low draws, cuts, things like that."

Currently living next door to her parents in Palm Desert, Castrale says it was her parent's life-altering early decisions that made her "dream life" of today possible. "My parents have been so supportive throughout my whole career. My mom and brother and I moved to the desert when I was in the 8th grade so that my

Castrale has set her sights on a top-ten world ranking in 2008, and she has the work ethic to match that vision.

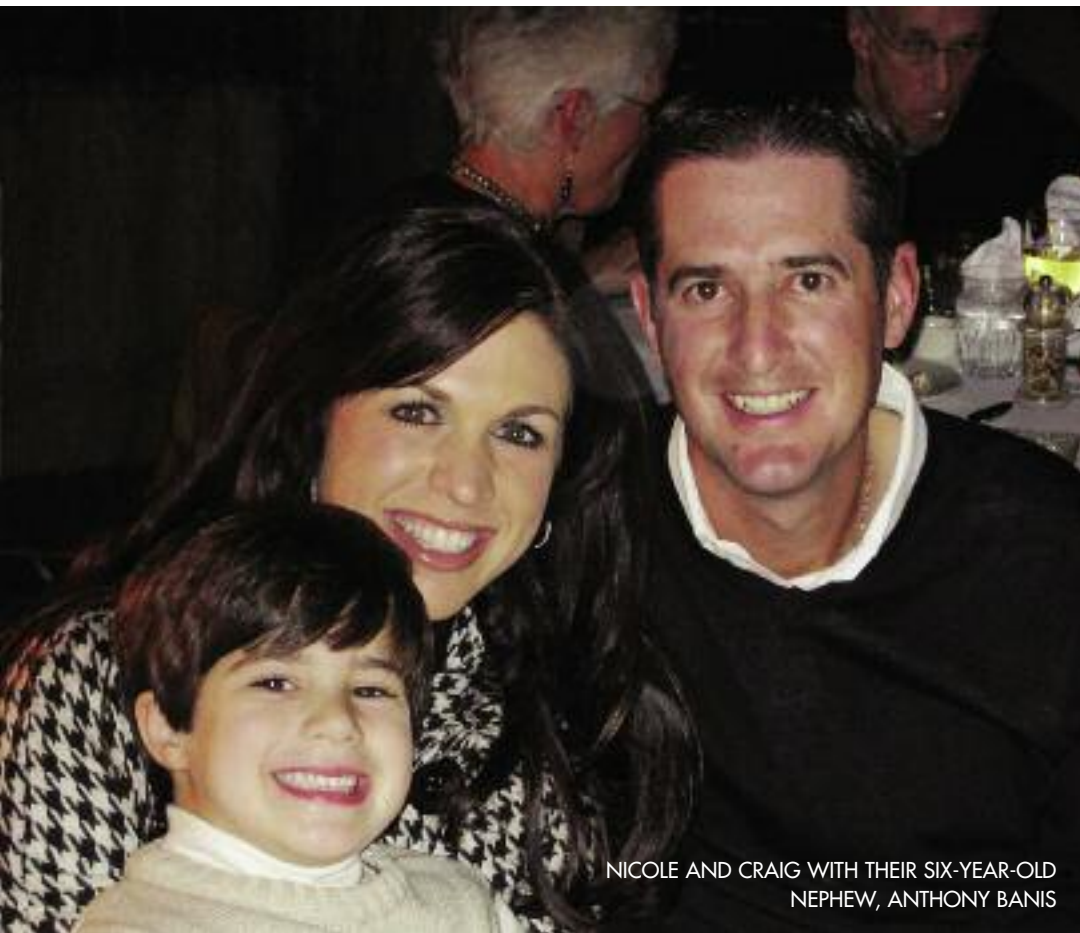

During the off-season, Castrale dedicated herself to the gym and fine-tuning her swing. "I called it my double days in the gym. I started off my morning in the gym and I ended my days in the gym. I feel like I've given it 110 percent, and I don't feel like I could have done any more."

The goal was attaining an extra five or 10 yards off the tee. "Five yards is a lot," she says. "Five yards means I can now get to the par-5s in two, where before I may have had to decide to lay up or not."

brother and I could play golf." During this same time, Castrale's older sister and father stayed in Glendale where his business is. Though the sacrifices were many, the close-knit family endured and is thrilled with the outcome.

NICOLE AND CRAIG WITH THEIR SIX-YEAR-OLD NEPHEW, ANTHONY BANIS

The other mainstay in Castrale's life is Craig, a professional caddy with a degree in finance. They met in 2002 at a tournament in New York, began dating in May 2003, were engaged by December of that year and married in 2005. Castrale describes her husband as "my best friend and an incredible partner. I never handle my mail and Craig handles all of the finances," she says with obvious devotion.

Craig has also been her caddy for several years, and the close bond between the duo shines on the golf course. "We are a team, even when our opinions differ, we always respect what the other one is saying," Castrale notes. This team plans to have children in the future and looks forward to that time; but for now, the priorities are on business and being the best competitor.

In addition to working out in the gym, improving her golf game and competing in tournaments, Castrale also knows how to have fun. "When I'm off I like to be off and be at home. I hang out and watch my shows that I've Tivo'd, and my whole family is Greek Orthodox and that's a big part of my life."

Castrale also loves to cook. What is Craig's favorite dish? "Lamb chops, he loves lamb chops, so I'll do that at least once when we are home," she says. When they're not eating in, the couple's favorite restaurant for dinner is Pacifica in Palm Desert. "We go there more than any other restaurant because we have a lot of fun there and the food is great."

Glancing at her watch, Castrale admits that she has planned an afternoon of shopping with her mother, a special time the two look forward to when Castrale is in town. That leaves time for just one more question.

Asked to describe her life in one sentence, Castrale hesitates. "One sentence? Can it be a long one?" But her thoughtfulness and insights are actually very concise. "I feel very blessed to be able to do what I do and be given a talent and to use it in the manner that I can be a role model not only for young girls, but even for adults."

INTRODUCING THE PHOENIX CELEBRITY CLASSIC

THIS NEW TOURNAMENT IN TOWN IS GOING TO BE ONE TO REMEMBER

BY CHRISTINE LOOMIS

DO YOU WANT TO PLAY GOLF WITH NFL GREAT THURMAN THOMAS? OR MAYBE YOU'D LIKE TO HOBNOB WITH THE 44TH VICE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, DAN QUAYLE? YOUR CHANCE TO DO JUST THAT IS COMING MAY 7-10 AT A BRAND NEW GOLF TOURNAMENT, THE PHOENIX CELEBRITY CLASSIC

The Phoenix Celebrity Classic will take place at the AAA Four-diamond Pointe Hilton Tapatio Cliffs Resort, and the tournament will be played at Lookout Mountain Golf Club at Tapatio Cliffs. The 6,535-yard, par-71 layout is among Arizona's top golf courses, one that provides an enviable combination of challenging play and drop-dead gorgeous Sonoran Desert scenery. Champions Tour players have coined it the "Champagne Stop" on their tour.

There are a multitude of charity tournaments around the country, but this one figures to be a little different for a number of reasons.

To start, Tournament Director, Nick Schmitz, former president of the Celebrity Players Tour, has longtime, personal relationships with an expansive A-list of athletes, actors and entertainers, and he has handpicked the participating celebrities for this event.

"I chose them because they're great people who enjoy being accessible and who enjoy giving back," Schmitz says.

VINNY DEL NEGRO

ALFONSO RIBEIRO

In fact, accessibility at this event is part of what sets it apart. While other tournaments give amateur players access to celebrities primarily on the golf course, the Phoenix Celebrity Classic is going to put participants together on the course, at breakfast, at each of the evening events and even for a beer or cigar after a round of golf. And not just participants who pay for premium sponsorships, but those who pay for just one round of golf, too. Schmitz says he expects 50 to 60 celebrities to participate.

Schmitz also handpicked the charity, one in sync with his passion to make a difference. Only recently transplanted to Phoenix from back east, Schmitz was looking for a non-profit partner for his new tournament. After speaking with a woman whose son had benefited from services provided by the Foundation for Blind Children, located in Phoenix, he knew he had found the non-profit he was looking for.

He also saw immediately how his tournament could help the Foundation—by providing money for a capital fund created to build a secondary school for blind and visually impaired children.

JIM MCMAHON

Foundation Executive Director, Marc Ashton, has guaranteed that all monies raised by the tournament will go to that fund so middle-school kids can stay in a program that provides for their specific needs rather than being mainstreamed into the public school system.

Schmitz doesn't have any children of his own, but that hasn't lessened his passion for this project. "I love kids," he says, and you can hear in his voice that he does.

The event will include two days of Celebrity-Am competition (Thursday and Friday) and one day of Celebrity-only play (Saturday). There will also be three nights of evening functions and events that include live and silent auctions as well as headline entertainment.

Schmitz has set up the pricing to attract every level of participant, from individuals who don't want to break the bank to corporations in a position to give generously and to benefit from extensive exposure in a marquis event—including national network television coverage to 60 million households. At every level, participants get a lot for their money.

"It's a VIP experience from start to finish," Schmitz says. An individual can pay for one day of golf with a celebrity or two days on the course (playing with a different celebrity each day), but either way the fee includes lodging for three days, two tickets to each of the three evening events and 100-percent time spent with celebrities chatting, getting autographs and raising money together.

Foursomes can sign up, too, opting for packages that include lodging or not, making the Classic attractive to golfers in the Phoenix metropolitan area.

Naturally there is also every level of sponsorship, from $15,000 for Hole-in-One and Long-Drive sponsorships, for example, to $425,000 for title sponsorship.

Schmitz, whose considerable experience with celebrity tournaments gives him a realistic perspective, says, "The first year is always the hardest to get going." But that experience also tells him that he has found a winning combination in the setting, the charity and the celebrities who are already on board.

"Phoenix didn't have a tournament exactly like this one," he says, "so it's an ideal venue. I also wanted to partner with a non-profit group that, like the tournament itself, is growing, as opposed to other charitable beneficiaries that are already well supported by the community."

Schmitz is looking to forge a long-term partnership with the Foundation for Blind Children, and he's committed to making the Phoenix Celebrity Classic an annual event. What better opportunity for sponsors, especially corporate sponsors, than to get in on the ground floor of a tournament with a long and distinguished future in front of it?

Schmitz is so committed to the success of this project that he relocated to Phoenix to work on it. He felt it was important to talk to people face to face to get the event off the ground, and one of his core tenets has been to make the tournament a real part of the Phoenix community, benefiting and giving back to members of that community.

It's hard not to feel equally enthusiastic about it when you talk to him. If passion and commitment guarantee success—and they usually do—the Phoenix Celebrity Classic is well on its way.

For more information about the tournament, including when it will air on television in your area, go to phoenixcelebrityclassic.com

Shelter From The Storm

7TH ANNUAL GALA AND GOLF TOURNAMENT

GOLF FOR A CAUSE IS MORE IMPORTANT THAN EVER AS CALIFORNIA CUTS FUNDS TO LIFE-SAVING NON-PROFITS

BY CHRISTINE LOOMIS

IT'S ONE OF THE COACHELLA VALLEY'S TOP CHARITABLE EVENTS—THE GALA EXTRAVAGANZA THAT EVERYONE HOPES TO ATTEND, THE TOURNAMENT THAT EVERYONE WANTS TO PLAY IN. NO SURPRISE THERE. THE SHELTER FROM THE STORM ANNUAL GALA AND GOLF TOURNAMENT TAKES PLACE APRIL 25 AND 26 AT PORCUPINE CREEK, THE 240-ACRE PRIVATE RANCHO MIRAGE RESIDENCE AND GOLF COURSE OF PHILANTHROPIST EDRA BLIXSETH. WITH THE EXCEPTION OF CHARITY TOURNAMENTS, THE PORCUPINE CREEK GOLF COURSE IS OPEN ONLY TO BLIXSETH'S FAMILY AND FRIENDS

Each year the Shelter From The Storm event is designed to “wow” participants with its lavishly beautiful setting and top-name entertainment in an atmosphere of camaraderie and fun. And each year it does exactly that.

But it's also one of the most critical events of the season, a fundraiser for the Coachella Valley's only shelter-based provider of emergency and adjunctive services for women and children who are victims of domestic violence and abuse. Sadly, the number of victims needing these services is growing. Even sadder, funding for these life-saving services is decreasing.

EDRA BLIXSETH, ROBERT BALTES AND MARY HART

“This year's event is more important than ever,” says Lynn Moriarty, executive director of the non-profit Shelter From The Storm (SFTS). “In California we are facing dire budgetary cuts; there are 10-percent cuts across the board.”

While that doesn't sound like much, it is, in fact, a lot. SFTS's emergency shelters are primarily funded by the state. “When you're already operating on a shoestring,” Moriarty points out, “10 percent is a huge cut.” Add to that the fact that SFTS also depends on funds from the county and the city, and those funds are being cut 10 percent as well.

IRWIN GOLDS, ALAN BURTON AND ROBERT BALTES

EDRA BLIXSETH

Last year the Casablanca Nights Gala raised more than $400,000. This year, says Moriarty, "We are lighting candles in hopes of raising even more."

Blixseth, who is president of the SFTS Board of Directors, has known abuse firsthand in her life. Her book on the subject, Uncharged Battery, was published in 1989; it's a book she wrote to help inspire women to find the strength and means to leave abusive relationships. Not content with just that, Blixseth then put her commitment to ending domestic violence to work at SFTS. Now, for the seventh year, she is opening up her home to the fundraising event of the season.

The 7th Annual Gala, which is hosted by Blixseth, takes place on Friday night, April 25, at Porcupine Creek in Blixseth's spectacular 32,000-square-foot mansion. Elaborate decorations, fabulous food, dancing, entertainment and a live auction create an evening that is so spectacular it takes the breath away—even among guests who are used to the most spectacular of parties and fundraisers.

Of course, few homes, even in the Palm Springs area, have a private golf course in their backyard, and this one isn't just any golf course. Porcupine Creek is a superb, 18-hole championship course that has been rated among California's top 30 public or private golf courses by Golf Digest. An invitation to play it is one of the most coveted invitations in town. Happily, this year's event on Saturday, April 26, is a chance for Coachella Valley residents and others to see the exclusive course up close and personal, and to experience both its challenges and its exceptionally maintained beauty.

An avid golfer, Blixseth is always among the tournament participants. For the past few years her foursome has included close friends Mary Hart of Entertainment Tonight, United States Congresswoman Mary Bono and fellow SFTS board member Mary Heckmann. The group usually does well, and has even won a couple of times.

Participation in the event is available at several levels. The cost of golf for one plus dinner for two is $2,500, while just dinner is available for $500. Participants can also buy entire tables for the dinner, a cost that ranges from $10,000 to $25,000. Those who generously purchase $25,000 tables are among the privileged few that will be invited to attend a pre-event private cocktail party in the main residence.

"This year we are hoping for many of the $25,000 tables," says Moriarty.

There is no question that the money goes to an important cause, one that is essential to women and children who don't have the power on their own to make their voices heard.

The Bridges at Rancho Santa Fe

LIVING LIFE HIGH ON THE VINE AT THIS
TUSCAN-INSPIRED GOLF COMMUNITY

BY LISA PERRY

CREATE A GOLF COMMUNITY IN AN AREA OF TOP-TIER TAX BRACKETS AND THE PRESSURE IS ON. IN RANCHO SANTA FE, CALIFORNIA, RESIDENTS REPRESENT THE HIGHEST PER-CAPITA INCOME IN THE COUNTRY, SO YOU'D EXPECT THAT THEY WANT THEIR LOCAL COUNTRY CLUB TO BE OFF THE CHARTS

The Bridges at Rancho Santa Fe has achieved its goal—golf course, homes, clubhouse, amenities and even the membership roster all deliver. Try to describe the results without using overworked adjectives and you'll be reaching for a thesaurus

When developers first saw the 540 acres of coastal foothills that would become The Bridges golf community, they were mentally transported to the charmed countryside of Tuscany. Inspired, they created a sprawling, majestic clubhouse reminiscent of an Old World castle that is both a landmark and the cornerstone of the community. It's accented with a vineyard that annually produces 200 cases of The Bridges' private-label wine—a tangible metaphor for celebrating life lived high on the vine. Plush villas and magnificent custom homes continue the idyllic Italian theme while retaining individuality. A Robert Trent Jones II golf course was carefully and specifically designed to integrate into the picture-perfect landscape, and its two namesake, canyon-spanning bridges have become unique signature pieces.

The golf course could stand on its own merits but unquestionably adds to the community's allure. Site of Tiger Woods' series of prime-time "Battle at The Bridges" matches, the intricate Par-71 course runs almost 7,000 yards with non-stop views that belong on postcards. Its stress-ribbon concrete bridges are 285 yards in length, connecting Holes 10, 11 and 12 over deep canyons, giving testimony to the environmentally sensitive planning that went into both course and community. Gordon Cooke, membership and real estate sales director, has played a lot of golf courses but is enamored with this one. What do members tell him?

"It's a memorable course that is fair," he says. "With 96 teeboxes offering totally different play, you don't get tired of it. It's an exciting, enjoyable experience. Some courses can look similar, but a lot of our holes are distinctly unique. Anyone will remember No. 18, a Par 4 with a spectacular view with the backdrop of our clubhouse, a magnificent structure that sits on a hill. All of the holes are individually framed...you don't see anyone else. Other places will have balls flying left and right. Here, you're on each teebox looking at a beautiful hole, ready to play it."

Homeowners at The Bridges are not automatically inducted into the club, but an astonishing 85 percent choose to participate with golf or social memberships. Golfers enjoy all club amenities and pay a one-time initiation fee of $350,000, with monthly dues just under $1,600. For social members, it's $100,000 and $619 a month to access everything except the links: use of the entire 10,000-square-foot Sports Centre, a plethora of opulent spa services and participation in club events. Within the 36,000 sumptuous square feet of The Bridges' clubhouse, all members enjoy niceties that include a boardroom and winetasting room, along with ultra-fine dining. In addition to the working vineyard, an onsite organic garden grows 80 percent of the produce used at the club, while select entrées utilize revered Brandt Beef.

Even with luxurious amenities, it takes a village to create a quality, convivial club atmosphere. "The facility, the golf course and amenities and service—even the quality of food—are unparalleled," says Cooke. "But we also have great people. They have proven to be an essential element of the community, able to integrate and be part of the club. It's a conduit for community, moving from another state and being able to connect and make friends."

PGA champ Phil Mickelson is a golf member, but Cooke says there's still a misconception that because of its elite status The Bridges' membership is made up primarily of retirees. "In reality, it is a very vibrant community of all demographics and all ages. It seems to be growing more with younger families and business executives and entrepreneurs. It's a very dynamic club...a fun, hip, fairly young crowd. It's private, but a friendly and inviting place."

National memberships are an option for anyone living and owning property outside of San Diego County. Non-resident golf members receive full benefits, paying a 40-percent equity initiation fee and dues that are half of full-equity memberships.

Breaking ground in 1999, the community of 256 home sites has been so well received that only a handful of lots remain. Homes represent a wide variety of choices. Villas from 3,000 to 3,800 square feet are available for $1.8 to $2.8 million. Large, custom-built homes are priced just below $9 million. The Cotile Collection ("cotile" is "courtyard" in Italian) is made up of 44 limited-edition, Tuscan-styled manors ranging from 4,400 to 5,500 square feet, selling for an attractive $2.8 to $3.8 million. Rich, Old World Mediterranean nuances complement state-of-the-art appliances and media wiring, and a spacious floor plan is enhanced by each home's centerpiece—a namesake peaceful, inviting courtyard.

GOT COLOR?

BRIGHTEN UP YOUR GAME WITH NEW SHOES, A BOLD BAG AND FASHIONABLY EXOTIC MATERIALS

BY SCOTT MARTIN

WHAT GOES AROUND COMES AROUND, EVEN IN GOLF AND USUALLY BY DECADE. IN THE 1970S, THERE WAS PLENTY OF COLOR IN GOLF. JACK NICKLAUS HAD THOSE DELIGHTFUL YELLOW TARTAN SANSABELT PANTS. EVEN ARNOLD PALMER, NOT THE MOST AGGRESSIVELY DRESSED GOLFER, FOUND HIMSELF IN GREEN PANTS AND PINK SHIRTS. IN THE 1980S AND EARLY '90S THE MOST COLORFUL PIECE OF CLOTHING IN A PROFESSIONAL'S WARDROBE WAS MOST LIKELY A STRIPED SHIRT. IT WAS THE AGE OF KHAKI

Today, golf professionals on the various tours are seemingly in a race to see who can wear the most garish clothing. The Swedes started the trend, pushed on by a company called J. Lindberg whose designers clearly live on a diet of broccoli and tofu. If you are even two pounds overweight, avoid outfits by J. Lindberg.

Understandably, not every golfer wants to dress like Jesper Parnevik. However, you can add color and interest to your golf wardrobe with just one item—say an eclectic pair of shoes or an epic bag, the very shiny and highly reflective Callaway XXV Anniversary Bag is a must ($599, callawaygolf.com). The bag includes adjunctive goodies like an umbrella and a three-pack of matching anniversary head covers.

For those who occasionally like to pull their bag along, the innovative Tri-Bag ($225, tribag.co.uk) is a carry bag that easily converts to a bag with wheels, thus negating the need for a separate pull trolley. To boot, Tri-Bag comes in some arresting colors. The golf bag. And if an outrageous color is out of the question, then why not choose an exotic material?

BELDING GOLF BAG COMPANY

BAGS

Al Czervik, Rodney Dangerfield's class- and style-challenged character in Caddyshack, knew a thing or two about the positive impression an interesting golf bag can make on the adoring public. You, too, can make an impression with a unique and colorful bag. The Bag Boy NXO Revolver Cart Bag in Black/Pink is a limited edition that's sure to brighten up a gloomy day ($159, bagboycompany.com). If you're in the market for a full-size tour staff daddy of all bag-carrying devices is the Sun Mountain Speed E Cart ($850, sunmountain.com) that includes a low-profile battery and noiseless design. It even features a remote-control device so that you can steer the cart and bag into your opponents.

Wilson makes a line of NFL golf bags available through Kelly Golf (kellygolf.net). For under $200, the bag is guaranteed to make you very popular—or very unpopular—with your playing partners. Kelly also offers an extensive line of college bags.

The Belding Golf Bag Company (beldinggolfbags.com), well known for uncompromising quality, offers custom services and a special 'Private Collection' that cannot be adequately described in print. Let's just say that if you're in Las Vegas for an Elvis impersonator convention, you'll fit right in. Belding's retro 'Clubhouse Collection' is attractive and totally non-garish, however.

Ponder Boot Company (ponderboot.com) has golf bags in alligator skin and ostrich quill, and Dann Clothing (dann-online.com) offers a wide range of alligator golf bags. For the greatest choice of exotic materials and flashy fabrics, visit the Alligator Trading Company (alligator-trading-company.com).

Finally, for those who want the craziest golf bag on the course, Chicago-based A&R Collectibles (caddyshack25.com) recently introduced the Czervik replica golf bag. It's a full-size staff bag just like the one in the movie, minus the keg (sold separately). At around $450, the Czervik bag is a sound investment for the golfer who wants to be noticed—for all the right reasons.

SHOES

Those in search of a truly unique pair of golf shoes have an exciting option that's proving very popular. FootJoy lets golfers custom design their own shoes, using a broad palette of colors and styles, via MyJoys (footjoy.com/myjoys). Delivery typically takes less than three weeks and the up-charge is approximately $30 per pair. You can even get baseball and collegiate logos and have your initials sewn into the heel area. The total number of options? Over 70,000. See your local golf retailer or your PGA professional for full ordering details. MyJoys start at around $150.

Exotic golf shoes are über trendy these days. Most major manufacturers offer mock-crocodile leathers, but why not get the real thing? Unutzer makes ladies' golf shoes in crocodile as well as python skin, with prices ranging from $500 to $1,500. Go to ladygolfer.com to order.

European Tour star Darren Clarke has certainly made his wardrobe more vibrant over the years. He wears Sturburt golf shoes (sturburt.com), which sport a chunky and aggressive look bound to turn a few heads while keeping out the worst golf weather. Sturburt is a UK-based company.

Most of the big-name companies stick to traditional shoe materials, but if you're set on an exotic golf shoe, take a look at the line from Nashville Boot Company (nashvilleboots.com) featuring an interesting range of sharkskin and alligator golf shoes priced from $400 to $500.

Our Guide to the latest in real-estate development and building in California, Arizona and Nevada

Ground Breaking News

IS THIS A MARKET IN WHICH YOU CAN BUY THE HOME OF YOUR DREAMS? EXPERTS SAY YES

BY FRANÇOISE RHODES

WITH OUR FINAL EDITION OF “GROUND BREAKING NEWS” FOR THIS SEASON, WE DEPART FROM OUR USUAL LOOK AT NEW GOLF-COURSE COMMUNITIES AND NEW HOMES WITHIN ESTABLISHED GOLF-COURSE DEVELOPMENTS ACROSS THE SOUTHWEST. THERE IS DOOM AND GLOOM IN MANY SEGMENTS OF THE REAL-ESTATE MARKET—BUT NOT ALL SEGMENTS. THE TRUTH IS THAT IF YOU’RE LOOKING TO BUY THE LUXURY HOME OF YOUR DREAMS, YOU MAY BE SURPRISED TO LEARN THAT THE MARKET HAS MUCH TO OFFER

What is the best way to go about finding the right luxury home? Instead of boring you with real estate news that has already made the front page of your local newspapers, we’ve gone to the experts and put together helpful hints for both buyers and sellers in this particular market. Whether your dream home is an oceanfront condominium, mountain retreat or an Italian-inspired manse on the 18th green of one of the southwest’s magnificent golf courses, you can find it.

In today’s real-estate market, the hottest commodity is the home priced at $1 million dollars or above. According to Scott Newton, of Scott Newton Real Estate in Indian Wells, Calif, this segment of the market continues to be strong with active participants on both sides of the equation.

“We are experiencing the first real-estate market shift that was not initiated by a recession,” says Newton. “Basically, this market collapsed from the bottom up, not the top down, therefore the higher end has had some insulation.”

Confirming this fact are real-estate agents throughout California, Arizona and Nevada who are saying that the more expensive the property, the faster the sale. These same agents are also advising, “know your market.” While many markets are doing fine, others aren’t, and the wise buyer will know the difference. To find out how a particular area is faring, log onto ofheo.gov, website of the Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight. The site posts quarterly reports on home-pricing appreciation trends in 275 markets.

Yet even in those markets that are not as strong as others, sellers and buyers can still come out of a deal doing well.

BUYING TIPS

According to Bernie Deckys, a manager of Costco Real Estate Services, “sellers are more willing to negotiate. There are many more homes for sale, they are taking longer to sell and sellers are reducing prices and more frequently paying a portion of the closing costs.”

However, don’t lowball the seller because it won’t work, adds Deckys. “Offending a seller will most likely cause them to not want to negotiate.” At the same time, there is nothing wrong with asking for a few extras. “In a buyer’s market,” Deckys points out, “you don’t have to accept worn hardwoods, cracked tile or an old roof.”

In addition to what sellers offer, listing agents in some markets may be willing to work for less than the traditional 3 percent.

SELLING TIPS

You’ve probably heard the term “curb appeal.” Surveys indicate that a clean house with a fresh coat of paint and dazzling flowers out front can help potential buyers form a positive first impression. Now there’s also what might be called “virtual appeal.” Deckys says that “84 percent of home buyers use the Internet to search for homes, and one third of home buyers use the Internet first, before any other source.” That means presenting your house well online can determine whether buyers will even consider looking at it in person.

There are also key rooms in your home that can make or break a deal. According to the National Association of Realtors (NAR), 59 percent of homebuyers in 2007 remodeled or made improvements to their homes/key rooms within three months of purchase. Of those, 47 percent made improvements to the kitchen, 45 percent remodeled or improved a bathroom and 43 percent remodeled a bedroom. Budget permitting, if you’re thinking of making improvements in your home before selling it, focus on these key rooms to enhance buyer appeal.

TIPS FOR BUYERS AND SELLERS

The “creative” side of the real estate market is a growing phenomenon. From essay contests to auctions, deals and incentives are being offered. The following tips are intended too help you decide if a real estate gimmick is right for you.

•PROTECT YOUR HOME •PATIO •BUSINESS•

*from sun, wind, noise, intruders, golf balls

Essay contests

For the seller: Essay contests are a lot of work and take a lot of upfront money with no guaranteed success. Robert Irwin, author of The Armchair Real Estate Investor, says to be realistic about your home's appeal. If it's an historic gem, it may inspire essayists. If it's a cookie-cutter home in the suburbs, don't expect inspiring works.

For buyers: Make sure the contest is legitimate. Even though the entry fee is small, work the numbers and make sure you can actually afford the maintenance on the home in the event that you win.

Auctions

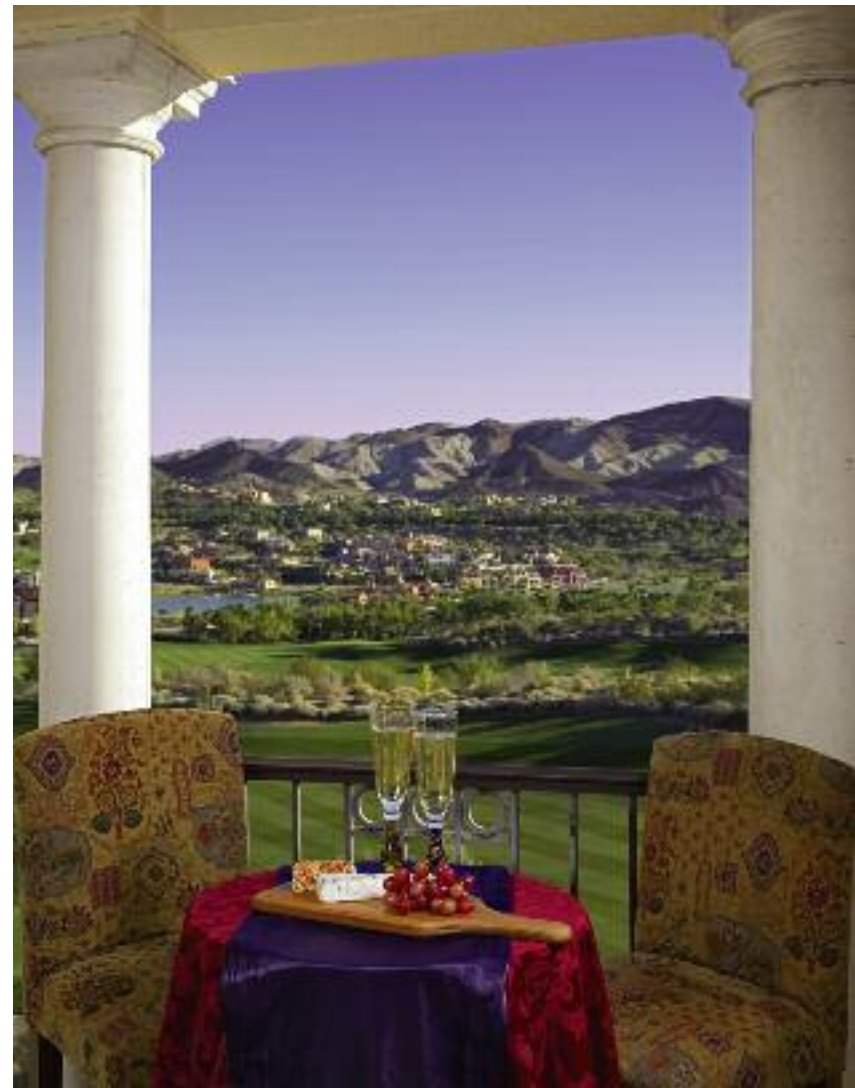

For the seller: Auctions can be especially useful if a house is unusual or difficult to price. "Done well, it can be an excellent way to market property," NAR spokesman Walter Molony says. "But, a lot of people who try an auction end up having to go the traditional route anyway because they can't get their minimum price."

For buyers: Inspect the property and set a limit on how much you are willing to pay. Don't get caught up in the excitement of an auction. Consider having only the family member with the most self-control at the auction.

Incentives

For the seller: Free stuff is great, but cash incentives may be the deciding factor for many buyers.

For buyers: Don't let the hot tub distract you from what really matters: the right house at the right price.

LUXURY IN SAN DIEGO

Legend (619.239.2339)

Completed in late 2007, it's the only development currently located next to Petco Park and the open-space area controlled by the Padres during ballgames. "Off-season, it's open to the public and it's our front yard," says Kagan. "Legend is 23 stories with a unique seventh-floor common area—a 3,000-square-foot rooftop deck that looks into the ballpark. You can watch a game there. With two fire pits, an outdoor fireplace and kitchen with bar, it's like a rooftop hotel overlooking the city...magical." LegendSanDiego.com.

Bayside (619.239.2339)

Featuring escape-worthy cabanas of a five-star resort, "It's the most luxurious in San Diego," says Kagan. "We dedicated more amenities here than in any other project. From L.A. down, we researched and wanted it to be the nicest." Square footage tops out at 3,200 for a penthouse, even more with the option to combine units. Still in pre-construction phase, it's one of the last San Diego waterfront residential sites available. Legend and Bayside both have a concierge, gym and pools, plus sumptuous party room with kitchen and top-quality interior finishes throughout. Bayside also offers a movie theater with popcorn-maker, dedicated wine-tasting area and conference room. BaysidebyBosa.com.

Lease options

For sellers: This is one way to cover expenses and entice buyers or renters still trying to decide if buying a home is right for them. Sellers beware, however; in some states these transactions are highly regulated, so be sure you know the rules.

For buyers: If you're not ready to commit, this market is for you. Work with a real-estate expert who can negotiate on your behalf. A lease option may be right for you, provided you are dealing with a legitimate seller.

On behalf of everyone at Desert Golf Magazine, we hope you find your dream home; it's out there. Meanwhile, enjoy the summer and be ready for more "Ground Breaking News" in October.

If you know of any new golf-course communities in your area, please send an email to francoise@desertgolfer.com

CULTURE, BEAUTY AND LUXURY IN THE DESERT LANDSCAPE

Five Stars of the Desert

BY AARON ATWOOD

WHILE GOLF MAKES THE COACHELLA VALLEY A WONDER, THE RESTAURANTS ARE EXCELLENT AS WELL. HERE ARE FIVE RESTAURANTS YOU MUST TRY BEFORE YOU DIE!

PACIFICA IN PALM DESERT

The freshest of ingredients, a vibrant atmosphere and a multi-national vodka bar make Pacifica Seafood Restaurant a top hangout in Palm Desert. Executive Chef Kelly Walling brings rugged sophistication to the menu, putting a spin on fusion and emphasizing the best of local ingredients.

Pacifica's barbecued sugar-spiced fresh salmon and Chilean sea bass are superb representations of how far Pacifica will go for excellence. Seafood is delivered daily, giving Walling the freshest seafood in the desert to work with. A recent remodel of the bar and patio has added the x-factor, which puts Pacifica on the list of celebrities and locals alike.

The patio features three semi-private, climate-controlled cabanas that seat six and have become so popular there is currently a six-week waiting list to reserve one. The vodka bar astonishes in its complexity. More than 120 vodkas from 20+ countries make the selection expansive, yet the price is surprisingly appealing. For just $6, you get a three-ounce pour of some hard-to-find labels.

Pacifica is not uppity, though it has every right to be. Nightly dinner specials are a treat, and on Tuesdays, wine bottles are half price.

"There is a lot of excitement with the expansion of the bar and the cabanas," managing partner Mitch Epstein says. "The overall experience between the vodka bar, patio area, staff and guests really makes Pacifica warm and fun."

SPENCER'S IN PALM SPRINGS

American, European and Pacific Rim influences make Spencer's tasty; the location makes it special.

Dining on the patio overlooking the Palm Springs Tennis Club is a must, and if it's people watching you're after, early mornings and evenings are best. In fact, you can try both because Chef Urs Balmer has created a menu that will keep you coming back. With its spacious Bougainvillea Room seating 200 and immaculate landscaping, Spencer's is as perfect for a special event as it is for a romantic evening with just a few friends.

As for the menu, an abundant steak selection can't be passed up, but there are plenty of other temptations as well: breast of free-range chicken in a Dijon-tarragon reduction and breast of duck in a blueberry-port wine reduction, among them.

LANTANA AT THE HYATT GRAND CHAMPIONS RESORT

The newest eatery at the Hyatt Grand Champions Resort is Lantana, a contemporary addition to Indian Wells' restaurants. Breakfast, lunch and dinner are served in a setting that takes modern and makes it comfortable; the open-air kitchen is surprising and fun.

The menu is diverse, ranging from crab cakes Benedict to dry-aged New York strip. Lantana doesn't forget that its southwest desert location deserves recognition on the menu, too. Black bean soup and breakfast burritos are a great blend of old-school and innovation.

Save room for dessert. The offerings are sweet, smart and stunning. Date cake with date pistachio ice cream and a date cracker will keep you delightfully on your toes, while molten chocolate cake is an eruption of deliciousness.

ARNOLD PALMER'S IN LA QUINTA
 Chef Brett Maddock creates a place The King and his fiefs can enjoy by infusing traditional American fare with surprising twists. Arnold Palmer invited Maddock to join the team at La Quinta while the chef was working at Ritz Carlton's The Lodge at Rancho Mirage. Maddock quickly won accolades and a loyal following—as well as the favor of Palmer.

Stepping into the restaurant is like taking a step into Arnie's living room. Memories are reenacted on every vertical surface. Rooms are named and decorated with all things Palmer—The British Open, The U.S. Open, Arnie's Pub and The Masters. They're all enjoyable even without a menu, but tasting is truly believing in what Palmer envisioned when he set out to create an experience beyond the venue and décor.

Honey-soy glazed halibut and braised beef short ribs are perfect examples of Maddock's creativity, but they share space on the menu with comfort-food favorites like macaroni and cheese and slow-cooked meatloaf. The lobster macaroni and cheese with mushrooms brings the two influences together in a dish that can only be described as working man meets upscale, and it's perfection.

VILLA ABBATE IN RANCHO MIRAGE

Sicily collides with the desert at Villa Abbate; happily, the collision sparks something memorable and scrumptious. Walking into Villa Abbate you half expect to see Sinatra at a baby grand or your long-lost Italian uncle in the kitchen. You know instinctively this isn't some chain-come-lately with sauce from a jar.

Owner Jack Abbate is channeling his grandmother and mother who immigrated from the mother country to the United States in 1912. The valley is better for his commitment to keeping things the same as they've been for centuries. Abbate uses fresh ingredients and a style that only winks at the future while embracing the past.

Olive oil and tomato provide the base on which most dishes are built, making the menu a culinary celebration of all things Italy

Roadster Revolution

TESLA MOTORS RELEASES THE FIRST ELECTRIC SPORTS CAR—ZOOM ZOOM, INDEED

BY AARON ATWOOD

IT SEEMS THE WORLD IS NEVER OUT OF FIRSTS. FIRST MAN ON THE MOON. FIRST KISSES. FIRST FULLY ELECTRIC SPORTS CAR ON THE OPEN MARKET

Going green has its part in this ever-changing world of carbon emissions, and luxury has only flirted with the concept until now. The new Tesla Roadster is changing everything. This electric-powered dynamo has the guts and the intellect to make driving easy on the conscience and still exciting.

Say goodbye to the rounded, bubble-like proto types of the mainstream hybrid revolution. Those cars wouldn't know performance if they were parked on Broadway. Tesla is aiming to shatter the misconception that you can't boast about your vehicle's 0 to 60 time and still go easy on the ozone.

You know that feeling when it seems gravity has suddenly turned sideways to pin you to the driver's seat, when the whole earth is spinning in a direction to force you against the leather? That isn't some driving god enacting a mythical spell. That feeling is torque, and the new Tesla Roadster has it pouring from every seam.

Much has been made of the preliminary production talk surrounding this car. Several aspects of the Tesla Roadster pay homage to the Lotus Elise. The chassis, for example, shares features, and the dash and steering wheel are nearly identical. Tesla is quick to point out that they are very different machines, however.

"One of the more common misconceptions about the Tesla Roadster is that it is an electrified Lotus Elise," says Darryl Siry, vice president of sales, marketing and service. "If you were to try to convert an Elise to a Tesla and started throwing away parts that aren't carried over, what you would basically be left with is a windshield, dashboard (complete with airbags), front wishbones and a removable soft top."

The difference, perhaps, is most startling when you turn the key and hear silence. Well, a series of recognitions gives the green light to go, but otherwise, simply silence. No piston grumble, starter grinding, camshaft whirring or exhaust heaving.

Aside from the fact that sitting at a stoplight creates less greenhouse gas than a dairy farm, perhaps the greatest result of the electric vehicle movement is the quiet that comes with the absence of combustion. If you are one whose heart races at the baritone song of a muscle car, the Tesla will get your adrenaline meter into high gear.

Push the accelerator and wham! This is an instant lesson in the laws of torque and power. Torque is the only thing a driver actually feels. Most combustion engines operate under what is called a torque curve—reaching maximum glue-you-to-your-seat torque in a range between 2,000 and 5,000 rpm.

The Tesla Roadster has a torque curve that plateaus at zero rpm with the tabletop running through 6,000 rpm. That means rocket propulsion through what most cars consider the red line. The roadster doesn't even think red until 13,000 rpm. Prepare to peel yourself from the interior.

"I really think this is the most fun car I've ever owned, beating out the McLaren F1 and my 2007 Porsche 911 Turbo," Tesla Board Chairman, Elon Musk writes on his are expected to last between 100,000 and 150,000 miles. Talk around the electric-vehicle market is that advances in battery efficiency and charge rates will someday make worries about range and wait to charge sound like discussion of dial-up Internet service.

According to Tesla's figures, after calculating the cost of the electricity you're looking at about a 135-mpg equivalent or two cents per mile. That may make the price tag look reasonable.

Priced at $98,000, the Roadster inventory is already spoken for in 2008.

blog. "You can achieve max acceleration every time with ease. Try to do that on a Viper or a Porsche Carrera GT and you'll burn out your clutch within a week and destroy your rear tires."

The result of a transmission redesign was a stronger power center and a one-gear drive train. Now, says Tesla, the Roadster will whisk its tree-hugging owners from 0 to 60 in 3.9 seconds, and do it while making every hybrid car look like a geriatric gas-guzzler.

The Tesla Roadster is able to run for about 200 miles on every charge. Batteries

While Tesla Motors sets up its sales facilities in Menlo Park, Calif. and West Los Angeles, potential buyers will have to scramble to get on the waiting list for a 2009 model. You can find details on the website at teslamotors.com.

Tesla's first non-prototype was delivered to Musk in February. The board chair, founder of Paypal and ultra-rich entrepreneur was eager to get his baby on the road. Tesla posted video of an early drive.

"It will probably take about a year to get one," says Musk on the Tesla website. "The goal of Tesla is to help drive forward the electric-car revolution and make electric cars more accessible. We're working on a sedan at about half the price of the Roadster."

Musk says he's not satisfied with just one thing: the seats. He has engineers working on a new design. Ah well, nothing's perfect—not the first time anyway.

Style Profile: Van Linsey

TIMELESS, TAILORED, FEMININE—A DEBUT LADIES' LINE BRINGS CLASSIC LINES TO THE COURSE

BY DANA LAUREN BERRY

“SUGAR AND SPICE AND EVERYTHING NICE,” THE OLD ADAGE ABOUT LITTLE GIRLS, ALSO FITS PERFECTLY FOR DESIGNER VANESSA GOBES’ DEBUT LADIES’ LINE, VAN LINSEY. THE 2008 COLLECTION IS NOT TRENDY OR OVERDONE; THE CLASSIC DESIGNS HAVE CLEAN LINES AND SIMPLE COLORS, MAKING THEM THE PERFECT EVERYDAY PIECES AND A SWEET NEW ADDITION TO WOMEN’S GOLF WEAR

Gobes conceptualized Van Linsey in 2002, when she says stylish golf apparel was “downright nonexistent.” Today, Gobes says she’s pleased that the world of golf fashion has a pulse.

“There are fantastic boutique designers out there and everyone is offering something a little different, as do I. My designs are for the uber-feminine, classic, young sophisticate. I stay away from trendy colors and bold prints.”

Much of the Van Linsey collection is centered on white, often with a simple belt or collar providing an accent color. “I love white, it’s simple, crisp and summery and looks fab on the greens,” notes Gobes.

The signature piece in the Van Linsey collection is the white Club Dress, $159, accentuated with Swiss dots on the collar and the built-in sash belt. In a soft Supima cotton jersey knit, the swingy fit is ideal for the greens, or après golf—definitely offering a sassy look that one could also wear to a party. The micro fleece funnel neck top is a favorite of Gobes; with its fitted look and cozy feel, she says it really moves with your body.

Inspired by the late 1950s and early 1960s, the line offers structured, flattering pieces with classic cuts. The A-line ladybug skirt, skort and seersucker pedal pushers are throwbacks to this simpler era.

“My muse is that chic country-club member who enjoys feminine, tailored, timeless collection pieces,” says Gobes. “She loves natural fibers and simple lines.”

The flattering boat-neck tee, $49, looks great with the Van Linsey belt, in vibrant colors and patterns with loops to hold golf tees. The overall line is priced between $49 and $159, and Gobes is proud that at this price point, the entire line is produced in the U.S.A.

“We are committed to American manufacturing,” she adds. “That ‘Made in the USA’ label is incredibly important to Van Linsey and to our customer. We are able to produce a beautiful, quality garment in Boston and still maintain extremely fair prices.”

Gobes also proudly proclaims her debut line a collection of “pieces I really believe in.” Instead of offering a multitude of items, the Van Linsey collection is nine pieces strong, all intended to be essentials.

“I think the entire collection is must-have—I’m excited about and proud of each piece,” says Gobes.

The line is so new it’s just starting to make waves at country clubs and golf boutiques, so for now the best place to peruse and buy is online at vanlinsey.com. Gobes has been in discussions to outfit LPGA pros in Van Linsey’s finest, so it’s only a matter of time before this candy-sweet line is on everyone’s lips. Gobes already has her 2009 collection in the works, and is excited to offer an eco-friendly bamboo swim cover-up, among other new designs.

WHAT TO LOOK FOR IN A LOCKET

SUSAN EISEN, AUTHOR OF CRAZY ABOUT JEWELRY, SHARES TIPS ON HOW TO BUY A LOCKET.

LOCKETS ARE NOT SUPER EASY TO FIND; NOT ALL STORES CARRY THEM. DO SOME RESEARCH TO FIND A JEWELER THAT OFFERS THE STYLE OF LOCKET YOU'RE SEEKING.

CHECK FOR THE THICKNESS OF THE PRECIOUS METAL. IF IT'S VERY THIN AND STAMPED OUT BY A MACHINE, THE CHANCE FOR DAMAGE IS GREATER. THE THICKER IT IS, THE MORE DURABLE IT WILL BE AND THE LONGER IT WILL LAST.

THE HINGE SHOULD BE TIGHT, AND THE CLASP SHOULD BE TIGHT, SO WHEN YOU CLOSE IT YOU HEAR A CLICK.

A LOCKET THAT IS REPOUSSÉ CHASED, WHERE THE DESIGN IS PUSHED OUT FROM THE BACK, KIND OF LIKE AN EMBOSING, IS MUCH MORE VALUABLE AND FEELS A LOT MORE SCULPTURAL. LOCKETS WITH GEMSTONES AND DIAMONDS ALSO ARE MORE VALUABLE AND MORE SOUGHT AFTER.

PRESENTING THE LOCKET TO THE RECIPIENT IN A BEAUTIFUL BOX WITH A POUCH TO KEEP IT IN IS A GOOD WAY TO PREVENT DAMAGE. SINCE LOCKETS ARE HOLLOW, IF THEY ARE NOT TAKEN CARE OF PROPERLY, THERE IS MORE CHANCE FOR SCUFF MARKS AND DENTS.

Just when you thought paradise couldn't get any better, the desert's most famed golf resort unveils not one, but two brand new championship courses. First came the stunning Clive Clark-designed Celebrity Course with its challenging bunkers, waterfalls, creeks and ponds. And now, the spectacular John Fought-designed Players Course brings classic Riviera-style play to this true desert oasis. A breathtaking 53,000 sq.-ft. clubhouse completes this new $75 million golf complex, a luxurious addition to Renaissance Esmeralda's atmosphere of unspoiled indulgence—including pampering guestrooms, dazzling pool terrace, and the transformative Spa Esmeralda.
