Dragon Ridge Country Club

A DISCERNIBLE DIFFERENCE!

BY CHRISTINE LOOMIS

DRAGONRIDGE COUNTRY CLUB IN HENDERSON, NEVADA IS THE EPITOME OF THOUGHTFUL, DYNAMIC DEVELOPMENT. AT THE HEART OF IT IS THE STUNNING NATURAL BEAUTY OF THE TERRAIN AND AN ENVIABLE ELEVATED LOCATION WITH UNPARALLELED VIEWS ACROSS THE VALLEY — PENTHOUSE VIEWS, THEY CALL THEM, BUT WITH NO HIGH RISE IN SIGHT. DESIGNED TO FIT SEAMLESSLY INTO THAT TERRAIN IS A SUPERB GOLF COURSE AND CLUBHOUSE AND HOME SITES POSITIONED WITH METICULOUS CARE.

Since DragonRidge opened in 2000, it has enjoyed what owner and president Richard MacDonald describes as a “win-win” relationship with nearby upscale resorts. Resort guests have been able to play the exceptional course, and that has helped get the word out about DragonRidge Country Club as well as the MacDonald Highlands development of which it is a part.

In fact, word has been so good that real estate sales are off the charts, and a number of residences are nearing completion. “It’s a good problem to have,” says

MacDonald, “and it allows us to take the next step. Our goal was always to be a private club and to preserve the golf experience we all worked so hard to create.”

That goal is to be expected in a community that MacDonald describes as the upscale community in the area. Lots here go from $1 million to $4 million, semi-custom homes start at $1.4 million. And the focus is most definitely quality, not quantity.

“Rather than focus on trying to increase density, we increase quality and charge more for it — larger lots positioned to capture the exceptional views and take advantage of the land. That's what we believe our buyer wants, and our success bears that out," says MacDonald.

The homes being built here do not follow the "Tuscan trend" so prevalent in other Nevada developments. "You won't see a red roof here," notes MacDonald. Instead the concept is to preserve the area's natural beauty and to build homes that fit seamlessly into it. "It's more of a contemporary Frank Lloyd Wright concept," MacDonald says, "homes with lots of windows that utilize and fit into the terrain. Desert Elegance, for lack of a better term."

"THE BIGGEST COMPLIMENT WE GET FROM PLAYERS WALKING OFF THE COURSE IS THE VIEWS," SAYS MACDONALD

In fact, the homes in MacDonald Highlands are more reminiscent of those in the Palm Springs area than anywhere around Las Vegas, and that's just one more element that sets the community and club apart.

Another is the world-class championship golf course named for the Sleeping Dragon rock formation above it and designed by Jay Morrish and rising architect David Druzisky. In a few short years the course has strategically placed bunkers conspire to demand precision shot selection. Situated in one of the highest areas of the valley, the par-72, 7,039-yard layout offers greater elevation change than any other course around, for another level of challenge. But it's not necessarily the challenge that sticks courts and room for tennis instruction as well.

Meanwhile, members and guests can enjoy the dramatic views and architecture of the clubhouse as it is.

won numerous accolades, having been voted #1 Golf Course of Las Vegas in 2002 by Nevada Business Journal and Best Upscale Golf Course in 2004 according to Vegas Golfer Magazine. DragonRidge has hosted both the Tiger Woods Foundation's Tiger Jam III and IV and Wendy's 3 Tour Challenge.

The two architects set out to make the course playable for all skill levels but to "always keep players off balance." The result is a superb golf course in which preserved natural rock outcroppings, desert washes and with most players. "The biggest complement we get from players walking off the course is the views," says MacDonald. Not surprising considering 75 percent of the course is blessed with dramatic vistas out across the valley.

Among other evolutions at DragonRidge is the expansion of the 42,000-square-foot clubhouse to include fitness and childcare facilities, possibly a small spa and a cappuccino/smoothie/frozen yogurt bar where kids and families can get together. There will also be five tennis

Like other buildings in the community, the clubhouse reflects its surroundings. The design includes stonewalls and buttresses that mirror the lines of ridges and a color palette drawn from the hills and rocks, so the building seems almost a natural part of the landscape. It is one more example of the developer's attention to detail and to nature itself.

The club has several dining venues, including the Onyx Grill and the more formal Montrose Room, all under the direction of award-winning capped in the high 300s or low 400s.

“Never live in your own development” is a cardinal rule among developers, but MacDonald doesn’t just work at DragonRidge and MacDonald Highlands, he lives here, too. “I live here and I like that,” he says, noting that he wants to be the first to know there’s a problem. He’s among a diverse group of residents, which is currently about 40 percent couples in their 30s and 40s with young families.

The mix also includes retirees and folks with more than one home who enjoy time in Las Vegas.

While DragonRidge has enough to keep residents happily occupied, all that Las Vegas itself offers lies but a short 15 or 20 minute drive away — exceptional dining, shows and the world-famous Strip.

“It’s fun to go to Las Vegas and immerse yourself in that organized insanity along the Strip,” says MacDonald, ‘then come home to see foxes and quails and incredible sunsets. It really is the best of both worlds.”

chef Paul Elliott. Ultimately there will also be a grill that will alternately host the men and women members.

Residents and prospective members have a number of membership categories to choose

Discovery Land Company

DISCOVER THE BEST IN PRIVATE LUXURY LIVING

BY SCOTT KAUFFMAN

WHEN ARIZONA NATIVE MIKE MELDMAN SET OUT TO DEVELOP KUKIO GOLF AND BEACH CLUB SEVERAL YEARS AGO ON THE BIG ISLAND OF HAWAII, HIS VISION WAS TO CREATE THE PREEMINENT PRIVATE RESORT COMMUNITY IMAGINABLE, EVEN SURPASSING THAT OF THE ADJACENT FOUR SEASONS RESORT HUALALAI HE HAD VISITED FOR YEARS.

Meldman accomplished that goal and then some — evident by the quick sellout of 375 custom estate homesites that sold for an average price of more than $5 million per acre. Now, Meldman's private real estate firm, San Francisco-based Discovery Land Co., is looking to duplicate that magic on the Mainland with his latest La Quinta, Calif. project: The Madison Club.

According to Madison Club sales executive Alan Gambill, the invitation-only club is intended to be a flagship community within the Discovery portfolio, much on the same scale as Kukio. In fact, Meldman, chairman/CEO of Discovery Land, even refers to The Madison Club as the "Kukio of the Desert."

whose team sold close to $1 billion in real estate at Kukio. "It caters to the finest tastes — people who basically have everything. We just tried to give them the one thing (they didn't have). And it's a great addition to their lifestyle."

The Madison Club, limited to 225 members, is being designed to deliver the same experience. For example, prices for the half-acre estate lots are $1.5 million to $5 million, according to Meldman. Of course, one of the focal points driving interest in the Madison Club (initiation fee is $200,000) will be another fabulous golf course designed by Meldman's favorite architect, Tom Fazio.

"You look at the Palm Springs area and there's hundreds of golf clubs," maintained grass in the desert — and numerous 50-60-foot-tall pine trees and other deciduous trees unlike anything else in the desert.

"We want to do Shadow Creek on steroids," says Meldman, who has developed numerous other top-notch courses with Fazio, including Estancia and Mirabel in Scottsdale and Iron Horse in Whitefish, Montana. "When

KUKIO

To be sure, the Madison Club doesn't quite have Kukio's dramatic Kohala Coast as a draw, but there will be a number of other attractive similarities between the communities once Meldman's masterful group completes its latest West Coast wonder. For example, the Madison Club will be another exclusive low-density enclave, comprising of just 193 custom homesites and approximately 25 exquisitely designed Villa Homes crafted by Discovery Land builders. Additionally, the club has plans for five to six "Clubhouse Member Suites" for short-term visits by members and guests.

"Kukio, as you know, is one of the greatest places on earth," says Meldman, Meldman says. "We're taking the concept to the next level — imagine building your own private golf course for yourself without any constraints — that's the feel we want."

To get an idea of the extremes Discovery Land has taken to distinguish itself in the desert, Fazio's design team moved approximately five million cubic yards of earth — almost double the earth moved at highly acclaimed Shadow Creek in Las Vegas. Consequently, what was once a flat piece of desert is now punctuated with breathtaking gorges that drop 40-55 feet feet down to the bottom of the creek bed. Additionally, Madison Club will have 250 acres of turfgrass — probably the largest stand of Fazio did Shadow Creek, he created this beautiful forest in the Las Vegas desert. I said let's do more than that. Keep in mind they did Shadow Creek over 10 years ago. Fazio's company is a better design team now, and we've been together for such a long time that we've learned what we like to do when it comes to developing real estate and the golf.

"In the desert, a lot of golf courses have a lot of design constraints. We spared no expenses; I mean we were buying trees three years ago so they would be as mature as they are today. What we've created is an Old World golf course — a Riviera and Bel Air in the desert."

As for the architecture of the homes, expect a distinctive style reminiscent to California's old-line

When asked how well the Madison Club is doing, Gambill replied, "Let's just say sales are going very well."

Adds Meldman, a 47-year-old devoted father of two teenage boys: "This is just meant to be the best of the best. What we've done (at Madison benchmarks for the finest private resort-style communities in each of their respective markets, but models for first-class family-centered low-density developments. It's the latter element that energizes Meldman as much as anything, considering he has such great respect for the land.

This reverence for the land, not real estate mind you, is clearly evident when Meldman speaks of the rare resources that serve as the palette to many of his acclaimed projects. In Scottsdale, it's the awe-inspiring beauty of Pinnacle Peak, which serves as the backdrop to a 267-home community on 690 acres (original zoning permitted 800 lots); at Kukio, it's the gorgeous Kohala coastline that hugs the picturesque waters of the Pacific Ocean and 375 custom homesites on 1,400 acres; at 820-acre Iron Horse, it's the amazing combination of being near popular resort amenities such as Glacier National Park, Whitefish Lake and Big Mountain ski resort (permitting allowed up to three times the number of 311 eventual homesites.

country clubs as well, a place where the ambiance is one of quiet sophistication, intimacy and understated luxury.

"The quality of architecture on the custom homes is what you'd see in a Bel Air," Gambill says. "It could be French Provincial, Italian Provincial — trendy yet traditional."

If past Discovery Land communities are any indication, it might be wise to hurry up and get a piece of the Madison Club, which runs contiguous to The Hideaway. For instance, at the Hideaway, a 36-hole upscale gated community mired in financial and legal problems when Discovery Land Co., assumed control several years ago, is wrapping up the development after selling out 445 custom homesites in less than two years. Lot prices ranged between $250,000 and $850,000, according to Hideaway vice president of marketing and sales Nick Blodgett. Today, the land has almost doubled in value, Blodgett says, as the Hideaway prepares its final stage of development on 23 "bungalows" adjacent to the new 51,000-square-foot clubhouse expected to open this May.

EL DORADO

Club) is just so different from anything you've seen. We didn't want it to be the same old club. With the demographics today, people really want the best and they're willing to pay for it. (The Madison Club) will blow 'em away."

That should go without saying, considering everything Discovery Land develops ends up being not only

As Meldman describes it, building golf courses and luxurious custom homes and clubhouses is something anyone can do as long as they have capital. It's the intangibles that make the difference.

"The quality has to come from the land, and those hard-to-get natural amenities," adds Meldman, who majored in U.S. history at Stanford University and even likens his eight-year-old firm to the great explorers such as Lewis & Clark. "Our clients are high achievers. And our buyers are actually getting younger, rather than older. Their time is at a premium and they want to spend it with their families.

"Sure they want great golf, but they also want other active diversions, whether it's wakeboarding, snowboarding and fly fishing in Montana, or surfing, spear fishing and scuba diving in Hawaii. They want a variety of ways to go out and enjoy the land."

IRON HORSE

One of the next great places to enjoy Mother Nature at its finest, not to mention Discovery Land's signature amenities and service, is on Mexico's Baja Peninsula at El Dorado Golf & Beach Club. Located in the fast-developing region of Los Cabos, El Dorado is a new 520-acre project shaping up to be an exquisite gated beach and golf resort community. Being situated along the popular "Golden Corridor" that connects San Jose del Cabo to Cabo San Lucas is special in itself. Throw in the fact Discovery Land controls more than a mile of arguably the most breathtaking beaches along the entire coast of the Sea of Cortez, and El Dorado has the makings to be the finest family-oriented club community in Mexico.

If anything, this compelling Cabo site gives Discovery Land the opportunity to offer some of the most dramatic beachfront homesites, a spectacular beach club and a Jack Nicklaus-designed golf course that some say might be one of his most beautiful layouts.

"The property may be, physically, one of the best pieces of property we have in our portfolio," says Meldman, whose private enclave is nestled between the renowned Las Ventanas and Palmilla resorts. "There's literally over a mile of beachfront along the Sea of Cortez. The property is kind of terraced, so there's basically 270 degrees of ocean views. It's stunning."

Indeed, and it's a prime palette for the Nicklaus Signature course, a delightful layout that responsibly interfaces with the ocean and plays into an unspoiled valley sprinkled with gorgeous desert landscapes. The Discovery Land team did a major renovation of the existing course, completely redoing the greens, reversing the routing of the front and back nines and adding tens of millions in landscaping. It was scheduled to open this December.

"I think it's one of Nicklaus' best golf courses and we're making it even better," says Meldman, whose company also has another ambitious oceanfront project underway in the Bahamas called Baker's Bay Golf and Ocean Club. "We're spending more on landscaping than we spend on (building) golf courses."

MIRABEL

El Dorado Golf & Beach Club is actually being developed by Discovery Land for its majority owners, Rockpoint Group LLC and Cabo Real. Rockpoint is a multi-billion institutional real estate investment fund based in Boston, and Cabo Real is a local real estate group owned by Mexico's prominent Sanchez-Navarro family that's noted for developing Cabo Real and owning Corona Beer.

According to Meldman, the latter partner has been critical in the success of El Dorado because of its respected and influential ties to the local market.

"They're phenomenal partners, and a very well connected family in the community," adds Meldman, an athletic laid-back man who loves golfing and fishing. "They owned a lot of coastline in Cabo, but decided to put (the former) El Dorado (golf course) where it is today. This was meant to be their prime asset and they could've put it anywhere. But they felt this was the most impressive place for it, and I agree."

Discovery's master plan at El Dorado calls for 87 custom homesites that range from one-third to one-plus acre and 123 high-end single-family developer residences. Of the developer residences, 45 will be Beach Villas (1,500-2,500 square feet; 3-to-4 bedrooms), 30 will be Golf Villas (2,700-3,700 square feet; 3-to-5 bedrooms) and 24 will be condos (3,000 square feet; 3-to-4 bedrooms). All of the homesites and residences will enjoy spectacular beachfront locations and/or ocean, golf and desert mountain views.

The private, non-equity club will be limited to 395 members.

Besides the championship golf course and beach club, the 24-hour, guard-gated community will feature home care and maintenance programs and the following amenities: world-it's like cruising the French Riviera or Sardinia."

In all, it's a formula that is soundly resonating with Discovery Land's network of approximately 3,000 loyal members and residents. And Meldman makes a point that investing in Mexico is a safe and sound investment, particularly with Discovery Land's development and marketing team at the helm.

According to Discovery Land, Mexico changed its constitution in the 1990s to allow foreign ownership of beachfront property, basically granting class resort communities such as Las Ventanas or Palmilla, is the "integrity of its amenities package and service."

"I like Palmilla and Las Ventanas," Meldman adds, "but they're resorts. The concept and strategy behind our project is to create something like Palmilla and Las Ventanas and make it private.

"So you have all the amenities of these five-star resorts, but there's only 350 families that can use this place. Also, we really get to know our families and really get to know their kids. It's more of an intimate level of service than just a high standard of service. Plus, we're unique in that we try to stay within our niche of very high-end private club community development."

Albeit a niche that has grown considerably since Meldman started Discovery Land almost 10 years ago from the success of Estancia. Today, Discovery Land's portfolio counts no less than 13 of North America's most luxurious private communities, including the new Gozzer Ranch Golf and Lake Club under development on a rocky bluff above Lake Coeur d'Alene in Idaho and Mountaintop Golf and Lake Club in the popular Highlands-Cashiers region of the western North Carolina mountains.

So the question that begs to be asked is, when does Discovery Land's mastery of the business reach its limit?

"Even though we keep doing more deals, it's not like hotels where we continue to manage the development," Meldman says. "As we start new deals, others are finished. So our capacity keeps growing. As long as we keep evolving and learning, I think we can make every deal better."

"There's no reason to stop, I'm having fun, I go to nice places and hang out with great people. We're doing more stuff in Hawaii. I'd love to do stuff in Europe. Maybe China. As long as we continue to find great deals, we'll keep going. Otherwise, I wouldn't know what to do with myself."

Indeed, spoken like a true entrepreneur and explorer.

American buyers constitutional protection and rights. Under current Mexican law, any individual is permitted to own land through a trust that is set up through a bank and controlled by that individual. As the landowner, you are the beneficiary of the trust which allows you the same rights as you have over your property in the U.S. — meaning you can sell, rent, lease or build on it.

"Our credibility, created by our well-established track record of high-quality projects and high-quality service brings a sense of security and long-term value," he adds. "Also, when Americans buy real estate (in Cabo) they get American title insurance. So you have all the protections you have when buying in the U.S."

YOUR SEARCH FOR PARADISE IN THE SUNNY
CALIFORNIA DESERT IS OVER

BY FRANÇOISE RHODES

“WHERE LESS IS MORE” IS A SIMPLE STATEMENT DESCRIBING AN IDEAL LIFE IN AN IDEAL SETTING. IMAGINE 600,000 ACRES OF STATE PARK AS YOUR BACKDROP FOR 18-HOLES OF CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF, ACCENTUATED BY A LIFESTYLE MIRRORING THE ERA OF “WHERE EVERYBODY KNOWS YOUR NAME” AND GREETES YOU WITH A FRIENDLY SMILE AND WAVE.

There is just such a place – de Anza Country Club, where small town hospitality and the luxuries of private country club living come together amid the natural splendor of Anza-Borrego Desert State Park and close to the unique community of Borrego Springs.

Eagerly offering testimonial about life at de Anza and its uniqueness, Rudy Regalado, former infielder for the 1954 Champion Cleveland Indians, says, “We’re enjoying our 29th year at de Anza Country Club where the genuine family atmosphere lights our lives. There is no stranger at de Anza.”

For honorary member Tom Meeks, recently retired USGA Senior Director of Rules and Competitions, de Anza is “a beautiful golf course in superb condition with firm, fast greens. It is easy to walk for those golfers who wish Bolstering that sentiment is de Anza’s wealth of activities and offerings: golf outings, desert expeditions, catered private parties, business services and bridge lessons, for example. Social outings are regularly organized by the club, giving members an opportunity to do as much or as little as they like, and always minus the hustle and bustle of the big city. And there are a variety of residences, too, from estate-sized single-family homes along the fairways to more modest winter retreat condominiums.

For golfers, life at de Anza is a happy indulgence. While the four-hour round may be virtually extinct at other to play and get their walking exercise in at the same time. The members are the friendliest I have ever met and you can play with anyone at anytime.”

And then there’s Denny Mays, de Anza’s head professional of 36 years and often referred to by members as the “people pro,” who adds the perfect touch to an already delightful experience.

Whatever the source of the magic, there is a common sentiment among the 200-plus members, be it industrial tycoon, homemaker, businessperson or retired serviceman; they can’t imagine playing golf or living anywhere else.

clubs, here on the tree-lined, manicured course, members can ride or walk as they choose and thoroughly enjoy the experience of playing their own golf course.

Built in 1956 and designed by Lawrence Hughes, the par-72, 6,778-yard layout is anything but the surrounding desert environment, thus creating a spectacular centerpiece for de Anza. Gorgeous mature trees line several of the lush fairways and serene lakes add additional challenge to a course designed to test the skill levels of all golfers. Colorful beds of flowers throughout the course are a precursor for the magnificent wild flowers blooming nearby in the state park.

And de Anza’s practice facility has it all: driving range, putting green, chipping area and bunkers, a must for Joan Powell, Women’s Western National Champion. “I enjoy the variety of golf shots available, the fine practice facility and the warm, friendly membership," says Powell.

Tournament players of all levels are also in paradise here as de Anza has extremely active men and ladies' golf clubs and hosts countless tournaments for members to choose from.

Before or after a round, the clubhouse beckons members to indulge in fine and casual dining with excellent dishes prepared by Chef Tim Donahue in the Bighorn Grill, Coyote Den or the main dining room of the clubhouse; and don't forget the delicious cookies and fresh fruit provided daily for golfers to nibble on.

Diego's cool ocean breezes, de Anza lies outside the quaint and charming village of Borrego Springs.

Borrego Springs is nature at its best, with excellent hiking, biking and camping as well as plenty of stunning scenery to provide inspiration for artists. And while "quaint and charming" remain the perfect description, the town is also thoroughly modern, offering residents and visitors an excellent airport and medical facilities, fine dining and all of the contemporary services one needs — without a traffic light to be found.

The Classic Club

A GIFT FOR VISITORS AND RESIDENTS ALIKE

TWO YEARS AGO NO ONE WOULD HAVE BELIEVED THAT A NEW GOLF COURSE IN THE COACHELLA VALLEY WOULD BE VIEWED AS A NOVELTY. BUT THE CLASSIC CLUB, MANAGED BY TROON GOLF AND GIFTED TO BOB HOPE CLASSIC CHARITIES, INC. BY THE BERGER FOUNDATION, EMERGES AS AN ANOMALY IN A NUMBER OF MEANINGFUL WAYS.

BY JOANNA BERESFORD • PHOTOS BY JOHN & JEANNINE HENEBRY

"WE'VE TRIED TO ESTABLISH THE FEELING OF A PRIVATE CLUB IN A PUBLIC SETTING," EXPLAINS PHIL HAMBRICK, DIRECTOR OF SALES AND MARKETING FOR THE CLUB. IN OTHER WORDS, THE PHILOSOPHY THAT DRIVES AND DEFINES ALL ASPECTS OF THIS CLUB SEEMS TO BE: THE BEST OF EVERYTHING FOR THE BENEFIT OF EVERYONE.

THE STRETCH OF TERRITORY NORTH OF VARNER ROAD STILL EXUDES THE VAST SENSE OF SPACE AND SKY THAT HAS DRAWN PEOPLE TO THE DESERT FOR CENTURIES. BEYOND THE HUM OF THE HIGHWAY, PERCHED ON THE EDGE OF ENVIRONMENTALLY PROTECTED WILDERNESS, THE CLASSIC CLUB GOLF COURSE OFFERS SWEEPING FAIRWAYS, SPARKLING WATER FEATURES, A PROFUSION OF FLOWERS AND A PERVASIVE ATMOSPHERE OF PEACE AND QUIET.

"It's a championship/tournament course," says Hambrick, "but it's still very playable for the average golfer."

An Arnold Palmer Company design, the course was built for the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic Tournament, providing ample gallery space, vendors' areas and reflecting the input and influence of PGA Tour players and the Bob Hope board of directors.

The design theme is simple, elegant and timeless. Instead of palm trees, visitors to the course will find the cool shades and soft edges of over five thousand pine, California pepper and olive trees. Thirty acres of lake and water features reflect the colors of the 40-acre landscape, and fourteen stone bridges traverse the course in graceful patterns. Complimentary water and snacks are available from wooden coolers along the fairways, and the Classic offers a unique caddy program throughout the season.

"We tell guests and members that we provide them with a butler for the day," Hambrick says, adding that professional caddies help golfers with yardage, bunkers and the reading of greens.

A 63,104 square foot Tuscan style Clubhouse will open in the fall of 2006. In addition to providing locker rooms and a full service golf shop, the facility will feature fine and casual dining, a member/pro lounge, high-end shops and amenities and a Bob Hope Museum — making the Clubhouse a preferred destination for valley residents and visitors. Meanwhile, the upper floors of the clubhouse will house the executive offices of the Berger Foundation. Their remarkable gift to the Bob Hope Charities has made the golfcourse and clubhouse possible, and their presence atop the structure represents a crowning achievement for this endeavor.

The engagement of Troon Golf to oversee the management of the Classic Club essentially guarantees the club's success. The largest and most prestigious golf management firm in the world, Troon currently manages golf clubs and communities in nearly fifteen countries and thirty states, with five corporate offices around the globe

(in Japan, United Arab Emirates, Australia, Switzerland and Scottsdale). The company has grown consistently throughout its history, in spite of fluctuations in the economic environment.

Hambrick attributes the company's accomplishments to a dedication to high standards and levels of service. "From agronomical standards to the kind of one on one service we provide to our guests, indoors and outdoors, it's all about excellence."

The Classic Club served as the host course for the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic Tournament this year and the response from players was tremendous.

"We couldn't ask for anything better than the comments we received from professional players, commentators and the media," claims Hambrick. "That's really what we're looking for — an exciting feel, an ability to give people what they're looking for in terms of golf and also in terms of the other services and amenities we provide."

An eight to ten year plan of growth for the Classic Club includes the construction of a five-star hotel with tennis courts and work-out facility, and high end condominiums offset from the golf course. And of course, a continuing presence in the community as home to the Bob Hope Charities and the namesake tournament that has contributed over $40 million to worthwhile organizations and individuals in our valley.

From the edge of a two tiered practice facility that features chipping greens, large putting and target greens, surrounded by foothills and snowcapped Mt. San Jacinto in the distance, all you can hear are the sounds of a gentle breeze and a nearby water feature wafting over the terrain. The smell of fresh grass fills the air, and it's easy to feel uplifted by the energy of this nascent club that began as a gift. And it's thrilling to realize that something as common to the Coachella Valley as another golf course can bring such hope and renewal to our community.

Straight Shooters & Long Drives Aim

FOR LAUGHLIN ENCORE

Amateur golfers across North America have been gearing up for the 2006 Pinnacle Exceptional Driver Championship or PEDC as its known, which launches its schedule of qualifying events in April. Winners of

The PEDC concept is fun, fast-paced and made a big hit with participants during its 2005 debut, as did the new site in Nevada. "We received tremendous feedback from the finalists and how impressed they were with the facilities at Laughlin Ranch Golf Club," said Art Sellinger, Sellinger, a Las Vegas native, was thrilled to stage the PEDC finals in his home state. "Laughlin gives us the cache of a top resort destination," he said. And the setting is spectacular. The contrast between the PEDC grid and the surrounding desert, especially under the lights at night, provides tremendous visuals for the ESPN telecast."

At the 2005 PEDC finals, a tricky, left-to-right crosswind gave players fits during the semifinals and finals, reducing point totals well below expected levels. Golfers who had amassed 60 points and higher during qualifying and preliminary rounds struggled to attain half that much. During the ESPN telecast, not a single PEDC competitor managed to earn the bonus sixth ball.

"No question, players had difficulty with conditions," Sellinger observed. "Putting balls in play was at a premium. Some top hitters were unable to make the necessary adjustments to find the grid."

Another factor of note was nerves. "Between the large gallery and TV cameras, it was a pressurized environment for amateur golfers," Sellinger said. "I think at this year's PEDC finals we'll see scores rise, if for no other reason than the familiarity factor. Things won't be as daunting for finalists in year two."

A Michigan resident, Jason Swihart, drove away with the 2005 PEDC title — and a Honda S2000 Roadster. Swihart adapted to the conditions by shortening his swing, teeing his Pinnacle Exceptions lower and hitting hard, tight draws down the PEDC grid. Swihart's score of 41 points provided a comfortable cushion over runner-up Kyle Kulling, who registered 25 points. Kulling, a Californian, had 33 points, the highest score in the semifinals.

BIG STAKES MATCH PLAY MEANS BIG MONEY

But Not Necessarily Big Names!

BY STEVE TRIVETT

GARTH MULROY AND DAVID PING 2005 CHAMPIONS

Considering that the United States Golf Association was originally founded to settle a bet, it should come as no surprise that the game would eventually come to this.

Two-man teams. Best-ball match play. A $9,000,000 pot. Winning team take $2,000,000. Seven days, seven matches. Over there is the first tee — have at it.

The second Big Stakes Match Play, a true multi-million dollar shootout, will be played May 20—28 across the three golf courses at the Las Vegas Paiute

Michael Jordan — you might remember him from the National Basketball Association — also sponsored a team. Rick Rhoden, who pitched in Major League Baseball and later dominated on the Celebrity Players Tour, played in the tournament. So did Dan Quinn and Pierre LaRouche of the National Hockey League, and Billy Joe Tolliver, a former NFL quarterback.

Speaking of the NFL and quarterbacks, Steve Bartkowski is the guy who runs the show. And it is a show.

his tee shot into the Arizona desert, he turned to his partner and told him to blast away with his driver — a questionable strategy at the time. Mulroy obligingly ripped his tee shot just short of the green on the par-4, 426-yard closing hole.

DAVID PING

Golf Resort — the Pete Dye designed layouts just north of the City that Never Sleeps.

By the way, the entry fee is a cool $50,000 per player. For the mathematically challenged, that's $100,000 per team.

There will be 128 teams, and if you win your first two matches you make back the $100,000-per-team entry fee. Forty teams will live the Las Vegas dream — they will be playing with house money. And when you play for that kind of money, the high rollers and the hustlers show up.

Last year, when the tournament was played just up the road at Mesquite, the winning team of David Ping and Garth Mulroy was backed by former National Football League lineman Ross Verba and current Atlanta Falcons lineman Barry Stokes.

"It's kind of like "Survivor" meets "Who wants to be a Millionaire" on the golf course," Bartkowski says. "It's all about who wants to stand up and compete."

Golf is a sport, but it's different than most. There are no guaranteed contracts. In golf, making money comes down to one thing: The better you play, the more you win.

Ping and Mulroy made the finals last year squaring off against Mark Mielke and Rick Hartmann. Ping was 27 and working his way around the mini-tours in the Southwest. Mulroy, 26, a transplanted South African who played his college golf at North Carolina State, was doing the same thing. Mielke, 42, and Hartmann, 46, are club professionals from New York State.

Going to the 18th tee, Ping and Mulroy held a 1-up lead. After Ping hit

GARTH MULROY

When Hartmann and Mielke failed to make birdie, they gave Mulroy a short putt — he had chipped to within three feet on his second shot — for the 2-up victory.

"Winning Big Stakes was just like winning the lottery," Ping said. "Except

RUNNER UP RICK HARTMANN FROM NEW YORK STATE

this had nothing to do with luck. We earned it.”

Yes they did.

And all of a sudden a pair of mini-tour “golf bums” were collecting the kind of cash that would make Tiger Woods, Phil Mickelson, Ernie Els and Vijay Singh drool.

“This is a big deal,” said Hartmann. “If someone tells you that it’s all about the win, it isn’t. It’s about the money.”

It was all about excitement and drama, too. Sports Illustrated sent a reporter to cover the event last year. The Golf Channel was there, also. And while you might not recognize the names of the winners or runners-up, they showed they know how to golf their balls — under considerable pressure.

“Big Stakes allows the most talented and bold to show their stuff,” Bartkowski says. “And they are doing it for a share of the largest purse in golf. You would be hard-pressed to find an event with more drama.”

ALICE COOPER AGAIN GAINS SUPERSTAR STATUS AS HIS TOURNAMENT CELEBRATES 10 YEARS OF SUCCESS

SEQUINS, BELLBOTTOMS, BOOGIE

THESE ARE NOT WORDS USUALLY ASSOCIATED WITH ALICE COOPER. HOWEVER, THINGS WILL CHANGE APRIL 23-25 WHEN THE ROCK LEGEND THROWS HIS 10TH ANNUAL CELEBRITY-AM, APTLY DUBBED "TEE TIME FEVER." FOR THE OCCASION, COOPER WILL TRADE HIS BLACK LEATHER AND BOOTS FOR, YES, A WHITE VEST AND PLATFORMS.

And that is what makes his celebrity tournament different from all the others. Fun is guaranteed, but you never know what to expect.

"My arch-enemy is disco," says Cooper, whose Phoenix-area, themed tournaments have raised more than $1.2 million for charity. "I spent 35 years as the villain of rock and roll, and now I have to put that aside. I have to totally throw away my pride."

Talon courses. Among the 50 celebrity golfers will be Dick Butkus and Tom Sneva. Two hundred amateurs will also take part, contributing $3,000 each to Cooper's Solid Rock Foundation, the non-profit entity that last year distributed $225,000 to numerous charities thanks solely to the success of the tournament.

Cooper and colleague Chuck Savale, along with a panel of 10 Solid Rock Foundation board members, also organize the

2005 FIELD OF CELEBRITIES

As Cooper celebrates this 10th anniversary, he can look back on a successful run of lead roles that have molded him into a different kind of star. Although he's still center stage, his image has been transformed from hellraiser to fundraiser, and over the course of his tournaments he has willingly decked himself out as Frankenstein, James Bond, Indiana Jones and now John Travolta. Humbling, yes. But also gratifying.

"When you start a tournament," Cooper says, "you never know how it's going to go. I was hoping to get through five years, and now it's 10. And we've had celebrities and amateurs who have been with us every year, which is great."

This year's two-day event will be held at the immaculate Grayhawk Golf Club in Scottsdale, on both the Raptor and annual Christmas Pudding fundraiser in Phoenix. The Foundation supports and contributes to charitable organizations that provide physical and spiritual assistance to teenagers and children in need.

"A child could have an eating disorder," Cooper says, "but the organizations we contribute to look at it as more than just a case of bulimia. They look at it on a spiritual level, as well as the physical, so a child can experience a double healing."

Oftentimes, the celebrities and amateurs that hit the links for Cooper's tournament are on one side of the financial spectrum, across from those that ultimately benefit. And the consistent generosity of those celebrities and amateurs is exactly why Cooper spares no expense to ensure that everyone is taken care of. Cooper and his sponsors provide everything from private jets that pick up the celebs in Hollywood to $1,500 in complimentary gifts for every participant.

"The emphasis is on having a great time," says Savale, the lead organizer for the event. "We go out of our way and want it to be a fun golf experience, a great weekend."

The festivities begin on Sunday night, April 23 with the pairings party and silent auction – disco-themed of course. Camelback Inn is serving as the host resort. Golf begins Monday morning, as each sports, music, television or film celebrity is paired with four amateurs. That night, Cooperstown restaurant, owned by Alice, plays host to a huge downtown party.

"Anyone who's an entertainer, and even some who can't, get up on stage and do something," Cooper says. "You might have Amy Grant up there with Megadeth. And everything is very interactive, so that everyone can meet and speak with everyone."

The amateurs take to their second 18-hole course at Grayhawk on Tuesday morning, with a different celebrity.

An awards luncheon culminates the tournament with some incredible prizes, including a few of Cooper's Gold Albums. In addition to golf bags provided by OGIO, Callaway furnishes a full set of clubs, a full set of irons and a full set of woods for the respective first-, second- and third-place winners.

"From Cheech Marin to Dennis Hopper," Cooper says, "everyone who's participated here has said this tournament is the most fun."

And Cooper's role in all the smiles and success can't be overlooked – even if it takes a minute to recognize him.

"You know," he says, before starting to hum, "I can do 'The Hustle.'"

RAISING FUNDS FOR ALZHEIMER'S RESEARCH AND SERVICES

RITA HAYWORTH, LEGENDARY GLAMOUR GIRL OF THE 1930'S AND 40'S, OFTEN ESCAPED THE HOLLYWOOD HOOPLA BY SPENDING TIME IN THE COACHELLA VALLEY. A FREQUENT GUEST AT THE VILLA ALTAMIRA IN PALM SPRINGS, HAYWORTH WAS OFTEN SEEN DURING THE DAY PERFECTING HER GOLF GAME ON THE COURSE, AND AT NIGHT ENJOYING THE FAMED CASA BLANCA LOUNGE (KNOWN TODAY AS MELVYN'S).

On April 20-21, at the inaugural Rita Hayworth Golf Tournament, the actress will be remembered in a different light – for bringing worldwide attention to the disease she once suffered from, Alzheimer's.

In the late 1950's, Hayworth's early symptoms of Alzheimer's began to impact her work, but the cause went undiagnosed in an era when little was known about Alzheimer's. As the disease gained momentum, Hayworth had difficulty memorizing her lines and became increasingly hostile and argumentative. By the time she made her last film, Wrath of God (1971), she had to be cued for every line. Hayworth was finally diagnosed with Alzheimer's in 1981, and her daughter, Princess Yasmin Aga Khan, cared for Hayworth until her death in 1987 at the age of 68.

A life member of the Alzheimer's Association National Board, Princess Kahn is known worldwide for her efforts in fighting the disease. She has raised more than $40 million for education and research, and will also now serve as chair for this inaugural tournament. A golfer herself, Khan says her handicap vacillates between 11 and 13, and fondly remembers riding in the golfcart with her mother, who frequently golfed in the valley when Khan was a child.

The two-day event includes a Sponsor's Golf Tournament on Thursday, April 20 at SilverRock Resort, La Quinta's newest Arnold Palmer-designed championship golf course. The Rita Hayworth Golf Tournament follows on Friday, April 21 and will be played at Thunderbird Country Club, one of the desert's oldest and most exclusive private courses.

Thunderbird Country Club will also host the special sponsor's reception preceding the Rita Hayworth Inaugural dinner Thursday evening, as well as the golf awards cocktail party and supper after tournament play concludes on Friday.

A number of sponsorship opportunities are available, ranging in price from $1,000 to $40,000. There is also a special sponsorship package that includes dining and golfing with Princess Kahn during the event. Individual tickets are available for $300 per person and include golf in the Rita Hayworth Tournament, cocktail party and awards supper on Friday at Thunderbird Country Club.

Proceeds from the tournament will support a variety of efforts, including the Alzheimer's Association's local services for families struggling with the disease. A portion of the monies raised will also go toward establishing a fund for the creation of a diagnostic and research center on the campus of Eisenhower Medical Center in Rancho Mirage, in conjunction with USC's Alzheimer's Disease Research Center in Los Angeles.

Commemorating its 25th anniversary this year, the Alzheimer's Association is the world leader in Alzheimer's disease research and support. Having awarded more than $150 million to nearly 1,300 projects, the Alzheimer's Association is the largest private provider of funds for Alzheimer's disease research. Through its 130 offices across the country, the organization provides community education and support services for Alzheimer's patients and their families. The Association's vision is a world without Alzheimer's disease.

Palm Desert Country Club

IS BACK AND BETTER THAN EVER!

BY FRANÇOISE RHODES • PHOTOS BY TIMOTHY J. PADE

ESTABLISHED IN 1962, THE LEGENDARY PALM DESERT COUNTRY CLUB IS ONCE AGAIN OPEN TO THE PUBLIC AND BACK IN THE SPOTLIGHT AFTER A CAREFULLY PLANNED AND NEARLY COMPLETED "EXTREME MAKEOVER."

Originally designed and built by renowned golf course architect Billy Bell Jr., Palm Desert Country Club has a wonderful history that is still talked about by club members, old and new. Recognized as one of the oldest courses in the desert, in the 1970's Palm Desert Country Club hosted a tournament for players not eligible for the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic called the Hope of Tomorrow tournament. Notable winners of this tournament were

While driving to the first tee, golfers are curious to see what a $12 million renovation might do to a course. Curiosity quickly turns to admiration after teeing off from a level tee box (close to extinction on many courses), then hitting a second shot from a well-manicured fairway on to perfectly cut green receptive to a good shot. The physical changes to the golf course include a new water feature with soothing small waterfalls surrounded by large blooming

Tom Kite and Rick Massengale, who both went on to win the Hope title.

When business partners Randy Case and Larry Kosmont were offered the opportunity to bring this historic 27-hole golf facility back to championship status, the answer was a definite "Yes." In order not to lose Bell's flare for golf course designs, Case immediately called Cary Bickler Sr., and Cary Bickler Jr., to work on this project. Noted for their renovations of a number of Bell courses, Kosmont explains, "We were convinced the Bickler's understood the bones of a Billy Bell course and wanted to preserve it, and take it up a notch. The idea was not to change the character but really just embellish the course."

flower beds defining the fairways for holes nine and 18. All 18 tees and greens have been rebuilt; bunkers have been reshaped, dead trees removed, landscaping redone, and a new cart path system constructed.

In order for the new vegetation to thrive, the removal of the old irrigation system was paramount replacing it with a $3 million computerized, state-of-the-art system that will save the course 600 acre feet of water per year.

Not to be forgotten is the new clubhouse, scheduled to open in June/July 2006. Once finished, this completely updated, remodeled and enlarged from 9,000 square feet to 13,000 square feet clubhouse will offer members a comfortable place to relax before or after their round. With a social calendar beginning to fill, the clubhouse will feature a large dining area, banquet and event capabilities, golfshop with the latest golf apparel and equipment, a full kitchen, and cocktail lounge, all staffed by an outstanding and attentive team of personnel.

For owners Kosmont and Case the focus at Palm Desert Country Club is on presenting a wonderful golfing experience for the members and their guests, each and every time they play. "The absolute most exciting thing for me," explains Case, "is how happy the City of Palm Desert and the residents are. We care deeply about all the 5,000 residents in the surrounding area and the members of the course. It's exciting when they come in and you can see it in their eyes how rewarded they are and we are for what we have done. It really is about people who have been with the club for a long, long time and how it's changed and how we've done well for them."

Palm Desert Country Club is a semi-private course that offers a variety of membership programs. The Founder Membership is available to existing golf members that "rejoin" during the identified period. A Signature Membership has limited availability for new members and then there is a Standard Membership program. Members may use their own golf carts for an annual fee or take advantage of the clubs carts. Green fees are $75 in the season, dropping somewhere in the thirties during the summer.

Palm Desert Country Club is located at 77-200 California Drive in Palm Desert, California. For membership information or to reserve a starting time, please call Palm Desert Country Club at (760) 345-2525.

ACCU-LENGTH

EXPANDABLE JUNIOR GOLF CLUBS

HIGH QUALITY, COST-EFFECTIVE SYSTEM GROWS ALONG WITH YOUNG GOLFERS

BY LISA PERRY

Eight years ago, Rick Rutter was like any other parent just getting his kids into junior golf—dropping a lot of cash on equipment that would be old news and outgrown in a year. Conversations with like-minded adults always revolved around a recurring theme: “Doesn’t anyone make expandable clubs for junior golfers?” When it was apparent that no one did, Rutter decided to take matters into his own hands. The result? Today, his company’s Accu-Length clubs are a hit and the buzz is growing just like the product itself.

“There’s a lot of gimmickry in the industry,” says Rutter, co-founder of OnTrack Sports, manufacturer of Accu-Length clubs. “There are a thousand putters out there and everyone has the best story about each one. Then every year, another 10 to 15 come out claiming how much they can improve your game. There’s a lot of innovation—some is real, some isn’t. We have to fight through that. Now we’ve gotten to the point that enough people and their kids are using our clubs and they’re talking to other people. It’s a great product. You have to look at it and say, ‘Does it make sense?’ Well, yeah, it does.”

The concept is simple and extremely user-friendly. In a nutshell, the grip screws off like a bottle cap to enable threading on a spacer. More length is added to the club with additional spacers as needed, allowing the club to grow with a child for about five years. Maintaining the appropriate length of club for a child is critical because properly fitted clubs keep a child’s swing motion consistent and help muscle memory as the child learns. Clubs that don’t fit correctly—clubs that are too long and that a child has to choke down on, for example—negatively impact the swing motion.

When told that a popular Web site tested the clubs and gave a glowing report, Rutter says, “Rave reviews are typical. Kids like the color scheme, and parents and teaching pros like the easy answer to ‘What should I buy?’ We’ve never had a really good single-solution answer. Now it’s clear cut.”

This is no fly-by-night, cheaply made product. “Relatively speaking, we’re 30 percent higher-priced than a static set of junior clubs, but those clubs are going to be made with different ingredients: alloy versus our stainless steel—what the pros use. And our shafts are graphite, like the tour players,” says Rutter. “You pay 30 percent more now, but get a 500 percent return after five years with cost-per-season, not having to buy another set. We make four sets of clubs. Typically our competitors have four sets, but theirs are a fixed length for four sizes, like socks. A 7-to-11 sizing doesn’t fit any foot perfectly. Our four sizes fit 20 lengths of clubs.”

Rutter and a partner applied for the expandable concept patent in 1998. Two years later, it was granted and On Track Sports was formed in 2001 specifically to make the clubs. After more years of testing, prototyping and putting money together, the product was finally launched in January 2005, at the annual PGA Merchandise Show in Orlando, Florida. There, the clubs won New Product of the Year in the equipment category, along with “a ton of interest,” says Rutter. Today, parents, coaches and kids are all singing their praises, including Rudy Duran who coached Tiger Woods from age four to 11. “He had a fitting system similar to ours, but was cutting clubs off,” says Rutter. “He knew Tiger was special and was trying to keep him fitted by chopping off percentages of adult clubs. But that didn’t answer flex of shaft, etc. He gets what we’re doing and is a big proponent of our product.”

Accu-Length clubs are sold primarily in pro shops and golf specialty stores, where customers can get personalized attention and a custom fit. For instance, “A pro will look at arm length as a variable to give you an even better fit,” notes Rutter. Five hundred retailers worldwide currently sell the clubs, and that number is growing rapidly.

“Our expectation is that we’ll be the biggest junior golf company by 2010 and our technology will become the standard in the industry for junior golfers,” says Rutter. That’s not an unfounded boast. Right now, with the company’s patent rights, Rutter has no direct competitors. “Nobody can expand a golf club shaft without going through us,” he says. Meanwhile, young golfers everywhere are benefiting from Rutter’s vision and persistence.

Bighorn's New General Manager

BY JOANNA BERESFORD

Dennis Nighswonger recently assumed the position of General Manager for Bighorn Golf Club in South Palm Desert. Dennis arrives after twenty years of experience in the realm of exclusive golf and country club management, and an impressive list of credentials and accomplishments have distinguished his career.

"We're thrilled that Dennis has accepted the position," announced Bighorn chairman, R.D. Hubbard. "He was our top candidate for this vitally important position because of his background and experience in the fine art of managing high end communities like Bighorn."

Dennis previously served as general manager of Thunderbird Country Club in Rancho Mirage, where he successfully directed the construction of their clubhouse — on time and on budget, much to the satisfaction of club members. While he acted as general manager for The Boulders Golf Resort in Carefree, Arizona, the facility was ranked as a #1 destination resort in the United States.

"Success is all about seeking excellence in every detail," says Dennis, who has also served as President of two chapters of the Club Manager's Association of American and sat on the board of directors for a third. The Association provides ongoing education for all levels of club management professionals, and the principle of lifelong growth and improvement defines Dennis' approach to both his role as General Manager of Bighorn and his aspirations for the club.

"Every job opportunity can teach you something new," Dennis asserts. "I will learn from the Bighorn staff, which is without a doubt the strongest management team I've ever worked with. Each individual has achieved a level of knowledge and experience that will make my job easier, will enhance my performance, and that all goes back to the members' satisfaction, which is what it's all about."

Above all, Dennis expects to learn from the club's legendary founder, R.D. Hubbard. Accepting the Bighorn offer marked the culmination of a decision making process that involved a significant amount of investigation. During this period Dennis talked to club members, leadership team members and other individuals in the community. The results of his inquiries were definitive.

"I was quickly convinced that R.D. Hubbard is probably the finest, most astute business person that I could ever work for. Everything he touches seems to work! The respect factor, his intellect and his business abilities are unequaled. I think it's an honor for me to be asked to come here."

The admiration is mutual. "Dennis displays not only a prodigious talent for organization and operational tasks, but also a genuine interest in people," explains Mr. Hubbard, in describing the new General Manager.

In spite of an outstanding resume and the admiration of his peers however, Dennis hasn't always been a managerial genius, at least not among humans. Born and raised on a cattle ranch outside Cheyenne, Wyoming, Dennis developed a strong work ethic and moral foundation as a child and young man, growing up in the heartland.

"I think my dad would be very proud," he says now. "From the humble beginnings of being a rancher to being at Bighorn, that's just worlds apart."

His responsibilities at Bighorn include construction of a brand new, 8,000 square foot steak house that will provide members with, according to Nighswonger, the finest dining experience in the Coachella Valley. Construction on the facility is, characteristically, ahead of schedule, and the very fact of its existence provides more evidence, in Dennis' opinion, of the club's unparalleled commitment to excellence.

"I'm not aware of any other club that would build an $8 million restaurant for the private use of its members. It's unheard of and it takes us to a whole new level of service." The restaurant will feature indoor/outdoor seating, waterfalls, fireplace, cigar room, private wine vaults and signature Bighorn views.

These renowned views, no matter how many times you glimpse them, can literally stop you in your tracks. Dennis sits in the clubhouse dining room, fire glowing in the grate, soft music wafting through the room. Framed by a wall of windows behind him, he cuts an elegant figure against a backdrop of lakes, mountains, golf course and the vast desert sky. Bighorn Golf Club has earned recognition around the globe as an exclusive community of prestigious homes, award winning architecture and design, breathtaking landscape, world-class spa, exclusive lifestyle and, of course, dramatic, championship golf. But according to Dennis Nighswonger, the magic of Bighorn goes beyond its list of amenities.

"I've been very warmly received here. Some of the warmest, most accepting people I've ever met belong to this club. They are down to earth and they love the staff and service rendered here."

For Dennis and his wife Lori, the appeal of Bighorn and the lure of the Coachella Valley are very simple. "This is a remarkable place," he says. "The bottom line is — it's good to be home."

SHANK PROOF.

Lower your score and completely eliminate the possibility of a shank just by putting the F2 Wedge in your bag! Guaranteed.

With the F2 Wedge, all you need to do is swing! Its patented design takes care of the rest.

The face of the F2 Wedge has been moved forward and the hosel back enabling the ball to strike and leave the clubface before grass or sand can grab the hosel and twist the clubface.

In sand, the F2 allows you more opportunity to flatten the club and hit high, short sand shots.

When pitching, the F2 helps you setup in the desired hands forward position which makes it harder to skull or hit your shots thin.

When chipping, the face comes through the hitting area ahead of the hosel, allowing contact to happen sooner. This lets the natural loft of the club do the work for you.

Shelter From The Storm's Annual Gala

HOT HAVANA NIGHTS IN THE DESERT!

BY FRANÇOISE RHODES

Regarded as one of the most anticipated charity golf events of the desert season, Shelter From The Storm's 5th Annual Gala & Golf Tournament has arrived.

Benefiting Shelter From The Storm, one of the nation's largest service providers to abused women and children, this fifth annual extravaganza, slated for April 21-22, has uniqueness written all over it, beginning with the cause.

Each year, 1.4 million Americans are stalked, and according to a study released by the U.S. Department of Justice, more than half of the stalking victims are women. Fifty-nine percent of female stalking victims are stalked by a current or former intimate partner, and in 80% of these cases, the victims were physically assaulted by their partner.

In the late 1980's, a group of individuals, including Edra Blixseth, decided to take action to combat the cycle of abuse. They formed Shelter From The Storm to offer help to the abused women and children of the Coachella Valley. Their dream became reality when the emergency shelter opened its doors to women and children fleeing violent homes, many of them fearing for their lives. Now, fourteen years later, the shelter's doors have never closed and the commitment to the founders' dream remains steadfast.

To keep the doors open requires generous contributions and a lot of creativity on the part of the event's fundraising organizers, beginning with the gala theme. Past galas have had guests enjoying a Las Vegas night, flamenco dancers and a big top circus atmosphere. This year's event is all about an exotic Havana night with a poolside reception, dancing, dining, honorees, live auction and more, located at one of the most talked about private estates in the Coachella Valley, the Rancho Mirage residence of Edra and Tim Blixseth.

In addition to the spectacular setting and resort-sized residence, the Blixseth's estate also boasts its very own 18-hole regulation golf course called Porcupine Creek. The annual Shelter From The Storm event is the only time Porcupine Creek is open to the public. For a per person donation of $1,850, golfers can experience the game at its finest, along with the gala that is both about giving to others and enjoying oneself.

If you're wondering whether Porcupine Creek is worthy of the hefty price tag, ask any of the golfers lucky enough to play in this annually sold-out event and they will answer without hesitation, "definitely!" The tournament format is a two net best ball of four, a relaxing yet challenging format that keeps all levels of golfers in the game. As for the hole-in-one prize, participants never know what to expect. One past winner found himself the lucky recipient not of the normal golfcart, but of a magnificent Bentley automobile instead.

For those opting to attend the gala only, tickets cost $400 per person and include all gala activities. This year organizers have added several new sponsorship levels, beginning with the Platinum Angel Tables of ten that include a VIP pre-cocktail party in the main residence, VIP preferred seating, four individual golf spots and recognition in the souvenir program for $25,000 per table. The Golden Angel Tables of ten include VIP preferred seating with two individual golf spots and recognition in the souvenir program for $10,000 per table. There are also Angel Tables of ten for $7,000 and regular tables of ten for $4,000.

Shelter From The Storm's 5th Annual Gala & Golf Tournament promises to be as spectacular as always while raising the bar even higher – not only for the pleasure of all who attend but in terms of the funds raised. These funds offer victims and their children immediate protection and DESERT GOLF MAGAZINE'S DESERT REALTY SECTION AND "GROUND BREAKING NEWS" EXCLUSIVE HAVE ONE GOAL: TO KEEP OUR READERS ABREAST OF REAL ESTATE DEVELOPMENTS IN THE COACHELLA VALLEY, ARIZONA AND NEVADA. OUR PRIMARY FOCUS IS NEW GOLF COURSE COMMUNITIES AND NEW HOME COMMUNITIES WITHIN ESTABLISHED GOLF COURSE DEVELOPMENTS AS THEY EMERGE ON THE MARKET.

Will the summer heat looming around the corner cause the desert real estate market to cool off? Nationwide market analysts are saying that the market has definitely cooled, yet headlines in the local Coachella Valley newspaper read, 'Real estate market indefinable' and 'Mixed messages,' and numbers indicate a market with a decidedly split personality. Palm Springs' Mayor Ron Oden has many of his golfing constituents up in arms with his "more tourist-friendly city" idea. His plan is to have the membership of the legendary O'Donnell Golf Club move out and let the city take over in order to turn this priceless piece of property into a public park. Unfortunately for the Mayor, the golfcourse has a 100-year lease with the city that isn't up until 2043, and the members of O'Donnell have no plans to give their club back to the city until the lease is up. Stay tuned – Mayor Oden has only begun working on this idea.

The clubhouse is still under construction, as are 44 exclusive luxury residences located at a slightly lower elevation. Once completed, the residences will be situated in village type setting among canyons, arroyos and tranquil water features, just a stone's throw from the magnificent clubhouse, golf course and the trendy shopping area of El Paseo. If you have to inquire about the price of a home at Stone Eagle, you probably can't afford it.

Bermuda Dunes is also quietly on the move by way of turning their trademark hotel at the privately owned country club into timeshare golf units. Renovations are expected to cost $13 million to $20 million and timeshare units will be priced from $99,000 to $250,000.

This exclusive residential golf community offers luxurious private homes overlooking the only Rees Jones designed golf course in the valley. Word is that interest in this community is high, with no slow down of sales in sight.

Indio. The historic Indian Palms Country Club continues to build new residences, including those at Royal Vista, located along Indian Palms golf course. Lots, priced from the $400,000s, are large enough to accommodate a pool and there are three home models to choose from. The country club also has a $55 to $60 million-dollar project in the works that includes a 78-room hotel, new golf clubhouse, convention/conference space, retail shops and restaurants.

The Terra Lago project is now a reality making their grand debut on March 12, 2006 with a Carnevale themed event that included gondola rides, Tuscan cuisine, Italian music and more. Developed by valley newcomer SunCal Companies, the focal point of this community is the 20-acre lake that will have a boathouse and private docks around the lake for the residents to enjoy. Terra Lago offers homebuyers 1,484 homes and timeshare units to choose from. The elegant single-family homes range in price from the $300,000s to just above $500,000s. Additional amenities include neighborhood parks and the 36-hole championship Terra Lago Golf Course, former home of The Skins Game.

Desert Hot Springs can plan on having 2004 Masters Champion and 2005 PGA Champion Phil Mickelson as a part-time resident. Palmwood Golf Club will be a 1,700-acre master-planned community of five-star quality. Offering 2,200 home sites, a 27-hole championship golf course designed by

Sky-High Luxury

THE TRENDIEST NEIGHBORHOODS IN VEGAS ARE HUNDREDS OF FEET ABOVE STREET-LEVEL

BY CHRISTINE LOOMIS

Las Vegas is going vertical. High-rise developments are the latest trend in upscale neighborhoods and there's little they don't offer, from lavish landscaping and aqua pools to opulent spas.

In recent months, a number of high-profile companies and celebrities have announced high-rise projects, only to have them fall apart before construction even began. Celebrity status is no guarantee of success in this town, and it takes more than basic construction knowledge to create a successful luxury development.

Enter Turnberry Associates, known across the country for quality luxury residences, hotels and retail space, and concept back in 1998 with Turnberry Place, a project clearly attuned not just to the Las Vegas luxury marketplace but also to the future of development here. The company has since gone on to create the lavish Residences at MGM Grand, and now, just across the street from Turnberry Place, elegant, sophisticated Turnberry Towers is on the rise.

Steps off the Strip, Turnberry Towers is a 10-acre, gated enclave featuring two 45-story towers with 318 condominium units in each. Construction on the East Tower began in June of 2005. That building is already sold out and the first fortunate homeowners will move in now on its third successful high-rise project in Las Vegas. Such past successes make a difference.

"The majority of people who are interested in purchasing a high-rise condominium feel more comfortable purchasing from a developer who has done this type of project before and has a reputation for a certain standard of excellence," says John Riordan, Turnberry Associates vice president of sales.

Turnberry has been more than just a successful player in the high-rise field. In fact it was Turnberry principal Jeffrey Soffer whose vertical vision helped trigger the current boom in high-rise construction. Soffer introduced the next spring. Construction on the West Tower is scheduled to start this spring, with occupancy set for 2008. Just 150 units remain for sale in the West Tower.

These are no ordinary residences. Homes range from one bedroom, one bath at 915 square feet (available on floors 2—33) to three bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths at 1,937 square feet (floors 33—45). Configurations of two bedroom or two bedroom plus den, from 1,698 to 1,909 square feet, are available on all floors.

Each home is both luxurious and state-of-the-art. Among the niceties are nine-foot ceilings, General Electric Monogram appliances and European kitchen cabinetry. Kitchen counters are granite and baths feature Italian marble. Some units flow from one side of the tower to the other, offering views of both the brilliantly lit, energized Strip and of Nevada's rugged mountains and serene desert landscape. All units have balconies as well as the AMX Electronic Amenities System, which provides homeowners with a 24/7 virtual concierge.

serene destination, just outside its gates is a world of marquis-topping entertainment, fine dining and exclusive venues that offer visitors and residents the best of life and living. Even in this city of extremes, few venues compare with the 80,000-square-foot Stirling Club across the street at Turnberry Place, and homeowners at Turnberry Towers receive a two-year membership to the of the most celebrated hotels on the planet? The answer, according to Don Soffer of Turnberry Associates, is simple: You don't have to stand in those famously long lines, you have the security of a gated community and you can fill your residence with the things you love and that make you comfortable — your own linens, your own furnishings, your own artwork. Yet you have none of the upkeep associated with owning a home, and you have access to the same services offered by the best hotels.

And there is an aspect of privacy that hotels simply cannot match. "Once perspective purchasers are introduced to Turnberry Towers," says Riordan, "they do not want to miss the opportunity to enjoy the simplicity and privacy that are trademarks of the Turnberry lifestyle."

Scott Norder of AMX describes the system as "an integrative technology that brings resort service into the household." Indeed, it allows homeowners to make dining reservations and spa appointments and to buy show tickets for performances throughout the city, and the system also connects residents to on-property personnel including the front desk attendant and valet. Everything is accessed on a slender, wireless-enabled touch panel with a menu of options to choose from.

Each tower will also feature its own 2,500-square-foot fitness facility, tennis court, swimming pool and sundeck, and a full-service spa will be available and convenient to all homeowners. In terms of security, the gate and each lobby will have attendants on duty at all times.

While Turnberry Towers is its own opulent club as yet another amenity.

Stirling Club members enjoy fine dining, a nightclub, piano bar, cigar room and a 30,000-square-foot European anti-aging spa and fitness facility. The club also has six clay tennis courts and an on-site tennis pro, as well as indoor and outdoor pools. The Stirling Club also has its own excellent concierge service to help members with any needs.

Tower residents who wish to take advantage of all that the action-oriented Strip offers without having to deal with traffic or parking can simply hop on the monorail at one of two convenient stops just outside the Turnberry Towers grounds. And, of course, calling for a limousine through the AMX system is always an option.

There are some who ask why buy a condominium here when Las Vegas has thousands of hotel rooms in some Turnberry Towers, like the other Turnberry projects, also provides an instant community and simpatico social circle for residents, with social gatherings that give homeowners a chance to get to know one another, play tennis or golf together or go out with new or old friends for an evening on this dynamic town.

In other words, life at its very best.

Jaguar XK

THE SEXY, SOPHISTICATED ALL-NEW
2007 XK CONVERTIBLE JAGUAR
DELIVERS THE DEFINITIVE SPORTS CAR

BY CHRISTINE LOOMIS

The cat is back.

When the 2007 XK arrives in showrooms this spring, one thing will be unequivocally clear: Jaguar has returned to its sports car and racing roots with an edgy, seductive automobile that is turning heads.

The convertible (there's also a coupe) may be the sexiest car to fly down the pike in years, and while its sleek, sculpted look is all new, this cat is more than a pretty shell.

Most notably, it's constructed of aluminum rather than steel, which makes it both lighter and faster. At 3,759 lbs, the XK convertible is one of the lightest cars in its competitive class, but it's also engineered for safety. The aluminum and the processing and treating of it is similar to that used for aircraft, making the XK far more rigid than previous steel models and giving it improved power-to-weight ratio and torsional stiffness.

The 4.2-liter V8 300 hp engine provides for a top speed of 155 mph and takes the car from 0 to 60 in six seconds, according to the manufacturer. Some who have already been lucky enough to test drive the XK say it's better than that.

Larry G. Villarreal, senior sales executive at Desert European Motorcars in Rancho Mirage, California, has been selling Jaguars for nearly 15 years and just returned from the test drive. "I took it from 0 to 60 in 5.8 seconds," he says, whether the top is up or down. A roll-over protection system consisting of two "hidden" aluminum hoops that deploy in the event of an accident is also standard on all XK convertibles.

The XK's lightness makes it fun, but it also makes it more fuel-efficient. Manufacturer stats give the XK 19 mpg in town, 26 mpg on the highway. And even if sports car enthusiasts don't always put a premium on fuel efficiency, Villarreal points out that Jaguar is ahead of its competitors. "I adding, "it's a phenomenal car that will out perform anything in its class, including, I believe, the Ferrari."

On the question of form vs. function, Villarreal says the XK convertible has it all. "It's an awesome looking car at a standstill, but it's incredibly quick and agile around curves and fun to drive. This car blew me away."

Among the new XK's features is a state-of-the-art navigation system that's standard, and far beyond what previous models have offered. It utilizes touch-screen technology that's straightforward and easy to use, so drivers won't waste precious time on a learning curve pouring over a manual. Instead, they can slide behind the wheel and experience the curves the car is so magnificently designed for — those on the road.

And on the road, the focus is ease of maneuvering in this muscular yet supremely responsive machine. Jaguar's six-speed ZF automatic transmission has the Sequential Shift change controls mounted on the wheel, as they are on top racecars, rather than on the column. This allows for immediate and precise gear shifting without taking one's hands off the steering wheel — particularly convenient at higher speeds. As for braking — if you must — the sophisticated four-channel ABS system varies the brake pressure at each wheel. Compared to conventional digital ABS systems, this provides more refinement to the hydraulic pressure control and allows for increased steering input during heavy braking. Moreover, the EBA (Emergency Brake Assist) measures the rate of braking in an emergency and automatically initiates full power when necessary; in a critical situation, EBA substantially reduces stopping distance.

And what of the convertible top? The luxurious, triple-lined fabric roof can be powered up or down in less than 18 seconds. When it retracts, it stows fully out of sight beneath an aluminum tonneau cover, ensuring the car's sensual lines think the majority of manufacturers down the line will switch to aluminum bodies because of the fuel issue," he says, noting that Jaguar was among the first automobile manufacturers to use it.

And unlike other sport models, the new XK will accommodate your golf clubs in the trunk, while retaining its ultra-slim profile.

Like its elegant exterior, the interior is stunning — deep, well-bolstered soft-as-butter leather bucket seats that hug you and provide ultimate comfort and support for a long drive, seats that Jaguar calls "a paradigm of uncompromising driver comfort." Both Sports and Luxury seats are available, with 10-way and 16-way adjustable settings, respectively.

Traditional Jaguar lovers will no doubt opt for burl walnut or poplar trim; new or younger buyers may choose the brushed aluminum for a streamlined contemporary look.

MSRP is $80,835; compare that to its closest competitors from Mercedes, Lexus and BMW, and the XK is suddenly about beauty, power and value.

The bottom line, however, is all about the drive, and the XK delivers. "This is a true sports car," says Villarreal, who compares the XK to the old and much-admired Jaguar E types.

"Simply put, it will blow away anyone looking for a sports car."

SPRING'S HOTTEST FASHION TRENDS CHANNEL YOUR INNER SAFARI OR SAILOR STYLE

BY DANA LAUREN BERRY

This season, safari-inspired and nautical looks are making a big comeback. Natural fabrics, such as bamboo and linen, and earth-tone colors are popular for the safari look, while sailor-inspired pants and shorts, polo shirts, wide-striped shirts and crisp colors such as navy, red and white are essential for the nautical look.

Lightweight natural fiber materials are appealing for both their comfort and style. When the temperature heats up, it's important to have cool clothing, especially out on

Linda Hipp, founder and principal designer of Lija by Linda Hipp. "When worn, garments made of bamboo almost have a "cool" feeling, temperature wise. The fabric is very lightweight making it ideal for golf and other sports, as well as for warm spring and summer days."

Hipp has incorporated bamboo into classically designed pieces, including an innovative, lightweight bamboo knit argyle cardigan and an eye-catching short sleeve contrast polo.

In linen, Hipp designed a comfortable tunic top, a flattering A-line skirt and wide-leg capri pant for the Lija "Safari Sunset" collection. The 41-piece collection features natural brown-base tones of tan, cocoa and nut and accents of banana yellow.

TEHAMA LINEN PIECES FOR SPRING

the golf course. This spring, several designers are incorporating linen or bamboo pieces into their spring collection, including Canadian company Lija.

"Bamboo is one of my favorite fabrics for spring it's up-and-coming in the active apparel and sportswear fashion segments, in large part because it's an organic-based fabric — something that many consumers look for these days," says

LIJA GOLF "SET SAIL" COLLECTION

"Linen is one of the classics that will always make its way back into our hearts and into our wardrobe," says Hipp. "It's really making a comeback into fashion and will show the same in the golf and sportswear market. Although the care of the fabric is a little more high maintenance than others, it is such a lightweight, comfortable fabric with a lot of movement; it's well suited for golf."

Tommy Hilfiger has introduced a "Safari Chic" collection, incorporating pieces in natural hues, including a breezy linen shirt with front patch pockets. The line also features a crochet knit cap-sleeve top and crochet knit gaucho cropped pant. The Tommy Golf line features a grosgrain belt with a bamboo buckle and a charming reversible pink gingham tote bag with a round bamboo handle.

Tehama also has linen pieces for spring. For men, the stylish saddle-stitch camp shirt comes in a silk/linen blend in a natural beige color. Worn alone or unbuttoned with the pima cotton mock neck short sleeve shirt in pomegranate red or shadow blue, the shirt exudes casual cool. Tehama's pleat-front linen/cotton wrinkle-free pant is a spring and summer staple.

Nancy Haley, CEO and co-founder of Tehama, agrees with Hipp that linen is timeless.

LIIJA GOLF "SET SAIL" COLLECTION

"Linen is such a classic fabric," says Haley. "When blended with other fabrics such as rayon, or treated with non-wrinkle finishes, it becomes a fashionable, functional fabric that works in the golf market."

Bobby Jones golf apparel offers a stylish 100 percent linen pant for men in three fun colors: nectarine, cigar and salsa. The double reverse pleat pant features a striped waistband and doublewide button closure back welt pockets. For women, Bobby Jones offers a sharp 100 percent linen blazer, with a two-button closure and a tailored fit.

The nautical look is also making waves on the fashion scene, with patriotic colors red, white and blue popular with contrast knits or bold stripes. While a traditional, classically elegant navy and white stripe T-shirt paired with white or navy pants reflects the trend well, designers are also updating the trend by infusing new colors.

Lija's "Set Sail" collection claims to mix "rebellion with tradition," contrasting vibrant hues of orchid and tangerine with navy and white to create an urban twist on the nautical theme. The perfectly feminine polos in the "Set Sail" collection go effortlessly from the golf course to the sail boat.

Twists on the classics include the stripe crewneck top with 3/4 length sleeves, featuring tangerine stripes (instead of the traditional navy), and the glossy sailor-inspired side-button pant, with oversized buttons on the hip instead of the front, available in orchid and tangerine as well as traditional navy and white.

For a truly put-together nautical look, Lija's vector skort and vector jacket, in navy with white contrast piping detail, creates a fashionable sailor vibe.

For men, representing the nautical look is easy with the variety of polo shirts available. Tehama's mercerized cotton polo in a cobalt blue and white stripe, featuring the signature "Hang 'Em Dry" moisture wicking technology, is ideal.

With labels such as Ralph Lauren and Nautica, navy and white or black and white are being featured with a bold poppy red or canary yellow, in the form of a cable knit sailor sweater or a lightweight coat.

Men and women can incorporate a touch of the nautical look for spring with a rope belts, horizontal stripes, belted military-style jackets, brass details and oversized button-front sailor pants. When putting together an outfit that looks perfect for the golf course or the seas, don't go overboard on this yacht-worthy look. Select one or two nautical pieces to mix into your ensemble and you'll be smooth sailing.

Sparkling Swarovski

BY DANA LAUREN BERRY

THE AUSTRIAN CRYSTALS ARE MAKING A STATEMENT, FROM FASHION RUNWAYS TO THE GOLF COURSE

SUDDENLY, SWAROVSKI CRYSTAL PIECES ARE MORE THAN DECORATOR ACCENTS. THE DAZZLING CRYSTALS ARE FOUND EVERYWHERE, FROM JEWELRY TO BELTS AND EVEN GOLF GLOVES

Swarovski is an Austrian crystal considered by many to be the finest quality, full-lead crystal made today. The crystal is faceted with tremendous precision, creating beautiful prisms; brilliant colors and/or coatings are added to create sparkling pendants, stones and beads.

Named for founder Daniel Swarovski, the Swarovski company is renowned for its high-tech precision cutting and production of crystal. With a more than 100-year legacy, the company is the world's leading supplier of crystals for the jewelry, fashion and lighting industries.

"Swarovski Crystal has a special appeal in its figurine form as well as its jewelry form that can be directly attributed to the company's detail to quality and craftsmanship, as well as its stunning designs," says Dean A. Genth, author of Collecting Swarovski: Identification & Price Guide and an avid Swarovski collector for nearly 20 years. "To this day, the Swarovski stone-cutting techniques are a company secret and truly a trademark quality of each piece."

Many designers are now using the crystals in their jewelry collections. Kirsten Goede's Objets d'Envy line features bracelets made with 8mm "bicone pendant" Swarovski crystals that have a polished surface, resulting in incredible brilliance and sparkle.

The Objets d'Envy collection includes bracelets, necklaces and earrings, and comes in 12 colors, including cerulean, champagne, grass, petal, smoke, violet and noir.

Goede, a golfer, says she wears a bracelet every time she goes golfing. "It looks great on my left hand with my golf glove," she says. "I match the color to my golf outfit. The sparkle is amazing...the bracelet looks spectacular in the sunlight."

While Swarovski is known for collectible figurines and household décor such as vases and bowls, in recent years, jewelry featuring the crystal has skyrocketed in popularity. Genth notes, "Swarovski is now known throughout the world for making the finest fashion jewelry in the world."

Goede adds that the baubles are "attention-getting, flirtatious, sporty and just a little sexy." The pretty jewelry line is available at select boutiques, including What a Find! in Scottsdale, Arizona and at www.objecsdenvy.com. Prices range from $40 to $580.

Belts accentuated with Swarovski crystals are also popular, as worn by celebrities such as Jessica Simpson, Lindsay Lohan and Jennifer Lopez. All three of these Hollywood starlets were photographed wearing the hot Old Man River line last year. Old Man River features leather belts adorned with Swarovski crystals in a bold, eye-catching pattern. The belts are priced from $250 to $490 and are available in Los Angeles at Kitson, Fred Segal and Ron Herman, and at Boogie's in Aspen. The belts are also available at www.shopoldmanriver.com.

For the crystal-loving golfer, there's even a company that makes custom Swarovski crystal-studded golf gloves. Sassy Swings makes hand-beaded golf gloves using 14 karat gold and sterling silver accents with Swarovski crystal accents on the wrist and ring finger.

The bracelet on the glove serves as a stroke counter as well, simply by sliding the beads. Each glove, retailing for $49 and up, can be custom made and hand-beaded to the wearer's specifications and to match any golf outfit. The gloves are available for purchase at www.sassyswings.com.

"We use Swarovski because it's a high quality bead," says Sassy Swings Co-owner Lisa Sacco. "We just launched at the PGA Show this year, and we've had great reviews. They've been selling like crazy."

Swarovski jewelry and accessories can be found on the runways of Paris, New York and Milan, with crystals interwoven in gowns for added sparkle. With the popularity and accessibility of the crystals, one might ask if it's a passing trend or here to stay. Author Genth assures, "Swarovski is a classic I would never consider calling it a trendy item."

The Chop House

WHERE THE PERFECT STEAK – AND MORE – AWAITS!

BY FRANÇOISE RHODES

IF YOU LIVE IN THE COACHELLA VALLEY YOU'VE PROBABLY SEEN THE NIGHTLY CHOP HOUSE TELEVISION COMMERCIALS FEATURING GOLFING GREATS KEN VENTURI, BOB ROSBERG AND AMY ALCOTT ENJOYING FINE WINES AND MOUTHWATERING DISHES.

For most restaurants, commercials such as these are staged; for The Chop House in Palm Desert, Venturi, Rosberg and Alcott consider themselves regulars and wouldn't have it any other way.

Being selected as one of the Prime Time Top 10 Steakhouses in America means offering more than excellent food; it means offering customers an exceptional dining experience.

The Chop House - Palm Desert begins this experience with an inviting atmosphere. A large lounge area welcomes guests to begin or end their evening. Rich cherry wood paneling adds warmth, and a selection of modern abstract art on the walls provides nice contemporary detail. Diners can Prime Meats are superb, but the Chop House also has numerous seafood offerings of equally high quality and freshness. Among the staples is a delicious blackened ahi served with soy-mustard sauce and stir-fry vegetables for $23.50. The chef also offers a daily fresh fish personal creation.

For many guests, dinner begins with an assortment of appetizers and salads and the Chop House doesn't disappoint. Enticing options include Seared Jumbo Sea Scallops, Tuna Tartare, French Onion Soup Gratinee and the chilled Iceberg Wedge with Roquefort dressing. Traditional choose comfortable, roomy booths or elegantly set tables for two or four.

Lee Morcus, co-founder of the Kaiser Restaurant Group of which the Chop House is a part, says, "Each one of our establishments reflects the attention to quality and service expected from a five-star restaurant while providing a variety of different fares to suit the tastes of all guests."

The Chop House - Palm Desert is renowned for its thick, juicy, USDA prime beef aged 28 days to perfection and cut in-house each night. The array of steaks and chops includes a Kansas City Bone-In New York for $33, a Bone-In Filet Mignon for $39.79 and the Cowboy Rib steak for $33. The menu also features Double Pork Chops for $21 and a delectable herb-crusted Rack of Lamb with apple mint reduction at $32. All meats are grilled the classic way, at lower temperatures for a longer period of time to retain the juices, ensure tenderness and allow flavors to fully develop.

Chop House vegetable and side dishes are meant to be shared by the table.

The Chop House - Palm Desert has an extensive and exceptional wine list, with wines offered by the glass or bottle. Top-shelf signature martinis are also poured tableside from frosted shakers.

The only problem for dessert lovers is having to choose. Decadent sweets such as Chocolate Cappuccino Mousse Cake and French Vanilla Crème Brulee are prepared in-house and may be enjoyed with one of the many dessert

Napa's Lesser-Known Vintners

DESERT GOLF'S WINE AFICIONADO MAKES A JOURNEY OF DISCOVERY AND COMES UP WITH WINNERS

BY DAVE LAGARDE

NAPA, CALIFORNIA —

If you've vacationed in, worked in, lived in or simply passed through an xenophile's version of the eighth and ninth wonders of the world, a.k.a. Napa and Sonoma Valleys, you're seasoned enough to know the usual suspects —wineries that, even in those vintages where Mother Nature doesn't fully cooperate during the growing season, will produce fine, collectible wines.

So there's no point in telling you to seek out Joseph Phelps' award-winning Insignia each year. Or that you can depend on the wines from Chateau Montelena, Araujo Estate and Dalla Valle to hit home runs annually.

The real trick on journeys to heaven on Earth is in the discovery of new, exciting vintners who are still flying under the wine-lover's radar. And goodness knows new wineries have been springing up throughout the two valleys like mushrooms following a summer shower. There now are more than 400 in Napa alone, with more than 75 of these starting up since 2000.

It took 10 days of searching recently to stumble upon a sleeper that made this wino say, Wow! So raise your hand if you've heard of De La Montanya Winery and Vineyards. I sure hadn't until someone suggested I seek it out. I found it just under an overpass off Westside Road south of Healdsburg.

How good is its product? De La Montanya Winery, founded in 1995, only produces 3,500 cases annually in small lots of 25 to 300 cases. It recently received 11 medals at the 2006 San Francisco Chronicle Wine Competition, including a Double Gold Best of Class for the 2004 Tina's Vineyard Pinot Noir ($38), a Russian River Valley keeper that has an expressive nose of strawberries, sour cherries and Asian spices and delivers cherries, cola and mocha on the palate.

But for my tastes, the estate grown gold-medal winning Christine's Vineyard Sonoma Coast Pinot Noir ($38) is the best wine produced by owner Dennis De La Montanya and winemaker Michael Loykasek. Its grapes spring from the ground in the hottest, most exciting Pinot Noir growing region, a place absolutely climatically correct for the nurturing of the most finicky of all wine grapes. It is a complete wine that offers mushrooms from the forest floor, cherries and a hint of oak on the nose. The mouth feel is like the finest silk infused with blackberry fruit. It finishes with berries and spice, producing an inviting Burgundian burn in the back of the throat.

"Our passion for winemaking and small-lot single vineyard wines allows us to pay close attention to every grape we grow," De La Montanya says.

The proof is in the bottle. The winery, whose new tasting room is open Saturday and Sunday or by appointment, also received gold medals for its 2004 Chardonnay, 2004 Felta Creek Vineyard Zinfandel, 2004 Fume Blanc and Best of Class for the 2003 PinUp Cabaret, an unusual, eclectic blend of Cabernet, Syrah and Zinfandel.

DE LA MONTANYA WINERY AND VINEYARDS

The catch is Dennis De La Montanya is shooting for a 1,000-member wine club. It already has reached more than 800 members and continues to grow at approximately 30 per month. If you're a lover of wonderful and, better yet, affordable wines, you'd be wise to check out the website at www.dlmwine.com or call 707-433-3711.

De La Montanya wasn't the only find. One mid-afternoon I drove down Ehlers Lane to the home of Terry Klein and Allora Winery, which butts up against the Napa River. The vineyard lies in the narrowest part of the Napa Valley hourglass and is the coolest spot in the warmest area creating microclimates conducive to growing grapes that benefit from long hang time.

ALLORA VINEYARDS

Cielo, Italian for sky or heaven, is the Klein's Tuscan blend of primarily Barbera with dollops of Merlot, Pinotage and Sangiovese. It is dark, intense and spicy.

The Klein's flagship wine is Lusso, estate grown Cabernet Sauvignon produced in limited quantities. Lusso in Italian is "luxury" and no expense was spared in making this beauty. While a bit pricey ($100), it shows Formerly a 15-acre cattle ranch, the vineyards also are blessed with soil that is a deep sandy loam. The Kleins — wife Nancy, son Christopher and daughter Kelly all contribute to the 500-case operation — planted in early 1999 and produced their first vintage of estate-grown wine in 2002. Several previous vintages used sourced grapes.

"This is a labor of love for me," says Terry Klein, who is a plastering contractor when he isn't tending to his vineyards.

Allora in Italian means "whatever," but the Klein's approach is anything but cavalier. Consultant Rudy Zuidema, who worked at Robert Craig Winery, helps steer the Kleins in the right direction and the result is high quality wine in each and every bottle.

The Kleins make a stunning and highly concentrated Petite Sirah that is a teeth stainer. Raspberry, black cherry, toasted nuts and espresso are found in the bouquet. It's drinkable now but also age worthy. The 2002 is sold out, but the 2003 vintage will offer approximately 85 cases.

The 2003 Tresca ($40) is a cabernet that offers black cherry, blackberry and crème brulee on the nose and is velvety on the tongue. Fourteen percent Cabernet Franc and six percent Merlot went into the blending of the wine. It could cellar up to 15 years.

intense berry, hazelnut, crème brulee and hints of dark chocolate. It was aged 24 months in custom-made, new French Oak barrels.

Look for Allora at fine wine shops or contact the winery at www.alloravineyards.com or 707-963-6071.

PLACE TO VISIT IN NEVADA

AdventureDome Theme Park

2880 Las Vegas Blvd S, Circus Circus, Las Vegas, NV 89109 · 702-794-3939

This is the place to take the family on a hot day. The park is enclosed, making it one of the largest air conditioned parks in the country. Geared towards children with animated dinosaurs and water rides, it's also quite popular with adults, too! There is no fee for entrance, but there is a fee if you want to ride any of the attractions. You can buy day passes or pay as you go.

Manhattan Express & Coney Island Midway

3790 Las Vegas Blvd S, New York New York, Las Vegas, NV 89109-4327 · 702-740-6969

Running through a scaled-down NYC skyline, the Manhattan Express is a thrilling ride, popular with roller coaster fans from all over the world. Guests also love the Coney Island themed midway and arcade games, not to mention the traditional New York hot dog stand!

Old Las Vegas Mormon State Historic Park

908 Las Vegas Blvd N, Las Vegas, NV 89101
702-486-3511

The Old Mormon Fort, an adobe building dating to 1855, is by far the oldest structure in the Glitter City. It was essentially the city's birthplace, founded by missionaries who gave up the settlement within a few years. After they left, it became a ranch and, when the railroad reached the site at the turn of the century, it was where the town began. Portions of the original fort remain, but most of it is a reconstruction. A visitor center, living history programs, and tours are available.

"Avenue Q"

3131 Las Vegas Blvd S, Wynn Las Vegas, Las Vegas, NV 89109 · 702-770-7000

Instead of going on tour, this Tony Award-winning musical found a new home at the Wynn Las Vegas. It's a great draw for tourists, who can't say enough good things about Jeff Whitty's play. Peopled by puppets, "Avenue Q" is a sexier, grittier version of traditional puppet stories, and its themes of loneliness, purpose, friendship and place inject the characters with refreshing, real-life qualities. Funny, colorful and eminently entertaining, it's a must-see, no matter where you are. Just hold back from bringing younger kids along.

Blue Man Group

3900 Las Vegas Blvd S, Luxor, Las Vegas, NV 89119 · 702-262-4400

These days, the theatre at the extravagant Luxor Hotel hosts the ingenious Blue Man Group (yes, those guys from the commercials), whose wild shows and amusing props have wowed international audiences for more than ten years now. From Jello-O to marshmallows, all your favorite props are incorporated.

ARE YOU A GOLFGOPHERS?

Ray couldn't wait to try out his new driver. Apparently the Bermuda Islands had a rather limited selection of golf supplies, and the resort Pro Shop was too overpriced for Ray's blood...But they had Internet access. With it, Ray can have the golf products he wants — anytime, anywhere — at a price that's unbeatable. All because he's a member of golfgophers.com: The best priced — fastest delivered — supplier of golf products, apparel, and equipment on the web. And if Ray can have his driver that quick in Bermuda, just think of how fast you can have it delivered at home...Visit golfgophers.com
