Publisher's Notes

By Timothy J. Pade • pade@desertgolfer.com

Welcome to this issue of Desert Golf Magazine. We are very proud to feature ladies' golf phenom Yani Tseng on our cover. This extremely talented young lady has taken the Tour by storm since her debut in 2008. Tseng won the Kraft Nabisco in 2010, and her earnings are more than $7 million thus far. She is obviously the odds-on favorite on the LPGA Tour this year after winning seven events in 2011! We wish her and all of the ladies of the LPGA the best of luck in this 41st season of the ladies' first major of the year, the Kraft Nabisco held at Mission Hills Country Club.

Two other events featured in this issue are incredible charity tournaments: The Frank Sinatra Celebrity Invitational is now in its 24th season bringing some of the hottest stars to the Coachella Valley. Old Blue Eyes must still be working his magic to keep this event going strong to benefit the Barbra Sinatra Children's Center. Held again at Eagle Falls, the great golf course at Fantasy Springs Resort Casino, this year's event features legendary entertainer Paul Anka headlining at the dinner gala. Read more about it starting on p. 22. The other "new" event in town, benefitting the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, is the Patrick Warburton Golf For Kids Celebrity Golf Tournament. Now in its second season, this tournament will be held at The Classic Club, one of the desert's top public venues. Warburton is most recently known for his roll on the TV sitcom Rules of Engagement with David Spade and Oliver Hudson. Spade headlines the gala at this year's event and is rumored to be bringing many of his celebrity friends to participate in the tournament. Spots are still available and you can find out more starting on p. 30.

The desert is blessed to host so many great events that raise hundreds of thousands of dollars for charitable causes, even in a highly questionable economy. Those of us at Desert Golf Magazine also feel blessed to be a part of these worthy events, and to have the fortitude to carry on as the voice of golf in the southwest. We thank everyone who continues to support us. We look forward to a great year and we join our neighbors, friends and community in the hope that our economy continues to rebound.

The Tigress of Taiwan

Yani Tseng

Yani Tseng has already accomplished what no other golfer has—being the youngest player to win five Majors

By Susanne Kemper

Gary Player's accolades on Yani Tseng's 2011 season are memorable: "It is arguably the best story, but hasn't received the coverage it deserves. The 22-year-old Taiwanese dominated the game winning 12 tournaments including two Majors, was ranked No. 1 in the world for 43 consecutive weeks and had the second highest annual LPGA winnings in Tour history. Most players never reach 12 wins in their careers..."

At 22, Tseng is the youngest player, male or female, to win five Majors. Who is this 22-year-old phenomenon with the nickname Nini? For one thing, she's a travel lover. She tries to do some sightseeing wherever she plays so she can learn about the people and their culture.

"I love trying different foods and dining out; finding cafés on a river or a beach is great," Tseng exclaims. "Paris is a favorite of mine. For vacation, I love being at home, too, as I travel so much. The Maldives interest me—a house on sticks over the water, but I worry as I can't swim! Venice is another place."

After her 2011 LPGA Championship victory, Tseng took off with friends for Niagara Falls. She also brought her mother, Yu-Yan Yang, to Evian for the 2011 Evian Masters. "Mom was so excited, her first time there and in France. We went on the boat to Lausanne," Tseng says. "And there was some shopping, too, with all the tempting French fashions."

Tseng has had a relationship with Lacoste since the beginning of her career. She loves the company's color palette—particularly purple, orange and green (her favorite color). "I always wear pink now on Sundays, starting this year," she confides. "I feel confident with Lacoste's clothes, and they make me look skinnier."

When not on the course, Tseng's casual look is jeans and T-shirts. For galas, she prefers pants or leggings. Off the course, she's also a cool pool player and says she would have been a pro had she not made it on the links. She even practices pool on the greens—with a putter and a golf ball!

After several years in Beaumont, Calif., living near her sister, Tseng started apartment hunting in Florida for easier travelling. Annika Sorenstam, who was Tseng's idol, heard she was looking and suggested her home at Lake Nona. Tseng's first response was no, she couldn't afford it. "But Dad told me to buy it," she says, and as soon as she saw the house she loved it. "Annika told me that she knew the first time I was there that I would buy it. It's great. I feel comfortable, relaxed. I have a great view of the 16th hole and the Lake."

Tseng loves having friends over, playing pool, then going to the movies or singing karaoke. Not surprising, the game room is her favorite room. It has a pool table, ping-pong and her gym. And she loves her "Sing a Song at Home" karaoke machine with over 1,000 songs.

Another plus of the house: Sorenstam's trophy cases, which Tseng saw as so big and so empty when she first purchased the home. "They are my motivator," she laughs. "[I want to] fill them up again." Tseng is moving quickly, and at this rate she may have to add more cases.

2011 was Tseng's fourth year on Tour, and the year the LPGA staged its first event in Taiwan. The winner was Tseng, and enormous crowds flocked daily to see her play. Only time will tell, but Tseng very well could be the spark for Taiwanese golf that Se Ri Pak was for golf in her native South Korea.

Tseng and mother Yu-Yan Yang

With a busy schedule, Tseng has only limited time with family and friends. But when she does get home, the trip always includes a visit to Cash Box, a well-known dinner studio. "I go at dinner time for three to four hours," Tseng says. "It's fun, famous with great BBQ chicken and beef, and singing!"

Tseng has already accomplished much in her 22 years, but she still has a few things on her bucket list, including skydiving and winning the U.S. Open. For 2012, Tseng says she wants to get better, improve her game and win more tournaments, Majors and the U.S. Open.

Watch for the Tigress of Taiwan; great golf is guaranteed, and the way things are going for her, she's likely to accomplish all that she wants to.

Kraft Nabisco

Championship 2012

Where golf and a quick swim are the stuff of tradition

Yani Tseng

Some golf events offer large galleries, which infuse the tournament's atmosphere and field with passion and electricity. But at the Kraft Nabisco Championship, it's the enthusiasm and energy of the players that electrifies the galleries.

"There's just an excitement during this tournament that's different because the players are so excited to be here," says fairways when they think of the Kraft Nabisco. What they can't feel from their Barcaloungers is the intensity of the players, their single-minded focus on winning what could be the LPGA's most prestigious title. It's the players' passion that ignites the galleries and produces the unique environment at the KNC.

Not that the excitement can't be appreciated from long-distance. It can leap from the television and grip fans regardless of their proximity to the Mission Hills Country Club, like when Karrie Webb holed out on the famous par 5 No. 18 to win in 2006, or when Brittany Lincicome made eagle in the final round on No. 18 to win in 2010, or when 2011 champion Stacy Lewis holed an improbable birdie putt on the par 3 No. 17 en route to her leap into Poppie's Pond.

This year's Kraft Nabisco will be held March 26-April 2. The Dinah Shore course, designed by Desmond Muirhead in 1972, is another aspect of the championship's draw, another reason the Kraft Nabisco is an event every player wants to play in and grows up dreaming of winning. And the golf holes aren't the only compelling experience.

"Most of the gals on tour now grew up watching all the players jump in the pond. When Yani Tseng was here doing the media tour last year she said, 'When I was a young girl I dreamed of growing up and coming here and jumping in this lake,' Coddling says. "And that struck me. I said you know, we've got a generation of golfers who know nothing but the jump, even though it's only 20 years old and the tournament is 40 years old. All they know is they win, they get to jump in the pond and they get a robe."

One organizational aspect Coddling and his staff never have to worry about is building the best field the LPGA can tournament director Gabe Coddling, now in his 16th year as a member of the tournament staff. "There's a passion level that's almost electric, because the players are almost giddy, like they've arrived at something so great and so prestigious and they're so happy to be here.

"Mike Whan told me a couple of years ago, 'You know, Gabe, yours is probably the only event where the players' excitement to be there outweighs the fans' excitement to be there and see them,'" said Coddling. "It's unique to the game of golf, as far as I can tell."

The incomparable atmosphere is created not only by the players' enthusiasm, but also the tournament's rich history, the acclaimed Mission Hills Country Club Dinah Shore Tournament Course in Rancho Mirage where it all takes place, and the championship's nuanced traditions that add up to the sum. Many watching television sets around the world think of the lilting palm trees, the warm desert breezes, and the barren, rugged mountainscapes surrounding green offer. As one of the LPGA's major championships, players must first meet one of the criteria for gaining a position in the field, such as top tournament finishes, top 80 on the previous year's money list, past champion status, being a member of the Solheim Cup team, or top 20 and ties from last year's Kraft Nabisco. Those guidelines assure the top players will be eligible, and every one of them shows up not only wanting to play but wanting to win.

"When you look at the history and tradition I mean, Mickey Wright walked the same fairways that Morgan Pressell and Yani Tseng walk today. It's an amazing event to work for," Codding says. "So to be at this kind of level in this sport is an absolute honor."

Mission Hills Country Club

Championship golf and exceptional amenities augmented by 200 reciprocal clubs, plus 700 hotels and restaurants worldwide

Mission Hills Country Club, in Rancho Mirage, Calif., sports a list of amenities that is long and lush: 54 superb holes of championship golf, outstanding facilities, an abundance of nonstop activities and dining and social opportunities throughout the year. With non-equity memberships, dues remain stable without assessments—and there's no minimum for club dining. But benefits go above and literally beyond with its Mission Hills Optimal Network Experiences (ONE) membership. The comprehensive plan includes half-off à la carte club dining, and reciprocal agreements with ClubCorp's network of more than 200 upper-echelon private clubs and resorts, plus 700 fine restaurants and hotels worldwide. Travel possibilities are endless. Club reps say members often spend a luxurious golf weekend in nearby cities at minimal expense. Others have embarked on cross-country, stadium-hopping jaunts for baseball, with complimentary golf and dining.

While Mission Hill's value factor is off the charts, management remains dedicated to quality and being the best. Publications rate the club first among Coachella Valley private venues and private golf courses, and the tennis facility is ranked best in the United States. When organizers added croquet to the mix of member activities, they weren't content with the usual recreational standards—it's the No. 1 facility in the country. "There is a 'wow' factor," says MHCC general manager Garret Kriske. "It's an amazing piece of property with a 41-year history. There's not another (area) club that can say, 'Ours is better' in either golf or tennis, and the best part is that it's all together in one club."

Kriske adds, "We have three excellent, private championship courses designed by golf's greatest names: Arnold Palmer, Pete Dye and Desmond Muirhead. The (Dinah Shore) Tournament Course is our queen, hosting the LPGA Kraft Nabisco Championship." It's the second-longest site for a golf major at the same location—right behind The Masters at Augusta.

"Each course is just as challenging for the low-handicapper as the more casual golfer. It's exciting to play a course where the pros play, and it's a measure of your game," Kriske says. The Pete Dye Challenge Course features target areas and undulating greens, and Dye's signature railroad ties around bunkers and water hazards. "The Palmer course is a great design with tree-lined fairways that meander throughout the community. Everyone is amazed with our club, and our 54 holes set us ahead of everyone with variety.”

The club’s membership director, John Conroy, says, “We have a terrific practice area. There’s not any part of your game you can’t work on to lift yourself to next level.” The 17-acre area is double-sided with plenty of room for drives as well as bunker, putting and short-game practice. The men’s association is complemented by two ladies’ groups. “You can probably attribute that to our LPGA tie-in. We have 240 members and a great group of ‘niners’ who participate on a more social level.”

Mission Hills’ 2,310 members range in age from 40 to 90, and the club is family-friendly with a plethora of social opportunities. “We have 22 clubs within the club,” Conroy says, including groups devoted to books and wine, bunko, mahjong, photography and hiking. “Whatever we have enough interest for, we’ll get it going.” Mission Hills also offers a full-service, 17,000-square-foot fitness center that includes group classes and personal training, plus luxurious spa services.

The club’s preview package for prospective members includes access to one of the club’s four two- and three-bedroom villas, also available for member use. Debbie Faulkner, ClubCorp’s vice-president of marketing and sales, says, “When you think of everything, the benefits are extraordinary and almost overwhelming. Mission Hills already has so much going for it, and add to that the additional benefits of Mission Hills ONE. We’re taking the best club and making it even better.”

The Frank Sinatra Starkey Hearing Foundation Celebrity Invitational

A Pro-Am adds a new element—and a hefty purse—to the venerable charity tournament

Affectionately known as “Frank’s little party in the desert,” the growth and grandeur of the Sinatra Starkey Hearing Foundation Celebrity Invitational would provide “Ol’ Blue Eyes” opportunity to croon proud if the legend could witness what the event has become today.

Now entering its 24th year, the annual three-day golf and gala, founded and chaired by Barbara Sinatra, has grown into one of Southern California’s most desert every year. It’s rare that charity events are three days of parties and two days of golf—it’s just a very glamorous event.”

And before the glamour reaches its black-tie zenith at the Saturday night gala reception and dinner with entertainment by Paul Anka, two days of golf precede—with a new wrinkle added. “One thing that’s new to our tournament is the Frank Sinatra Pro-Am Championship,” Martin enthuses.

Running concurrent to the Friday and Saturday gross and net scramble Celebrity Invitational held at Eagle Falls Golf Course is the debut of the Pro-Am, which will take place at the nearby North Course at The Golf Club at Terra Lago. While the celebrity rounds will feature participants including Dennis Farina, Rollie Fingers, Barry Gordy, Joe Mantegna, Ron White and Joe Torre, the new Pro-Am event will sport a unique format with a driven playing field.

The Pro-Am places four amateur players with one professional golfer from the same club, and the bounty is highly lucrative. Along with receiving a $1,000 appearance fee and being privy to all the impressive charity events. With a line of celebrity participants and alumni long enough to stretch a red carpet back to L.A., the tournament has contributed over $7 million to the endowment of the Barbara Sinatra Children’s Center at the Eisenhower Medical Center in Rancho Mirage, Calif. The Barbara Sinatra Children’s Center provides counseling for victims of physical, sexual and emotional child abuse, seeing approximately 180 kids per month.

Richard Karn, Laurie Marshall, Peter Marshall and Trudi Karn

The 2012 event takes place from Thursday through Saturday, March 1-3, and is being held at Fantasy Springs Resort Casino in Indio. Joining Mrs. Sinatra as co-host is film and television star Kevin Sorbo, and Tom Dreesen returns for his annual gig as tournament emcee.

“Even though Frank has been gone, his supporters and friends are still supporting this tournament,” says tournament director Mary Martin. “We’ve moved around to some different places but it’s still one of the premier events held out in the trimmings of the weekend, the pros will duel for a $10,000 purse on each of the two days. Payouts are awarded to the top five finishers on each day of play, with the top pro receiving a $4,000 purse on both Friday and Saturday. Second place receives $2,500, while the third place finisher is awarded $2,000.

The four amateurs playing alongside their club pro duel in a team scramble while the pro plays his own ball. Prizes are awarded for the daily scramble Pro-Am winner as well as the overall champion recognized by the cumulative, two-day winning score. A traveling trophy has been crafted that will go to the winning club each year.

Martin envisions the added format enhancing the tournament's scope and goodwill. "A lot of our players have been coming for years from worldwide locations," the tournament director says. "With our Celebrity Invitational field filling up, we wanted to be able to bring more money into the charity through a Pro-am."

With a host of local desert and Southern California clubs meshing with outstate competition, Martin anticipates firm turf for the Pro-Am's future. "We want to see what the response is and then come back next year bigger and better."

Visit franksinatragolf.org for more information. Club groups and their professionals interested in competing in the Pro-Am can contact Mary Martin at 760.674.8447 or by e-mail at mary@franksinatragolf.org

A True Classic

The Classic Club in Palm Desert is missing something. Backyards.

You can play this course without hitting a single house—and not necessarily because you're a great golfer but because there are no houses, a rarity on courses these days.

The distinct feel of The Classic Club is enhanced by it being in one of golf's quintessential desert communities but lacking the cliché desert features. No palm trees, no astronomical green fees and nothing but good golf and service found here. The Classic Club's staff is about one thing: making your experience world-class.

The Classic Club was one of four courses in the rotation of the Bob Hope Classic on the PGA Tour until 2009. The Club got a bad rap from PGA Tour professionals, and one left-handed major winner in particular who will remain nameless, who complained about high winds being a problem. The loss of a Tour event didn't faze the Classic Club; instead, management refocused and bolstered the level of service, only adding to the club's stature as one of the jewels in Palm Desert's crown.

The course is professional on every level. When it opened in 2006, Golfweek named it one of the Top 5 Best New Courses. That began a sandstorm of accolades including another Golfweek ranking as the No. 7 Best Course in California (between Pebble Beach and Torrey Pines). A 2007 redesign to give it a bit more teeth for the pros added length and some variety. And two par 3s, No. 6 and No. 17, have two sets of tee boxes, so golfers can play them as entirely different holes on different rounds.

If it isn't pretentious to consider a few holes comparable to "Amen Corner" at Augusta National, then The Classic Club has a similar series of challenges in 10 through 12. There's plenty of water on No. 10, making a wild drive a real problem and an errant approach wet. The water continues on No. 11, where you must challenge it. The 12th is guarded like the crown jewels by water and bunkers.

The par-5 14th is a good hole to think about birdie or eagle at 560 yards from the tips. The 15th is drivable if you unload on it at 349 yards (at its longest) and makes for some interesting risk-reward decisions. The par-5 finishing hole gives players a good chance at birdie, rewarding gutsy short irons into the green.

The course is fair but tough. It has a slope rating of 144 from the back tees and a course rating over 75. The USGA expects a scratch golfer to shoot over par on this big dog. It isn't overly long at 7322 yards but the presence of so much water in the desert makes it a brute. A good shot is fairly rewarded plain and simple. Classic.

The Arnold Palmer layout is owned by the H.N. Berger Foundation so rates are low and charities get especially sweet deals on tournaments. Rates through April are $129 including a $15 lunch voucher and commemorative golf towel. Resident rates are even less. You'll feel like a bandito after playing a round, eating lunch and riding off into the sunset with this experience under your belt.

A 63,000-square-foot clubhouse with two restaurants and a wine bar set the pace for the rest of the facility. More than 150 bottles and 30 wines by the glass make an evening exciting. The Bellatrix serves elegant meals while the Classic Grill is what you'd expect for lunch or an early dinner after a round. A beautiful outdoor seating area is perfect for private events such as weddings and parties.

Bottom line: Don't miss a thing. Try the Classic Club. For more information call 760.601.3600 or log onto classicclubgolf.com

Celebrity Golf Tournament

Golf, music, comedy and camaraderie to benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital

Two years ago, Patrick Warburton played golf at a celebrity tournament to benefit St. Jude Children's Research Hospital and met some of the kids. It made an impact. Just 13 months later, the inaugural Patrick Warburton Golf for Kids Celebrity Golf Tournament debuted, raising $200,000 for St. Jude—the largest first-year event ever held for the hospital. “We got the ball rolling playing Jim McMahon’s golf tournament during the Super Bowl in Florida,” says Warburton. “We met kids there from St. Jude and I had some fun doing voices for them. My wife and I have four healthy kids and wanted to do something to help benefit the kids at St. Jude. It really worked out last year and it will be even more of a blast this year.”

The 2012 tournament will be held March 2-4 in Palm Desert, Calif. The weekend kicks off with a pairings party/rock-and-roll jam at JW Marriott Desert Springs on Friday. Nashville band Sixwire will perform with a slew of music greats from legendary bands such as ZZ

Top, Chicago and Nine Inch Nails. On Saturday and Sunday, golfers play 18 holes at Classic Club, open solely for the tournament throughout the weekend. Area restaurant and bar stations dot the course as golfers compete for prizes—the hole-in-one winner receives a luxury sports car, along with one for each teammate. Saturday evening

Marriott,” he continues. “It’s a giant joint that has its own nightclubs and is notorious as a party hotel. Families can come—there’s something for everyone. It’s all there and you just walk from your room to a party and back, and take a shuttle bus to the golf course just a mile away. It’s a great course. Everybody loved it.”

Brian Amidei, managing partner of title sponsor HighTower, participated last year. “The tournament was casual and laidback and we had a great time. At the gala, the CEO talked about the families they help and the mission statement of St. Jude—that’s the reason we’re here and will continue to be involved for a long time.”

The tournament’s title sponsor is HighTower Advisors in Palm Desert. Clarke Rheney, tournament chairman; Rich Blanke & Brian Amidei, HighTower partners; Patrick Warburton; Joseph Romano III, Robert Schein & Mike Shields, HighTower partners

Tickets are available for the pairings party and the gala, but there’s no gallery for golf. Tournament chairman Clarke Rheney says organizers want the golf to be a high-caliber national event, yet intimate enough for amateurs and celebrities to mingle. “We don’t allow spectators on the golf course so the celebrities can be themselves and just be one of the guys.”

Warburton says, “Absolutely, my main concern is that everyone has a great time. Last year, people said they had more fun than at any other tournament in a long time. The board is fantastic and I’m thankful for all the volunteers. They’re the ones who made it go so smoothly.

“I like the way we’re set up with the Warburton says, "St. Jude has an impact on the life of anybody who walks through those doors. The whole vibe you get is very special. Your first impression is seeing a lot of children without hair and you know that's the result of chemo. You know there is suffering, but a lot seem to be enjoying themselves. [The staff make] sure they're living life and their spirits are up as much as they can be. The work includes treatments and therapy so effective that cure rates have gone up dramatically throughout the decade. Knowing it takes $1.7 million a day to open the hospital doors, it's easy to want to give and donate."

St. Jude reaches out across the country, including to Coachella Valley children who receive treatment there. Rheney grew up in Memphis and volunteered at the hospital in high school. "You've got to have passion about what you're doing. As parents, we all think, 'There but for the grace of God go I.'"

La Quinta Resort & Club

World-class golf destination continues to raise the bar for members and guests alike

Last year was a mix of the old and the new for La Quinta Resort & Club, which recently celebrated not only its enduring affiliation with PGA West, but also PGA West's 25th anniversary.

The history of La Quinta Resort and PGA West—a world-class resort and master-planned residential development nestled against the majestic Santa Rosa

Resort is the longest running resort in the Palm Springs area. The resort's first golf course opened that same year, but closed during World War II. Then, in 1957, guests at La Quinta Resort had access to a golf course opened at La Quinta Country Club, a favorite of Dwight D. Eisenhower. In 1980, the Pete Dye-designed La Quinta Resort Dunes and Mountain courses were unveiled. Six years later, PGA West opened

While both PGA West and La Quinta Resort celebrated a rich and remarkable history in 2011, new amenities were also introduced for guests and members. Adobe Grill at La Quinta Resort & Club, a popular desert hot spot for Mexican cuisine, emerged with dynamic new

But the game of golf is still paramount here. Together, PGA West and La Quinta Resort & Club offer guests and members a

The famed Pete Dye-designed Mountain Course at La Quinta Resort is known for its stunning elevated visuals of the Santa Rosa Mountains, while the Greg Norman Course at PGA West offers a distinctive desert design with crushed granite-lined fairways. Pete Carlson's 8th Annual Golf Expo

Calling all golfers to the event of the season, showcasing the latest in the world of golf

Pete Carlson of Pete Carlson's Golf & Tennis recently marked his 31st year in business in the same Palm Desert location. That's quite an accomplishment considering the current economic climate and the Valley's retail landscape. Today Carlson's 10,000-square-foot store attracts avid golfers and tennis players from all over the country with its competitive pricing, knowledgeable sales staff and one of the largest selections of golf equipment, clothing and accessories. Many desert snowbirds often make Pete Carlson's their first stop when arriving in town and before hitting the greens. Golf greats playing the area's PGA tournaments often make in-store appearances at Carlson's.

One reason for the store's longevity and popularity is surely that it's a showcase for innovation. At his 8th Annual Golf Expo at College of the Desert's College Golf Center in Palm Desert, which is free to the public on February 10 and 11 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., Carlson will showcase the latest in equipment and "must have" accessories.

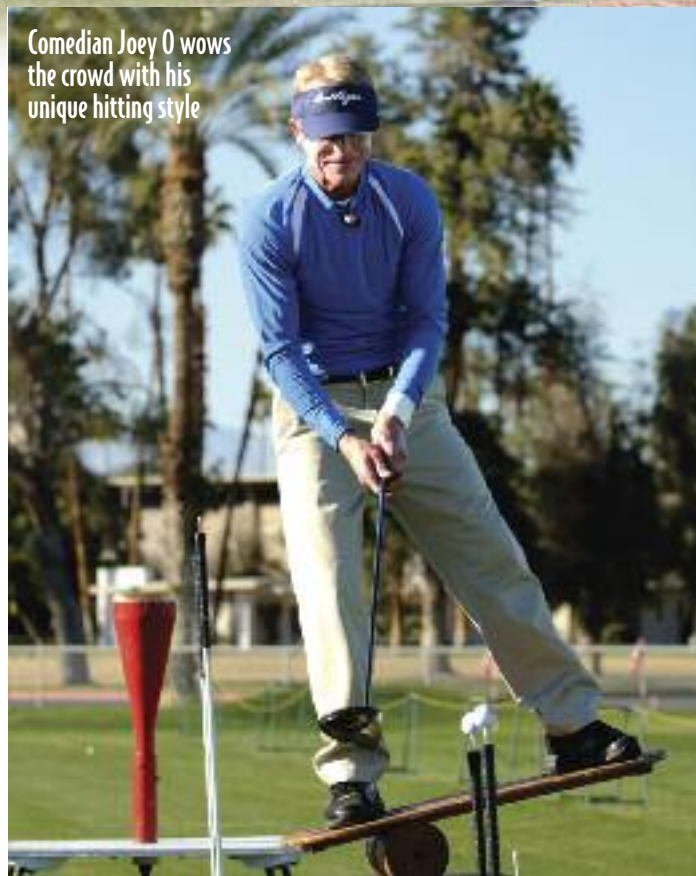

Look for lots of excitement this year when TaylorMade launches its new RocketBallz line of drivers, fairway woods, hybrids and irons for both women and men. The RocketBallz golf ball is described as having "Insane Ball Velocity for Insane Distance with a new SPEEDMANTLE for insane velocity and added iron spin for all swings." According to golfweek.com, Dustin Johnson is credited as the first TaylorMade player to use the word rocket. After testing the early product, Johnson is said to have warbled, "It's like a rocket."

Those attending the Expo will be able to test out the RocketBallz line at the College of the Desert Golf Center's driving range. "[These new] fairway woods are a true innovation," notes Robert Lopez, golf manager of Pete Carlson's. "They are designed to hit 12 to 15 yards longer and will be the hot ticket at the Expo as golfers experience what they can do."

According to Jay Keel of TaylorMade, the RocketBallz line is a whole new family of clubs that is all about paradigm shifting. "They change the distance people hit the fairway in significant ways. TaylorMade has been working for several years on making a fairway wood that wouldn't break with driver like speed."

Last year over 4,000 people attended the two-day event previewing, testing and purchasing the latest golf equipment from the industry's top manufacturers. In addition to TaylorMade, this year's roster includes representatives from Adams, Ben Hogan, Bobby Jones, Callaway, Cleveland, Cobra, Mizuno, Nike, Ping, Titleist and more. Golfers can test drive an incredible selection of equipment, purchase equipment at special pricing and get expert, personalized club fitting.

Golfers can also take part in free instructional clinics by top professionals. For the past five years, Ken Venturi, former pro golfer and announcer, and Al Geiberger, with eleven PGA wins, have conducted free clinics. Roger Fredericks, highly regarded for his golf instructional and flexibility programs, will conduct a Golf Fitness Demonstration.

The Expo also draws sports celebrities and legends. Last year, former football-defensive-back-turned-actor Fred "The Hammer" Williamson stopped by, and Carlson's longtime friend, Willie Mays, made a rare personal appearance and signed copies of his autobiography, The Life, The Legend.

Roger Fredericks offers free golf fitness demonstrations throughout the Expo

In addition to the serious side of golf, there is live jazz and entertainment. Last year Joey O, Golf Entertainer Extraordinaire (joeyogolf.com), the acrobatic golf comedian, wowed the crowd with his motivational and inspirational messages.

"Bringing together the best the golf industry offers to the desert in one outstanding venue makes this a special event for me and all our customers and friends," observes Carlson.

Instruction by Tom F. Stickney II

Understanding Your Alignment Trends

You may think you know how to line up properly, but chances are good you may not

The next time you are on the practice tee with one of your buddies, ask him this question: “Where are you aiming?” Sometimes he’ll say, “I don’t know,” or give you a general area in which he believes he is aiming. Other times he might give you a specific target, which is better than the first answer. Now as he set up to his shot, look where he is ACTUALLY aiming in reference to where he BELIEVES he is aiming and watch where a few of his shots go.

If you have ever see a player on the practice tee who lines up differently than where he is mentally aiming, you can understand where swing flaws like “over the top” and “excessive hand action” through impact originate from! The downswing flaws are reactions to the poor alignment at address. The body knows it is lined up incorrectly and is doing all it can to push, pull or curve the ball back toward your mentally selected target.

Whenever I point this out to someone during a lesson I usually get the following response: “Oh, I wasn’t really taking my time aiming or paying attention.” Which leads me to ask the follow-up question, “Then how do you expect to hit the ball where you want it to go?” I then ask them to line up and pay attention to where they are aiming and to hit the same shot. And you can bet the same poor alignment occurs more often than not, even though most students believe they know how to line up properly.

All golfers struggle with alignment over time—Tiger, Bubba, me, you. It is hard to line up something from the side as we do in golf, so building a practice station is a must when you practice in order to always give your body the information it needs to build a repetitive and consistent swing motion.

A Sample “Practice Station

First you will need to buy several reflector sticks from a hardware store (as shown above), the type of sticks that you would place along the edges of your driveway so people don’t drive on your grass when it snows. We will use three sticks to build your practice station.

· The Target-Line Stick. Align this stick directly at the flag on the green you are trying to hit. This is your target-line, and in a perfect world the ball would sit on top of this line as you hit it, just like it would sit on the stripe on a road aimed at your target.

· The Body Alignment Stick: Place the inside stick parallel to your ball’s target line stick as shown above. This will be the line your feet, knees, hips, forearms and shoulders will be set on.

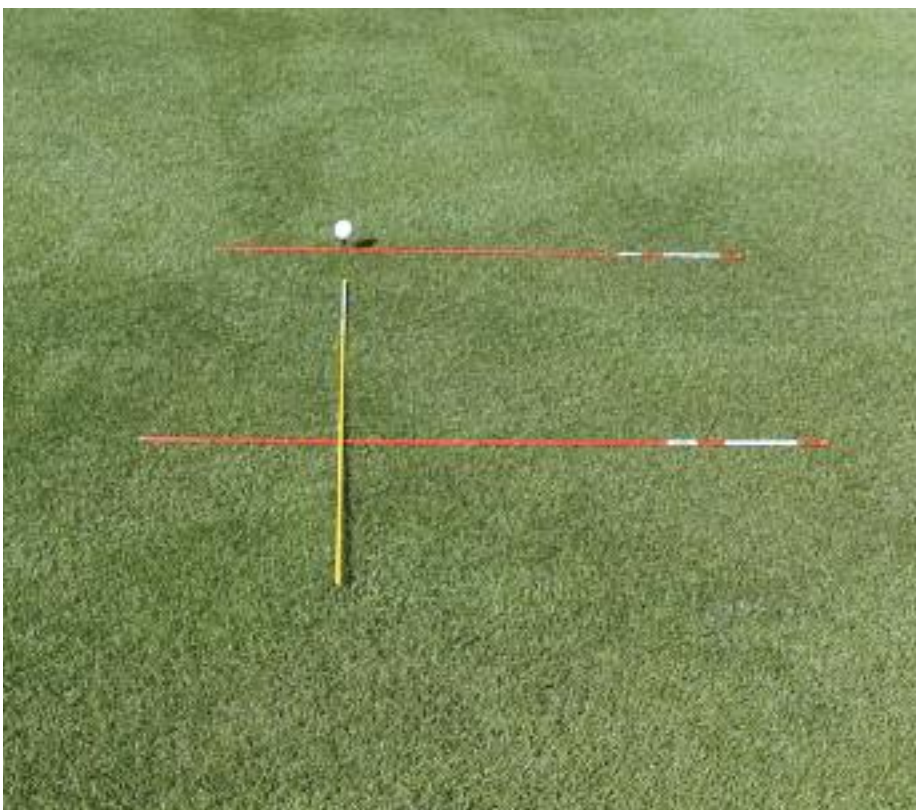

Wait you say, my body isn’t aiming at the flag! It’s aimed parallel left of my target, is this correct? This is the “idea” of alignment that 99 percent of my students have. But remember, if you turn your body to aim at the flag, then the ball’s target line will be parallel to that, placing your ball’s actual aim out to the right of where you are trying to hit.

If this persists, you will grow tired of hanging the ball out to the right and one of two things will happen: 1) you will begin to come over the top so you can “pull” the ball back towards your target or 2) you will start to hit an exaggerated hook by rolling your hands through impact trying to curve the ball back to the pin.

In order to make the ball curve and/or hit special shots from time to time, you will aim your body across your target line; however, in most cases we would prefer that you stay parallel until you can master that fundamental.

· The Ball Position Stick: Place a stick between your feet at 90 degrees to your body alignment stick to mark where you will place the ball. When I place this stick people instantly understand where their actual ball position is in relation to their feet. The hard thing is that when you begin to aim your body to the left or right of your ball's target line, you will find that it gives you a false impression of where the ball is in your stance.

Making sure that your ball, body and the ball's position are correlated is the KEY to building a consistent swing. I would bet that 75 percent of the people who come to see me for swing issues are incorrectly lined up, which can cause a host of issues. If you are hitting the ball poorly, begin by building a practice station and I bet you will "find" your swing once again.

The Next Generation at

By Françoise Rhodes

Sunnylands

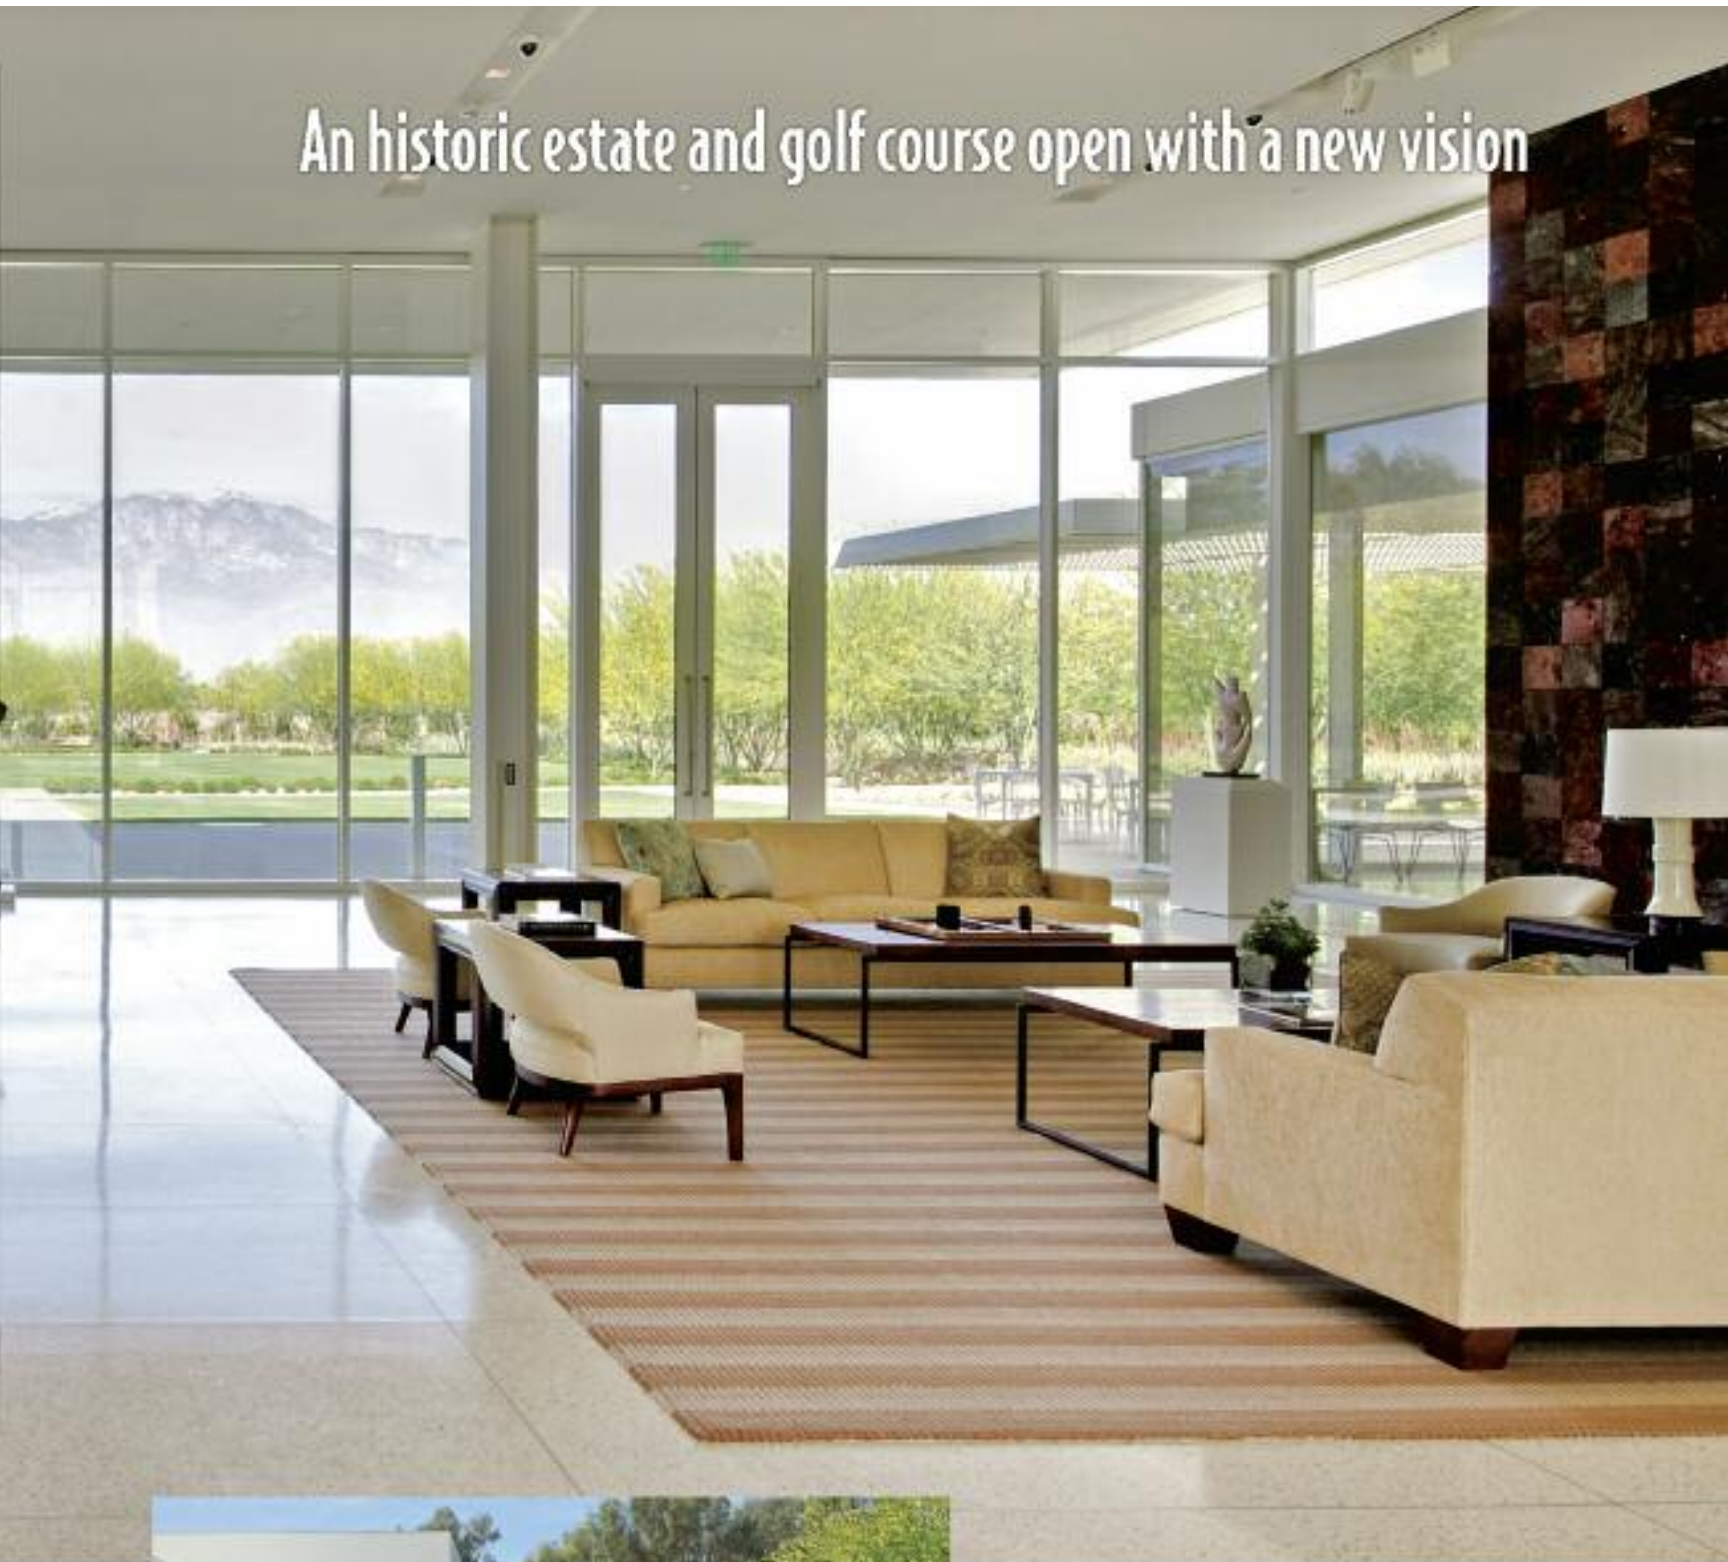

For over 40 years, Coachella Valley residents and visitors have driven past Sunnylands in Rancho Mirage, Calif., the famous presidential escape and residence of the late Ambassador Walter Annenberg and his wife Leonore. Stately pink, yes pink, walls brought attention to a lifestyle behind those walls only few would ever experience. Yet we continued to wonder, dream and imagine ourselves passing through the guarded gates to celebrate an occasion with the Annenbergs and their guest list of presidents, royalty and celebrities.

The time has come to shed the mystique of the past. On February 11 and 12, an invitation-only formal dedication will be held, paving the way for the March 1 opening of Sunnylands to the public and a new generation who will never have to wonder what life there was like.

An historic estate and golf course open with a new vision

The Annenberg Retreat at Sunnylands, which incorporates the historic 200-acre Annenberg estate as well as the new Sunnylands Center & Gardens, is poised to make a new history. The project, the vision of Mrs. Annenberg who worked on it until her passing in 2009 at the age of 91, includes a $35 million revitalization of the estate and restoration of the golf course to its original design. The Center & Gardens are completely new and environmentally sensitive.

Solely owned and operated by the Annenberg Foundation Trust at Sunnylands, the Retreat was established by the Annenbergs as a venue in which dignitaries, including the President of the United States and the Secretary of State, could host small, high-level retreats. The purpose of these retreats is to bring world leaders from the fields of government, philanthropy, education and the arts together to advance international peace and increase global understanding. “Another Annenberg gift to the nation,” so aptly states Mary Perry, media and community relations for Sunnylands.

The airy state-of-the-art Sunnylands Center is the first jaw-dropping point of entry for visitors. Guests come into the Great Room, designed by Mrs. Annenberg to evoke a living room, though few living rooms are this large and house an original Rodin. The room has floor-to-ceiling windows that offer a stunning and unobstructed view of Mt. San Jacinto. Free Wi-Fi is available, and there’s a café, gift shop, theater and gallery. The center sits on 15 acres, nine of which are gardens boasting 54,000 individual plants of 40 different varieties, as well as more than a mile of walking trails—all free to the public.

The estate remains behind the pink walls and guarded gates. This 25,000-square-foot mid-century modern masterpiece was completed in 1966 and used by the Annenbergs approximately five months out of the year. There are two guest wings, three guest cottages and the addition of 22 sleeping rooms. The estate houses the original furniture, art, photographs and keepsakes the Annenbergs themselves enjoyed, many received from their impressive list of guests.

When the Retreat is not in use, the estate will be open for tours. The 90-minute tours are for intimate groups of seven and cost $35 per person. Not only will visitors tour the estate, they will see the single tennis court, swimming pool, sculptures throughout the property, the eleven interlocking lakes (fully stocked with bass and catfish for Retreat guests to fish), and of course the private golf course.

For golfers, it has always been about the golf course behind the pink walls. An unrivaled art collection is one thing, but stepping outside the front doors of one's estate to play golf with the President of the United States is quite another—and that is exactly what the Annenbergs did. Dwight Eisenhower was the first president to play on the Sunnylands course, followed by presidents Nixon, Reagan and George H.W. Bush. Of course icons of the sport also played there, Raymond Floyd, Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino and Tom Watson among them. "The golf course wasn't overly challenging," Floyd says, "but it was a fun course to play."

The Dick Wilson design is parkland in style, with 46 bunkers and over 2,000 trees. Technically the course is nine holes; however, it is meant to be looped twice and has five sets of tees on each box for a very flexible 18-hole routing. During the restoration process, it was discovered that by using different tee and green combinations there are actually over 150 holes on the course. Total 18-hole routings range from 5,364 yards to over 7,200 yards, with bent-grass greens that break toward Bob Hope's house. Only guests of the Retreat will have access to the golf course. While playing, they will see the one magnolia tree that was a gift from President Nixon, the two palm trees from President Eisenhower and the totem pole sculpted by First Nations artist Henry Hunt in 1976. The greens are slightly elevated, the fairways are defined by low sloping hills and the peace and serenity on the course takes one by surprise. It is definitely a world apart behind those gates, so it's not surprising that a beautiful mausoleum on a grassy knoll marks the final resting place of the Ambassador and his wife.

As for the pink walls, the story goes that pink was a favorite color of Mrs. Annenberg, reminding her of the desert's pink-skied sunsets. However, it was the demise of pink oleanders surrounding the property that prompted the painting of the walls a beautiful soft pink, as if oleanders were still there blooming.

The Residence Club at PGA WEST

By Chris Lewis

The Residence Club at PGA WEST

La Quinta's The Residence Club offers vacation homes without the stress and expense of maintenance

Situated prominently in the resort town of La Quinta, Calif., The Residence Club at PGA West has become one of Coachella Valley's most renowned residences since it first opened back in 2006.

Featuring 19 extravagant single-style family homes, a private clubhouse and a variety of entertainment options, The Residence Club is also at the center of superb golf. In fact, it's surrounded by all six

"The Residence Club is a very good option for a lot of people since they are able to unwind in a vacation home without all of the expense or hassle of a second home," says Christine Keiner, project director at the club. "A lot of times a vacation home is a great idea in theory, but then becomes a burden in reality. Why pay and worry about a home 365 days a year if you are only going to use it four to eight weeks a year?"

you simply want to tilt back in your chair and listen to the crackling of the fire.

Meanwhile, for those hoping to sharpen their short game before heading out to a PGA West course for an 18-hole round, the club has three 12-hole private putting greens. Yet it's not just about golf. Residents can also work out, swim and visit with fellow residents and guests in the private clubhouse.

Although Barbara Stevens and her husband, Bill, full-time residents of DelMar, PGA West golf courses, layouts created by some of the most respected names in golf: Dye, Nicklaus, Norman, and Palmer among them.

Although close proximity to six of the world's most picturesque courses may offer many passionate golfers enough motivation to consider purchasing one of the club's homes, The Residence Club provides prospective owners with even more reasons to purchase their dream vacation home.

First, all owners have a one-ninth undivided, deeded interest in their 3,365-square-foot homes, which are fully decorated by professional interior designers. All residences are also well maintained by gardeners and cleaning services so that owners do not need to think about the maintenance. Quite simply, all they have to do is arrive, relax and enjoy the amenities.

Owners also have access to the La Quinta Resort and Club, as well as to private PGA West courses that host professional tournaments, including the annual Bob Hope Chrysler Classic.

Not only are the homes completely maintained by The Residence Club's staff, they are also absolutely gorgeous. Each home has three large master bedrooms, a fully equipped kitchen, eat-in bar and a dining room that seats up to eight. The homes also feature a Great Room with a flat-screen television and a built-in fireplace, perfect for those evenings when Calif., and homeowners at The Residence Club since July 2010, enjoy each of the club's amenities, they may appreciate its customer service even more.

"The staff is superb. Upon arrival, we are quickly checked in and the bell staff helps us unload," Stevens says. "If we prefer, they will have our kitchen fully stocked by the time we arrive. Plus, they make our tee times and dinner reservations. Any questions or requests are just a phone button away and are responded to promptly.”

Brad Campbell, a resident of Surrey, British Columbia and an owner since 2009, is also pleased with the club’s staff and service, as well as its wide range of social activities.

“The staff ensures a fun, relaxing atmosphere. There is always something going on at the clubhouse, like Saturday wine tastings and theme parties,” Campbell notes. “I believe The Residence Club is one of the world’s best-kept secrets.”

Time To Evaluate Your
Real Estate Assets

By Jenell Fontes

Renting out your second home seasonally could turn a drain on your finances into a profitable asset

2012 is the year to re-evaluate your real estate assets. What was once a viable asset in your real estate portfolio may have changed due to the decline in home values, and now is the time to find out.

The first step is to appraise the value of each of your assets. There are a couple of excellent websites that can help you get a ballpark figure, but I recommend contacting a real estate professional who knows your local market to give you an opinion. Once you know the current market value, you will have a benchmark to create a plan for that asset.

The days of expecting a yearly increase in property value are gone. That said, there is one bright spot for increasing the profitability of your real estate assets, and that is the rental market. The rental market is predicted to grow stronger between 2012 and 2015, making this the year to ask yourself some tough questions about each asset, its place in your portfolio and how you handle it in the future. The questions to ask: Does that asset make sense in my financial future and will it become profitable or not?

Asking the Tough Questions

Do you owe more money than a property is worth? If so, it might be time to consider a short sale, loan modification or a Deed in Lieu. Do you utilize the asset? If this is your primary residence then, yes, you do. If, however, this is a secondary residence that is underutilized, you might want to consider offering it as a seasonal or even full-time rental. Why? Because the rental market continues to gain strength in our weak economy as so many owners have lost their homes due to short sales and foreclosures. Many times, these people still have good jobs and long-term employment but their hours or salary have been cut back, or they might have suffered another kind of hardship, such as purchasing their home at the height of the market (ouch!).

What this means is that there are many renters out there who will be renters for the next three to four years as they rebuild their credit scores that took a huge hit as a result of losing their homes. And because many property owners who once rented their homes seasonally have turned instead to the more lucrative full-time rental market, the seasonal rental market is hard pressed to find lodging for vacation and seasonal visitors.

The advantage of a seasonal rental

Utilizing a second home as a seasonal rental has many advantages. First, you can still set aside time for personal use and rent it out the rest of the time. The second advantage is that the dollar amount for a seasonal rental is typically very lucrative during the designated high season for that area. Websites such as HomeAway (homeaway.com) and VRBO (vrbo.com) allow owners to rent out their vacation or second homes, while Airbnb (airbnb.com) and CouchSurfing (couchsurfing.org) take a more social media-influenced method toward matching travelers with available space. In many cases, just renting your second home for a few months of the year can cover the mortgage payment for the entire year. This is a great way to move your second home out of the “dog house” category and into “cash cow” status.

How Does the Seasonal Rental Market Work?

If you are thinking about your home as a seasonal rental, interview professionals in your area—either a real estate office that specializes in rentals or a property management company. The percentage these companies charge is justified in time savings to the homeowner as there is a lot involved with offering a seasonal rental, including a good contract that protects all the parties.

You should also make several other calls. If you are in a Home Owners Association, check to see if there are rental restrictions on your property. Some HOAs only allow homes to be leased by the month, with no weekly or nightly rentals allowed. Also, check with your club to find out if you can offer your rental guests any club privileges, which can make your rental even more attractive. Call local government officials to see if you are obligated to pay your town or city any special taxes on rental income. And finally, once you have all of the relevant information, run the numbers by your accountant or tax planner to determine the best way to set up your new venture.

If you decide to rent the property yourself rather than utilizing a property manager or rental agent, heed the advice from HomeAway on screening prospective tenants: Take time to talk to prospective tenants before accepting a booking. "It's amazing how much information you can glean about a person from a short phone conversation," HomeAway's recommendations say. During the conversation, be sure to ask questions because questions can often uncover red flags. A few to consider: What's the purpose of your trip? Have you stayed in a vacation rental before? How many adults and how many children will be staying? What attractions are you considering visiting? Trust your instincts; as the owner you have the option to turn down any renters who set off your internal alarms. "Pretty much every owner we've talked to who has endured major property damage by a renter had a bad feeling about the guest before accepting the booking," HomeAway says in its tips.

The bottom line: No amount of rental income is worth compromising the safety of your family and your property. If it's not right for you, it's OK to walk away.

EXAMPLES OF GOLF COURSE SEASONAL RENTAL PROPERTIES

Indian Wells Country Club, Indian Wells, Calif

The wildly popular Golf Channel program, The Big Break, is filmed at Indian Wells Country Club. This club provides a fabulous backdrop for this nationally televised golf show, and it's a prime location to rent an upscale luxury home or smaller condo unit. Homes rent for $3,000–$12,000 per month and condo units range from $3,000–$6,000 per month. The club is currently offering a temporary membership program called the "Discovery Golf Program," which includes full unlimited family golf, fitness and social privileges for both primary member and spouse. It also includes carts for a minimum of three months or a maximum of six months, with no initiation fee and $1,600 per month prepaid for the length of the membership. This is a one-time trial membership offered for a limited time only and may not be extended.

Indian Wells Country Club offers 36 championship holes of golf on two exceptional courses, the Classic and the Cove. The Classic Course is the original 1956 course designed by founder Eddie Susalla, while the Cove Course, designed by Harry Rainville and Ted Robinson, was added in 1995. Additionally, the club has a 70,000-square-foot clubhouse with a fitness center, men and women's locker rooms and a slew of other amenities.

Example of an Indian Wells rental: A four bedroom, three-bath desert home with south-facing views, high ceilings and Fleetwood sliders throughout. Five-star appointments include flat-screen TV, upscale linens and towels and just about any luxury item a vacationer could want. In high season this home rents for $8,000–$10,000 per month and usually for multiple months, making it a good home to put on the seasonal market.

Palm Valley Country Club, Palm Desert, Calif

A wonderful two-bedroom, two-bath home here entices vacationers with lake views and proximity to the pool and other club amenities. Additionally it offers high-end electronics, flat-screen TVs, luxury linens and all of the comforts of home. Well upgraded, it typically rents for $5,000–$6,000 per month in the height of the desert season. Palm Valley Country Club features two high quality courses: an 18-hole, championship course and an 18-hole challenge executive course. The championship course features wide fairways lined with palm trees and lakes, the challenge golf course holds true to the name with hazards and forced carries on almost every hole. Among the club's amenities are a 100,000-square-foot clubhouse, driving range with a short-game practice area, chipping and putting greens, rental clubs and more. There is a fitness facility that includes cardiovascular machines, weight-training equipment, personal trainers and classes, and the locker rooms for men and ladies have steam, sauna and Jacuzzis. Members receive special pricing at both the golf and tennis shops.

Incline Village Country Club, Incline Village, Nev.

Located on the 15th tee of the Incline Village Championship Golf Course is a rental surrounded by tall pines and fabulous views. The setting of this special home is pure magic. It is surrounded by tall pines and has wonderful views as well as a great deal of privacy. The home has three levels and three large decks, the spacious island kitchen features a glass-top Jenn-Air cooking center that seats five. There's also a formal dining room with table that seats 12, and the large living room has a stone fireplace, 47-inch HDTV, DVD, VCR, piano and wet bar. The home is located in an upscale neighborhood of luxury homes and rents for $2,475–$4,200 per week.

There are two outstanding golf courses in Incline Village Country Club: the Champion Course and the Mountain Course. The Championship Course was completely renovated in 2004 and features tightly cut fairways bordered by towering pines that demand distance and accuracy. On almost every hole there are lateral water hazards and bunkered greens making it a challenging course. Robert Trent Jones Sr. described Incline Village as "the ideal mountain layout with a challenge you won't want to miss and views you will never forget." The Mountain Course demands more accuracy than distance with spectacular contours and green sites. To navigate the terrain, shot-making skills are necessary. This mountainous 18-hole course is a real joy and challenge to play, one of its highlights being that it's all natural and carved out of the pines with no artificial landscaping or harsh transition areas. The incredible views of Lake Tahoe and the surrounding Sierra Nevada Mountains make this course a true tribute to its designer, Robert Trent Jones, Jr.

In the midst of Scottsdale's immaculate golf courses,
Zona's peaceful setting offers something for everyone

Social pool sitting area

Asada Grill

As a prime destination for yearlong warm weather, five-star restaurants and lodging and, most of all, world-class golf courses, Scottsdale, Arizona has become one of the nation's most popular tourist destinations, attracting thousands of guests each year. And as each of these guests prepare for vacations, they soon realize that the area offers a wide array of lodging options. However, year after year, one hotel, the Zona Hotel and Suites Scottsdale, remains quite unique when compared to all the others.

With 431 total units, including 145 hotel rooms, 234 one-bedroom suites and 52 multi-bedroom suites, Zona provides its guests with spacious and luxurious accommodations. It also provides a variety of amenities, packages, specials and first-rate customer service.

When it comes to indulging, Zona delivers. There's a tranquil spa, of course, and refreshing pools. Fine dining experiences allow guests to unwind, socialize and meet other guests, many of whom share common interests including a passion for golf and an appreciation for the splendor of Arizona's Sonoran Desert.

But, above all else, Zona's four-bedroom suites seem to set it apart from the rest of the competition.

"The four-bedroom suite is an accommodation style that no one else offers," says Tedd Maitland, golf sales manager at Zona. "It features a full living room, full dining room and full kitchen, along with a washer and dryer and a master bath in each bedroom, perfect for golf groups."

All of Zona's suites have brand new furniture, an assortment of artwork, flat-screen LCD televisions and wireless high-speed Internet access. The suites are also designed with each guest's comfort and privacy in mind. Ranging in size from 600 to 1,800 square feet, every suite has a large living room with a convertible, queen sofa-sleeper for additional space and bedding options, as well as a kitchen well stocked with utensils and with a full-size refrigerator. Guests can prepare large meals for entertaining, enjoy some of their favorite foods that may not be available at local restaurants or, if they choose, even have a romantic dinner, complete with complimentary strawberries and champagne.

To assure that guests rest after a long day of golfing, shopping and sightseeing, each bedroom has a custom Kingsdown mattress with a unique cloud construction and full-body surround to enable guests to fall asleep more quickly and stay asleep longer.

Guests may also enjoy the views from their patio or balcony of Zona's four pools, perhaps while savoring a fresh cup of coffee brewed in their kitchen's coffemaker. While drinking coffee, guests can also catch up on local, national and global news since Zona provides free newspaper delivery.

Detailing some of the top "Small Bites" selections, Bloch offers: "We serve duck confit tacos, chicken ravioli, broiled salmon on a skewer, and Kobe beef sliders."

From his full menu Bloch notes, "For lunch, we have salade Nicoise, a spinach salad with shrimp and scallops, and we also serve a brie burger that is very popular. Cliffhouse Grill & Bar

"You would never walk into the Cliffhouse and expect it be a Pacifica Seafood restaurant," says Mitch Epstein, managing partner of the Pacifica Restaurant Group, which recently started operating the popular eatery. "That being said, if you're a fan of Pacifica Seafood restaurants, you'll definitely be able to see some blending, whether it's uniforms, the menu or the décor."

Pacifica's imprint on its Cliffhouse acquisition can be seen most prominently in the fact that Epstein and his colleague immediately rehired all 60 Cliffhouse employees.

"We're going to refresh the place," Epstein adds. "It's a 20-year-old building. In the summer, the carpet will be

Regarding the fare, Epstein says, "We are using the freshest fish, the best beef and the freshest produce that money can buy. And Pacifica's sugar-spiced Atlantic salmon is already on the menu."

La Brasserie Bistro & Bar

Pairing handsome simplicity with an exceptional array of flavor, La Brasserie has a welcoming neighborhood vibe. The Parisian menu spreads across lunch, happy hour and dinner, and live entertainment is offered on the patio Friday and Saturday nights. Start with the Risotto Aux crevettes (shrimp) before moving to a filet of sole "Nicoise" or Foie de Veau aux Lardons et Echalotes (sautéed Calf Liver with crispy bacon) as an entrée.

Dining News

In Palm Springs, the early 2012 opening of Workshop Kitchen & Bar has Southern California palates abuzz. With a seasonal menu drawing from area farmers markets, the new addition to desert dining will fast welcome those interested in the movement of eating local.

While residents and visitors with a taste for Italian lamented the winter closing of popular Amore's Restaurant in La Quinta, the neighborhood offered concurrent enthusiasm for the November debut of Maru Korean BBQ & Grill, featuring a host of reservation-only tables where diners enjoy the hands-on approach of cooking their own meat platters. Wine lovers also had reason to celebrate November in La Quinta: the opening of The Wine Bar at Old Town. With over 300 worldwide selections, more than 30 options by the glass and a prime listing of craft brews, the new retail shop and bar matches a tight pairing menu with your beverage of choice.

As reported in the October/November 2011 issue of Desert Golf Magazine, patrons of the venerable Cliffhouse in La Quinta need not fret about the establishment's future. In early December, the veterans at Pacifica Seafood Restaurant in Palm Desert signed a 20-year lease to operate the popular venue on Point Happy. The restaurant will now go by the name of Cliffhouse Grill & Bar.

X-TRA Special

Jaguar XJ is Smokin'

If you're in the market for a car that waves a $100,000 price tag from its rear view mirror, you should save yourself some time and just go to the Jaguar dealer. The new XJ is lighter, longer and more luxurious than its predecessors in the XJ line, and the addition of Supercharged and Supersport models adds punch and pizzazz to the flagship. Sitting in an XJ is like few other experiences. Leather and wood wrap you in a cocoon of class. This is not for the faint of heart. The growl that signals ignition of the V-8 gives a rush that is sure to send your pulse through the roof.

The roof, by the way, is entirely glass. This full-width glass roof opens the car's interior to light and space. Watch as the clouds whizz by and the sun pours in on you as you careen down the interstate.

Although your heart may be pounding with exhilaration, you'll also feel a sense of calm at the helm of this large sedan. Imagine yourself as president of the United States (or some other lesser known nation if you don't want to get carried away) and you have a sense of what I mean. At once you have both awesome power and state-of-the-art technology at your fingertips. The legacy of Jaguar seems to leap forward in the XJ, much like the Jaguar icon herself.

The line has myriad options so choose wisely. The XJ is the standard model with a 5.0-liter, 385-horsepower motor driving its intensely beautiful body. The XJL signifies a longer wheelbase, giving five inches of extra room in the back seating area. A Supercharged model adds nearly 100 more horsepower in its turbo, while the XJ Supersport ramps up the muscle to 510 horsepower and add features like 20-way adjustable front seats with massage.

When was the last time you got a massage while you waited in gridlock?

“With the XJ, you get the most bang for the buck on the market,” says Jim McClain, sales manager at Jaguar North Scottsdale. “I’m biased but I don’t think the (BMW) 7 Series or (Mercedes) S Class even compare.”

You won’t find plastic trim and levers in any model of the XJ. Jaguar has taken its calling to luxury seriously. While the navigation and electronic features aren’t cutting edge, they do everything you want them to without fuss or frustration. The dashboard is entirely digital and complements the interior features with its styling. The shift control continues as the round dial that rises from the center dash upon ignition. Controls that operate with the latest in voice-recognition software respond to your commands.

Buying an XJL Supercharged or Supersport puts you in a category of your own. The exclusive nature of the XJL makes it a car that isn’t seen often and has a high head-turn factor; from the street corner, the XJL looks like it must be carrying a dignitary. The front end is so distinctive it can be nothing but a Jag. The back end seems to be downplayed a bit in the 2012 XJ, yet the way the emblem sits on the face of the trunk lid is brilliant branding. You’d expect nothing less from Jaguar.

The performance of the XJL Supercharged and Supersport are impressive. The aluminum chassis cuts out significant bulk of similar models in the class. At 206 inches long, it weighs in at 4,300 pounds. Compare that to the BMW 7 series at 205 inches and about 5,000 pounds.

Lighter weight means faster speeds. The top end on a Supersport is over 150 mph. The Supercharged does 0-60 in under five seconds. All are driven by a six-speed transmission that can be dialed up or down in Dynamic and Winter modes to alter the responsiveness, traction control and handling.

This car is smart, too. As you drive, it learns what you want. The XJ will adjust its handling and transmission settings to suit your preferences. You don’t say anything, just drive and it learns.

Interior lighting also adjusts to match the drive setting you’ve selected. Choose the Sport feature in the Supercharged XJL and the lighting turns red. Choose the Winter mode and cool blue lighting sets the mood. This kind of customization is characteristic of the entire XJ experience. More leather colors than you could possibly want, wood options and features galore make selecting your Jaguar a pleasure of the process.

How do you spell amazing? J-A-G-U-A-R.

SAMMY HAGAR INTRODUCES A NEW PREMIUM RUM "One Sip and You'll Surrender"

Produced to Rock and Roll Hall of Famer Sammy Hagar's specifications, Sammy's Beach Bar Rum is perfect for sipping on the rocks or neat but also makes great cocktails. It truly one of a very few silver rums that can be enjoyed without adding other ingredients. The distillery is located in Maui, Hawaii.

The key's to the rum's premium quality is a combination of using the best sugar cane in the world and a unique one-of-a-kind pot still distillation process. Maui Gold sugar cane is harvested and made into sugar and then is fermented prior to entering a pot still that master distiller Mark Nigbur hand crafted to intensify the flavor, character and aroma of the resulting rum. Distilled only once to retain the full essence of the cane and you get an aromatic and delicious silver rum.

Introduced in Hawaii this past November Sammy plans to have national distribution by June 2012. Go to www.sammysbeachbarrum.com for more information on the brand including some creative drink recipes.

Sammy's "Rocktail" Scene

Rock star, businessman, wine enthusiast, gourmet cook, family man and spirits connoisseur, Sammy Hagar is a man of many passions and talents. First entering the "rocktail" scene with his Cabo Wabo tequila, which he continues to support but recently sold Sammy's newest venture is Sammy's Beach Bar Rum, produced on the island of Maui where he has a second home. Currently on tour with his super group, Chickenfoot, Sammy is also a successful restaurateur a number of Sammy's Beach Bar & Grill locations throughout the U.S. from which he donates profits to local charities, and Cabo Wabo Cantinas in Mexico and Nevada.

Flat, Knit and Colorful, Hats are back

Find your style

By Françoise Rhodes

For years the sun visor has dominated the heads of men and women on the golf course. Now, thanks to the young guns on the men's tour and the fashionistas on the women's tour, headwear is a fashion statement—and that does not mean visors.

Fashion statement? Really? Yes, what Greg Norman did for the straw hat a decade ago, Rickie Fowler accomplished in 2011 by sparking the hottest trend on the hat market with his flat-brim style cap. As the demand for Fowler's hat soared, Puma met the challenge with a line of Fowler headwear called the 210 Fitted Monoline Cap. Made from 98-percent cotton and 2-percent spandex, Fowler's line can be purchased in bright pink or orange, and black, white and grey. Priced at $30, all hats have the sleek Puma cat logo. The cap is the rage among the upcoming golf stars. For the latest Puma styles visit puma.com.

Spring might mean sunshine but it also means chilly mornings. Blooming on the heads of golfers from coast to coast are beanies, or knitted caps. Previously worn over or under a visor, the beanie is now being designed as a combination of the two by designers such as those at Birth. Golf. Death. The result is the ultimate cool-weather cap. BGC has managed to design a modern, hip fine-knit brimmed beanie that will keep you looking low-key cool, yet it's also completely functional. The brim is designed to keep raindrops and snowflakes out of your eyes while keeping your head and ears warm. Boasting the B.G.D. logo on the front and birth.golfdeath.com on the back, this beanie is priced at $20 and comes in black or grey. To order, visit birthgolfdeath.com.

From cowboy hats to rhinestone-studded baseball caps, ladies want stylish and functional headwear that complements their outfits and works well on the course, too. Madcapz hats are specifically made for women by a woman. The hat offers a low-profile fit, adjustable strap in the back for easy sizing and is made of 100-percent cotton, but it's the ponytail hole in the back that's a must. Prints range from butterflies to leopard spots, polka dots to autumn leaves. These fun, standout caps are made in the USA and priced at $21. Visit madcapz.net to place your order.

Radar, Split, Cage, Cotton, DJ—no, it's not wrestle mania; rather, it's TaylorMade's new line of Tour hats. For both men and women, this 2012 line was recently unveiled to complement TaylorMade's Ghost line of golf equipment, which has exploded on the Tour and amateur scene. Whites and blacks dominate the color scheme of this headwear, but there are a smattering of colors available, too. Besides the Tour style hats, the other standout is the RBZ Flat-Bill hat with a semi-high crown. Made from 96-percent cotton and 4-percent spandex, this two-toned hat comes in white with dark grey. Styles are priced from $22-$30 and can be found at TaylorMadeGolf.com.

If you are looking for brighter colors and designs made from 100-percent cotton, Antigua offers a very cohesive collection that starts at $15. Also highly noted for its moisture-management technology, Antigua has rolled out the Versus Hat, a 100-percent polyester Desert Dry, Xtra-Lite D2XL moisture-management closed mesh solid six-panel fitted hat. Check it out at antigua.com.

Hats are no longer a drab, uniform accessory. There really is a design to fit everyone's sense of style. And as the world of sports is woven into fashion collections from Milan to New York, it's exciting to see that designers are inspired by the classic game of golf. Recently in London, designer Christopher Bailey at Burberry presented his own spin on the golf cap, a stylish two-toned knit cap complete with brim and large pom-pom. Word has it that this hat is flying out of stores. So whatever your look may be, find the hat that fits it and head out to the course with style and panache.

Timeless Jewels

Even if you don't need to know what time it is, your watch can tell others a lot about your superb style

Rolex Milgauss Green Crystal Anniversary Men's Watch

Omega Seamaster Aqua Terra Golf Wristwatch

Fendi Crazy Carats collection

DeWitt Golden Afternoon collection

Hublot Tutti Frutti "Big Bang" collection

Do we really need a watch?

Surrounded by time with today's technology, we can see the minutes tick away on our cell phones, iPads, in our cars and on our coffeemakers. And for that exact reason, watchmakers are not just making unique watches for the sports enthusiast or the timepiece collector, they are designing incredible jeweled accessories for men and women that also happen to tell time.

Timepieces have been an integral part of golf since 1967 when Arnold Palmer first provided testimonials about Rolex. Endorsements with other icons soon followed, putting Rolex front and center with a new demographic—the golf enthusiast. Rolex quickly expanded its presence in the industry by becoming the official timekeeper of the PGA Tour.

In 2011, Rolex's sponsorship role with the PGA Tour was modified, giving the company the opportunity to restructure its commitments and accept the role as official timekeeper of the Asian Tour. Rolex has been a favorite among golfers for years, and continues to be with the latest Rolex Milgauss Green Crystal Anniversary Men's Watch. Offering a low-key yet expensive visual, the Milgauss's black face, smooth bezel and parachrom hairspring is encased with stainless steel. Priced at $7,650, this special edition piece is worn on the wrist of many Tour players so why not you? rolex.com

As Rolex changed directions, Omega, the Swiss maker of prestige watches, embarked on expanding its presence in the world of golf. In July 2011, Omega announced its partnership with PGA of America as official timekeeper. Celebrating its foray into the world of golf, the company created the Omega Seamaster Aqua Terra Golf Wristwatch for men. With its green transferred Seamaster name and the numbers on the minute track, it recalls the verdant courses where golf's great events are contested. A green tip distinguishes the central second hand that sweeps across the black dial. The watch is priced at $4,600. omegawatches.com

Okay ladies, now that the men are out of the way, women's watches are stunning, sexy, fun and dazzling this season. Case in point, the Fendi Crazy Carats collection. Thirty-six pave diamonds accent the playful dial of a bracelet watch distinguished by colorful topaz. A new rolling gemstone mechanism initiated at the 4 o'clock crown on a silver dial changes the semiprecious markers for three different looks and is anchored by a stationary diamond at 12 o'clock. The Swiss made Fendi Crazy Carats is priced at $3,200. fendi.com/crazycarats

Stunning barely describes the DeWitt Golden Afternoon collection dedicated entirely to women. The dial of the Golden Afternoon is a delicate mother-of-pearl garden with a colorful bed of flowers. The hour and minute hands are refined, delicate sculptures of angel wings flying around the DeWitt logo gently floating across the sky. There are 117 brilliant-cut diamonds adorning the side of the case, 84 diamonds on the bezel, 48 on the two wristband attaches, 24 on the crown (also adorned with a ruby cabochon) and finally four rubies and 14 diamonds on the dial. Priced at $61,292. dewitt.ch

Always popular with the sporting crowd are timepieces from TAGHeuer, Tiffany & Co., and Van Cleef & Arpels, yet it is fair to say that there exist few luxury timepieces as unabashedly conspicuous as the Hublot Tutti Frutti, yes Tutti Frutti.

The Hublot Tutti Frutti "Big Bang" collection is a unisex design with many options. The element that clearly sets the Tutti Frutti apart from other luxury brands is the stunning bezel of baguette-cut semi-precious stones with matching case accents and strap colors. The watch offers a wide variety of stones and colors such as green tsavorite; purple amethyst; red spinelle; pink, yellow and orange sapphire; blue topaz and chocolate-brown garnets. It's housed in a case of opulent "Big Bang" rose gold, white gold and cool stainless steel. Priced from $12,000 to $28,000, Tutti Frutti watches have the potential to become heirlooms. hublot.com

So strap on your jeweled timepiece for all to admire and who knows? Someone might actually want to know what time it is.
